Reds Dodge Replies On Armistice Supervision Plan; 5 MIGs Downed

U. N. Ready To Try For Compromise

MUNSAN, Korea, Thursday, Dec. 6 (AP) — Communist truce delegates dodged or gave evasive answers Wednesday on terms for supervising a Korean armistice but the United Nations command indicated it was ready to probe today for areas of common agreement.

A third subcommittee session began at 11 a.m. today (9 p.m. Wednesday, EST) at Panmunjom.

In exploratory talks Wednesday the Communists cited two Russian satellites, Poland and Czechoslovakia, as suitable to serve on the Communist proposed neutral inspection teams to police a Korean truce.

The Reds also mentioned Switzerland, Denmark and Sweden as qualified to serve because they had not sent troops to Korea.

Exploratory Questions

An Allied spokesman told news correspondents that the fact neutral countries were discussed was no indication that the U. N. command had accepted the Red proposal for truce inspections by neutral nations.

"Our questions," said Lt. Col. Howard Levie, "were merely exploratory in an effort to obtain complete clarification of the various terms used in the Communist proposal."

The U. N. command communique Wednesday night said it was "important to note" that the countries mentioned were "merely given as examples of the type which the Communists considered within their definition of 'neutral nations.'"

Referring to attempts to obtain clarification of the Red truce inspection plan, the communique said: "This attempt was unfortunately largely unsuccessful. The Communists repeatedly gave evasive answers or refused to answer . . ."

Allied Proposal Unanswered

The Allies also noted that the Reds still have not replied to an offer to begin separate subcommittee discussions on exchange of prisoners of war. The Reds said they had "received no instructions" from Maj. Gen. Nam Il, their senior delegate.

(The Communist version of Wednesday's meeting was broadcast by Peiping radio early today. As recorded in San Francisco, it said the U. N. delegates "avoided expressing their attitude . . . but played for time by repeatedly raising questions which had been fully answered by our side.")

FREED — Msgr. Alojzijc Stepinac (above), Roman Catholic primate condemned in 1946 to 66 years imprisonment on charges of collaborating with the Nazis in World War II, was given his conditional freedom yesterday by the Yugoslav government.

Tito Government Frees Stepinac Conditionally

Won't Be Recognized As Leader Of Church

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Marshal Tito's Communist government today gave conditional freedom to Msgr. Alojzijc Stepinac, the Roman Catholic primate condemned in 1946 to 66 years imprisonment on charges of collaborating with the Nazis in World War II.

The announcement did not say what the conditions were. But it referred to Msgr. Stepinac as the "former archbishop," making clear that the government does not recognize him as the head of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia or in any other official capacity.

It seemed obvious that Tito hoped to make public opinion in Western countries more friendly to his regime by the release. But a new element of controversy may now be introduced.

Mandate "Remains Intact"

Vatican sources already have declared that "the mandate Archbishop Stepinac received upon his consecration remains intact even if the Yugoslav government should not recognize it."

Stepinac was sentenced to hard labor Oct. 11, 1946, while still declaring his innocence.

He never was required to work. He spent the last five years in two simply furnished cells, one of them turned into a chapel, in Lepoglava prison near Zagreb. He is now 53.

The announcement said that, by his own decision, he will live in the local parish house at Krasic, his native town near Zagreb.

The brief Tanjug statement said: "Alojzijc Stepinac, former archbishop of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, has been conditionally released.

Yugoslav Law Cited

"That decision has been taken by the Croation minister of the interior xxx and was based on Articles 67 and 68 of the law on punishment, security and educational correctional measures."

The articles mentioned provide for the conditional release of a person after he has served half his term if he shows by his behavior "that he has been corrected to such a degree that it could be expected he will permit no more criminal deeds"—or before he has served half his term if he "particularly distinguishes himself through his behavior and work."

Tempo Of Air War Continues To Rise

SEOUL, Korea, Thursday, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Fifth Air Force destroyed five Communist jets and damaged five more Wednesday in the tenth straight day of aerial duels over Northwest Korea.

An Air Force communique said all Allied planes returned safely without damage, although "MIG Alley" swarmed with 230 or more of the swift Russian-built jets.

It was the greatest sustained series of air clashes of the Korean war and underscored the rising tempo of the air war.

The action over Northwest Korea contrasted sharply with the fading "twilight war" along the 145-mile battle line. Only slight contact was reported Wednesday by the U. S. Eighth Army.

Doughboys "Dig In"

Air fighting became so dominant in the new war pattern that orders were given to United Nations infantrymen Wednesday to "dig in" against possible Communist air attacks. An unidentified plane attacked a U. N. position on the western front two days ago.

(A Washington report said the Navy was tightening its guard against possible Red air attacks on Allied surface ships over Northeast Korea.)

The Communists Wednesday apparently were under orders to keep away from swift U. S. Sabre jets and to attack slower fighter-bombers.

One of the longest jet clashes on record — 35 minutes — was fought during the day when 29 Sabres intercepted 80 MIGs as they attempted to break up an Allied rail cutting mission.

During this blazing action, the Fifth Air Force announced five MIGs were shot out of the skies and one more damaged while the Sabres suffered no damage.

132 MIGs Destroyed

Three more MIGs were claimed damaged when 80 MIGs attacked a flight of U. S. F-84 Thunderjets. In a third clash 36 MIGs jumped 32 F-80 Shooting Stars—slowest U. S. jet in Korea—and after a 30-minute fight headed back to Yalu River bases with one MIG damaged.

The Fifth Air Force claimed the Shooting Stars and Thunderjets returned safely.

The Fifth Air Force total for the 10 days is 32 Red planes shot down, one probably destroyed and 31 damaged.

All told 132 Red MIGs have been shot down, 26 probably destroyed and 292 damaged.

WINS FREEDOM — Without presenting any defense, Dr. Donald F. Gibson (above) yesterday won freedom at—Bridgeport, Conn., from a charge that he caused the death of Miss Elizabeth M. Ayres, 74, whose property the state said he coveted. Superior Court Judge Kenneth Wynn dismissed the manslaughter charge, saying the state had produced speculations but "no proof" that Dr. Gibson was guilty of the death of the wealthy, elderly spinster. The doctor was sole beneficiary of the woman's estate and had lived and maintained his office in her home for several years.

Sens. Taft, Byrd Hit "Socialistic Trends," Controls

AMA Hears Attack On Administration

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP) —Sens. Byrd and Taft tonight attacked what they called "socialistic trends" and "government controls" as they addressed the American Medical Association.

Byrd, the Virginia Democrat, told the doctors:

"The one overshadowing characteristic of the administration now in Washington is fiscal weakness and irresponsibility. From this springs the demand for confiscatory taxes, stifling controls and centralization.

"If America is destroyed it will be the result of fiscal irresponsibility of which the present administration is guilty, and which even now is being exploited by political camp followers who would centralize all power and purse control in Washington.

"From these come a deadly assault on the free enterprise system, the creeping socialism and the scandals which Thomas Jefferson foresaw when he said: 'I do verily believe that a consolidated government would become the most corrupt government on earth.'"

Ohio Republican Taft said:

"The federal government has gone into many businesses for itself and threatens to go into more. It has undertaken to regulate all industry and commerce and agriculture with great federal bureaus and huge subsidies. It has taken over functions which were almost exclusively local, and it threatens to take over all welfare services through a scheme known as social insurance, which is not insurance but simply more taxation to support free federal welfare services.

"The American Medical Association has taken the lead in opposing this trend, and the doctors are justified in this because the key move of the socialists today is the effort to set up a federal system of socialized medicine.

"The government proposes to collect six or seven billion dollars, mostly in payroll taxes from workmen, and set up a vast federal bureau to employ nearly all the doctors in the country to furnish free medical service to all the people, including the great majority who are perfectly able to pay for it themselves."

Sen. Taft said "socialized medicine" would cost annually from six to 10 billions, minimum, "and the way costs are going today it might even reach 18 or 20 billions."

Volcano Spews Out More Lava

MANILA, Thursday, Dec. 6 (AP)—Hibok Hibok volcano blasted loose again last night and today on devastated Camiguin Island where the death toll from Tuesday's explosive eruption has climbed to 172.

Hundreds of others may lie under the blanket of ash and lava that fell like rain across a 10-square mile area.

The governor of Misamis Province estimated that the death toll may climb to 500. He earlier had expressed fears that 2,000 may have perished.

The latest explosive blasts were the third and fourth.

AP Correspondent Frank White reported the latest eruption from Cagayan De Oro on Mindanao Island.

Medical supplies and blood plasma were rushed to the area by U. S. and Philippines Air Force planes. Fast action may have prevented an epidemic resulting from polluted water and clogged sanitary lines.

White said 7,000 refugees from Mambajao, a town on the north shore closest to Hibok Hibok, were crowded into the village of Mahinog.

Eugene O'Neill Is Critically Ill

BOSTON, Dec. 5 (AP) — Eugene O'Neill, Nobel and Pulitzer prize winning playwright, is in critical condition at Faulkner Hospital.

The 63-year-old dramatist, whose home is at Marblehead, returned to the hospital last weekend after several previous visits. He has Parkinson's disease, described as a deterioration of the nerve centers.

The hospital confirmed that the playwright is so ill he can have no visitors, except for his wife, Carlotta Monterey, who spends most of her time with him.

The author of "Strange Interlude," "Beyond The Horizon" and "Anna Christie" has been ill for several years and has not gone far beyond his monest one and one-half story house on Point of Rocks Lane, Marblehead, since he purchased it in May, 1948. So far as the outside world knows, O'Neill has done no writing for some time.

The $40,000 Nobel prize in literature came to O'Neill in 1936. Previously he had won the Pulitzer prize for drama three times.

Two Top Men On Iran Oil Board Step Down

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 5 (AP) — Two top men on Iran's oil nationalization board resigned today as economic distress signals were hoisted by several government officials.

Sen. Abolraassam Najm, a financial expert, resigned as managing director of the 11-member parliamentary watchdog board, and Sen. Mohammed Sorrori stepped down with him.

There were rumors—unconfirmed—that both quit in opposition to the demand by the oil nationalization boss, Hussein Maki, that Iran sell oil to Russia and the Communist nations.

Connally Hopeful

WACO, Tex., Dec. 5 (AP)—Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex) told a luncheon club here today that he hopes for an end of the Korean war soon.

Connally commented that recent reports have been "extremely hopeful."

Vast Expansion Of A-Arms Output Planned, Dean Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said tonight that tentative plans are now being developed for a vast new expansion of America's atomic weapons output—the third since 1949.

Dean said the proposed expansion was spurred by the threat of the "Communist colossus" towering over the world's free nations and was made feasible, at least in part, by fresh discoveries of uranium deposits in Canada and Colorado.

"There has recently been a very decided improvement in the uranium supply outlook," Dean said in a speech prepared for the annual mobilization dinner of the American Ordnance Association.

"Although the known sources of uranium available to us today are certainly far from inexhaustible, they nevertheless do represent a substantial improvement over the situation which prevailed until a relatively short while ago."

Dean said one of the major reasons "why a further expansion of the atomic energy program is now being considered" is the fact that recent technological developments "have made possible the consideration of atomic weapons for tactical as well as strategic employment."

Production Of Arms Too Slow, Foster Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Deputy Defense Secretary William C. Foster told American and European manufacturers tonight that jet planes, tanks, bomb sights and radar—among other things—are not being produced fast enough.

And, he added:

"Many reports I see tell of immense and accelerating preparations on the other side of the Iron Curtain.

"I know these hard words will not be popular, but my studied opinion is that our relative posifion is not improving fast enough."

Way Is Opened To Price Hikes On Many Items

Firms May Apply For Higher Ceilings

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—The government tonight opened the way for possible price increases on thousands of consumer items, including clothing, meat, foods, milk, butter, coal, gasoline, tobacco, beer, drugs and cosmetics.

The Office of Price Stabilization gave thousands of manufacturers, processors, refiners, and mining concerns permission to apply for higher ceilings under the Capehart amendment to the controls law.

This amendment requires the government to allow manufacturers and processors to use their pre-Korean prices and add or subtract cost increases or decreases through last July 26 in computing new ceilings.

Application Optional

Because application of the Capehart formula is optional, OPS said that the general effect of its new order can not be adequately estimated. But, the agency added, "the particular effect will be to raise prices whenever an application for adjustment is granted."

The order carrying the Capehart amendment is effective at once. It was issued shortly after Price Director Michael V. DiSalle reported to a joint congressional committee that prices apparently were rising again and it would be a dangerous risk to decontrol any major items now.

DiSalle said in a speech in New York that temporary direct controls are necessary to help prevent "a wild inflationary scramble that might well drag down the entire nation to destruction."

Many Items Affected

Among items affected by the new order are wool and cotton yarns and fabrics; soft drinks, liquor and wine, lumber and millwork, crude oil, caned and frozen fruits and vegetables, and many other processed foods; also many important chemicals, plastics and insecticides.

The government now has authorized Capehart adjustments for all eligible business concerns expect automobile manufacturers and service establishments. An order permitting car makers to adjust prices is about ready. Another will be issued soon for services such as laundry, dry cleaning, garages and repair shops of all kinds.

Editor 'Needled' Him, D. A. Says

LAKE CHARLES, La., Dec. 5 (AP)—District Attorney Griffin Hawkins testified today that a newspaperman—one of five on trial for allegedly defaming 16 public officials and three gamblers—"needled" him in a newspaper column for nearly a year.

Hawkins, one of the officials allegedly defamed during a law-enforcement campaign conducted by the Lake Charles American Press, said:

"I am at a total loss to understand why Mr. (Kenneth L.) Dixon would take advantage of his position as managing editor of the American Press to hurt me x x x."

Dixon is the first of the five newsmen on trial on defamation charges, in this Southwest Louisiana city of 50,000 population.

"I used to gamble but I haven't for years," the district attorney testified. "I drink when I want to but that is my personal life."

Dixon's indictment was based on an editorial he wrote entitled "Legal Double-Talk," and an editorial column he writes called "Charley Lake Says."

Hawkins said he could not understand "that for a period of a year, I have been continuously needled about my official actions."

He said his personal life was one thing but his official life was another.

The winds ripped out the front of a building, shattered windows, caved in roofs and ripped down trees and signs. High winds and rains lashed the rest of the city.

The west coast storm pounded British Columbia, Washington and Oregon, Tuesday, causing four deaths.

McKeldin To Cut Taxes If General Assembly Willing

Move To Block Slash "Already Under Way"

FREDERICK, Md., Dec. 5 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin promised tonight to reduce taxes next year if the General Assembly is willing.

"I can tell you now that in the coming session of the Legislature, your taxes will be reduced unless my efforts in that direction are blocked by your representatives in the General Assembly," the governor said.

"I am not promising a large reduction," he said in a speech prepared for delivery to a meeting of the Maryland State Grange, "but I am promising a start in that direction despite the fact that the trend still is upward in the federal government, in many municipalities and counties, and in most of the states."

Assembly Meets Feb. 6

The General Assembly convenes for 30 days next Feb. 6.

The governor said his administration held the line in taxes during the past year, but that efforts to block any reduction are "already under way."

"As far as I know," McKeldin declared, "the movement is not widespread even among politicians or political office holders. It is in its early stages of development and can be nipped in its bud — by the people."

Only last week McKeldin charged five Democrats on a Legislative Council committee with trying to thwart reduction.

Citizens Urged To Act

The Democrats, a majority of the council's finance committee, had voted to transfer state police expenses back to general funds. The administration pushed through the last General Assembly a measure financing the police with motor vehicle revenues.

McKeldin urged all citizens, regardless of party affiliation, to let their representatives know their desires. "You don't have to wait for an election to speak to your representatives x x If you want tax reduction, say so."

Shipyard Workers Sue, Saying Noise Deafened Them

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 5 (AP)—Employes of Bethlehem Steel Company's Hoboken shipyard have filed a total of 232 suits seeking some $5,000,000 damages on claims that they became deaf from noise at work.

The damage claims have been filed with the Hudson County Court during the past few months.

Workers charged that the company should have made tests on the amount of noise, and provided silencers and ear devices to protect them.

Egypt Will Ban Demonstrations

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 5 (AP)—Police fired shotgun blasts and used clubs to disperse anti-British student demonstrators here today. A government spokesman then delcared all demonstrations will be banned throughout Egypt, effective tomorrow.

Interior Minister Serag El Din told a news conference of the projected ban on demonstrations. "The government is edtermined to repress them by all means x x to reserve all its energies for the struggle between Egypt and the occupant (British) forces," he said.

Serag El Din listed 15 police and four civilians injured in Cairo rioting today, saying the police were injured by stones and the civilians by police clubs. Other sources had reported as many as 60 injured.

The students were protesting the killing of Egyptians in the British-occupied Suez Canal zone.

Serag El Din said 117 Egyptians have been killed and 438 wounded since trouble erupted Oct. 16 over Egypt's effort to oust British troops.

Collector Reaches Into Taxpayer's Pocket

St. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 5 (AP)—County Collector F. Hurst actually as well as literally reached into the pocket of a taxpayer.

Charles A. Lee came to Hurst's office to pay his taxes. Both of his arms were in slings as the result of a fall.

He asked Hurst to take his billfold from his pocket and take out the tax money. Hurst did.

Club Bars Press So General Holds Curbstone Conference

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—An Army general held a curbstone news conference today after a club refused to admit the press.

Maj. Gen. George A. Horkan, quartermaster general, was to have held the conference in the Chicago Club but when newsmen arrived club officials said the club had a long-standing rule that no newsmen would be admitted to any club function.

The State Street Council, which had invited the press to the conference, said it had not been told of the rule when it reserved a room at the club even though it stated the room was to be used for a press conference.

When the press was barred, Gen. Horkan accompanied the reporters and photographers toward a neighboring book store, which had agreed to permit the conference to be held there. Then he halted and said, "why not have the press conference right here?"

The reporters pulled out their notebooks and, standing on the curb, learned from the general that the Army clothing situation for the Korean winter is well in hand and the problem of purchasing meat for the armed forces also is "under control."

Oliphant Says Story Of Plot "Filthy Lie"

King Calls Justice Dept. Into Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Charles Oliphant resigned as chief legal officer of the Internal Revenue Service today, deploring "vilification" and piling another sensation on the heap already collected by a House investigating committee.

As Oliphant gave up his $14,000-a-year job in the Truman administration, Frank Nathan went before the inquiry group to deny a charge that he tried to shake down a wealthy Chicago lawyer for $500,000 with promises to "fix" his tax troubles through influential friends in Washington officialdom.

Nathan shouted that the accusation was "a dirty, filthy lie."

The conflict in testimony brought an announcement from Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of the committee, that a transcript of the testimony about the alleged shakedown would be sent to the Department of Justice for perjury action.

Writes To Truman

"It has been quite clear in the past 24 hours that one or more persons perjured themselves before this committee," King said.

Oliphant resigned in a strongly-worded letter to President Truman.

"I find it beyond the limits of my endurance to protect my name and reputation and the prestige of the office I hold in the face of baseless and scurrilous charges x x x" he wrote in part.

Oliphant's name was connected with the shakedown story, but the 42-year-old attorney, who has been with the revenue bureau since 1939, told Mr. Truman that it was "fantastic" to infer that he had anything to do with the alleged plot.

The shakedown story was told to the inquiry group—a House Ways and Means subcommittee—yesterday by Abraham Teitlebaum, a well-to-do attorney and real estate operator in Chicago.

Teitelbaum swore that at Miami Beach, Fla., last winter he was approached by Nathan and Bert K. Naster and told that if he would shell out half a million dollars they would "make it easy" for him in a tax fraud case which is still pending.

Caudle, Larson Accused

The two men, Teitelbaum said, hinted that there was a clique in Washington looking for "soft touches" like him. Te said they rattled off the names of Oliphant, T. Lamar Caudle, Jess Larson, George J. Schoeneman and Joseph Nunan.

Caudle was an assistant attorney general in charge of all tax fraud prosecutions for the Justice Department before he was ousted by Mr. Truman Nov. 16. Larson heads the General Services Administration, the government's "housekeeper" in buying supplies and maintaining public buildings. Schoeneman and Nunan are former internal revenue commissioners.

All issued indignant denials they had combined in any way to high-pressure taxpayers or with Nathan.

Air Force Plans 143 Wings In '52

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett disclosed today that the Air Force has set a new goal of 143 wings—somewhere between 4,200 and 10,700 planes — in planning the next military budget.

The new figure compares with current strength of about 90 wings. Pre-Korean strength was 48 wings.

Lovett told a news conference that the Defense Department is asking President Truman and Congress to authorize the extension, and he emphasized that the emergency calls for prompt action rather than a long-drawn program.

The defense chief said 126 of the proposed 143 wings would be combat planes and the remainder troops carriers.

So far, Lovett said, neither the White House nor the Budget Bureau has set a ceiling for the military budget to be laid before Congress when the lawmakers return in January.

He said, however, the Defense Department and the National Security Council have been using a tentative figure of $45 billion — merely as an estimate — to start from in calculating what should be asked for the 1952-53 budget.

The current budget is about $59.4 billion for military expenditures.

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 5 (AP) — Two top men on Iran's oil nationalization board resigned today as economic distress signals were hoisted by several government officials.

Sen. Abolraassam Najm, a financial expert, resigned as managing director of the 11-member parliamentary watchdog board, and Sen. Mohammed Sorrori stepped down with him.

There were rumors—unconfirmed—that both quit in opposition to the demand by the oil nationalization boss, Hussein Maki, that Iran sell oil to Russia and the Communist nations.

WINS FREEDOM — Without presenting any defense, Dr. Donald F. Gibson (above) yesterday won freedom at—Bridgeport, Conn., from a charge that he caused the death of Miss Elizabeth M. Ayres, 74, whose property the state said he coveted. Superior Court Judge Kenneth Wynn dismissed the manslaughter charge, saying the state had produced speculations but "no proof" that Dr. Gibson was guilty of the death of the wealthy, elderly spinster. The doctor was sole beneficiary of the woman's estate and had lived and maintained his office in her home for several years.

Sens. Taft, Byrd Hit "Socialistic Trends," Controls

AMA Hears Attack On Administration

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP) —Sens. Byrd and Taft tonight attacked what they called "socialistic trends" and "government controls" as they addressed the American Medical Association.

Byrd, the Virginia Democrat, told the doctors:

"The one overshadowing characteristic of the administration now in Washington is fiscal weakness and irresponsibility. From this springs the demand for confiscatory taxes, stifling controls and centralization.

"If America is destroyed it will be the result of fiscal irresponsibility of which the present administration is guilty, and which even now is being exploited by political camp followers who would centralize all power and purse control in Washington.

"From these come a deadly assault on the free enterprise system, the creeping socialism and the scandals which Thomas Jefferson foresaw when he said: 'I do verily believe that a consolidated government would become the most corrupt government on earth.'"

Ohio Republican Taft said:

"The federal government has gone into many businesses for itself and threatens to go into more. It has undertaken to regulate all industry and commerce and agriculture with great federal bureaus and huge subsidies. It has taken over functions which were almost exclusively local, and it threatens to take over all welfare services through a scheme known as social insurance, which is not insurance but simply more taxation to support free federal welfare services.

"The American Medical Association has taken the lead in opposing this trend, and the doctors are justified in this because the key move of the socialists today is the effort to set up a federal system of socialized medicine.

"The government proposes to collect six or seven billion dollars, mostly in payroll taxes from workmen, and set up a vast federal bureau to employ nearly all the doctors in the country to furnish free medical service to all the people, including the great majority who are perfectly able to pay for it themselves."

Sen. Taft said "socialized medicine" would cost annually from six to 10 billions, minimum, "and the way costs are going today it might even reach 18 or 20 billions."

Production Of Arms Too Slow, Foster Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Deputy Defense Secretary William C. Foster told American and European manufacturers tonight that jet planes, tanks, bomb sights and radar—among other things—are not being produced fast enough.

And, he added:

"Many reports I see tell of immense and accelerating preparations on the other side of the Iron Curtain.

"I know these hard words will not be popular, but my studied opinion is that our relative position is not improving fast enough."

Vast Expansion Of A-Arms Output Planned, Dean Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said tonight that tentative plans are now being developed for a vast new expansion of America's atomic weapons output—the third since 1949.

Dean said the proposed expansion was spurred by the threat of the "Communist colossus" towering over the world's free nations and was made feasible, at least in part, by fresh discoveries of uranium deposits in Canada and Colorado.

"There has recently been a very decided improvement in the uranium supply outlook," Dean said in a speech prepared for the annual mobilization dinner of the American Ordnance Association.

"Although the known sources of uranium available to us today are certainly far from inexhaustible, they nevertheless do represent a substantial improvement over the situation which prevailed until a relatively short while ago."

Dean said one of the major reasons "why a further expansion of the atomic energy program is now being considered" is the fact that recent technological developments "have made possible the consideration of atomic weapons for tactical as well as strategic employment."

Way Is Opened To Price Hikes On Many Items

Firms May Apply For Higher Ceilings

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—The government tonight opened the way for possible price increases on thousands of consumer items, including clothing, meat, foods, milk, butter, coal, gasoline, tobacco, beer, drugs and cosmetics.

The Office of Price Stabilization gave thousands of manufacturers, processors, refiners, and mining concerns permission to apply for higher ceilings under the Capehart amendment to the controls law.

This amendment requires the government to allow manufacturers and processors to use their pre-Korean prices and add or subtract cost increases or decreases through last July 26 in computing new ceilings.

Application Optional

Because application of the Capehart formula is optional, OPS said that the general effect of its new order can not be adequately estimated. But, the agency added, "the particular effect will be to raise prices whenever an application for adjustment is granted."

The order carrying the Capehart amendment is effective at once. It was issued shortly after Price Director Michael V. DiSalle reported to a joint congressional committee that prices apparently were rising again and it would be a dangerous risk to decontrol any major items now.

DiSalle said in a speech in New York that temporary direct controls are necessary to help prevent "a wild inflationary scramble that might well drag down the entire nation to destruction."

Many Items Affected

Among items affected by the new order are wool and cotton yarns and fabrics; soft drinks, liquor and wine, lumber and millwork, crude oil, caned and frozen fruits and vegetables, and many other processed foods; also many important chemicals, plastics and insecticides.

The government now has authorized Capehart adjustments for all eligible business concerns expect automobile manufacturers and service establishments. An order permitting car makers to adjust prices is about ready. Another will be issued soon for services such as laundry, dry cleaning, garages and repair shops of all kinds.

Editor 'Needled' Him, D. A. Says

LAKE CHARLES, La., Dec. 5 (AP)—District Attorney Griffin Hawkins testified today that a newspaperman—one of five on trial for allegedly defaming 16 public officials and three gamblers—"needled" him in a newspaper column for nearly a year.

Hawkins, one of the officials allegedly defamed during a law-enforcement campaign conducted by the Lake Charles American Press, said:

"I am at a total loss to understand why Mr. (Kenneth L.) Dixon would take advantage of his position as managing editor of the American Press to hurt me x x x."

Dixon is the first of the five newsmen on trial on defamation charges, in this Southwest Louisiana city of 50,000 population.

"I used to gamble but I haven't for years," the district attorney testified. "I drink when I want to but that is my personal life."

Dixon's indictment was based on an editorial he wrote entitled "Legal Double-Talk," and an editorial column he writes called "Charley Lake Says."

Hawkins said he could not understand "that for a period of a year, I have been continuously needled about my official actions."

He said his personal life was one thing but his official life was another.

McKeldin To Cut Taxes If General Assembly Willing

Move To Block Slash "Already Under Way"

FREDERICK, Md., Dec. 5 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin promised tonight to reduce taxes next year if the General Assembly is willing.

"I can tell you now that in the coming session of the Legislature, your taxes will be reduced unless my efforts in that direction are blocked by your representatives in the General Assembly," the governor said.

"I am not promising a large reduction," he said in a speech prepared for delivery to a meeting of the Maryland State Grange, "but I am promising a start in that direction despite the fact that the trend still is upward in the federal government, in many municipalities and counties, and in most of the states."

Assembly Meets Feb. 6

The General Assembly convenes for 30 days next Feb. 6.

The governor said his administration held the line in taxes during the past year, but that efforts to block any reduction are "already under way."

"As far as I know," McKeldin declared, "the movement is not widespread even among politicians or political office holders. It is in its early stages of development and can be nipped in its bud — by the people."

Only last week McKeldin charged five Democrats on a Legislative Council committee with trying to thwart reduction.

Citizens Urged To Act

The Democrats, a majority of the council's finance committee, had voted to transfer state police expenses back to general funds. The administration pushed through the last General Assembly a measure financing the police with motor vehicle revenues.

McKeldin urged all citizens, regardless of party affiliation, to let their representatives know their desires. "You don't have to wait for an election to speak to your representatives x x If you want tax reduction, say so."

Shipyard Workers Sue, Saying Noise Deafened Them

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 5 (AP)—Employes of Bethlehem Steel Company's Hoboken shipyard have filed a total of 232 suits seeking some $5,000,000 damages on claims that they became deaf from noise at work.

The damage claims have been filed with the Hudson County Court during the past few months.

Workers charged that the company should have made tests on the amount of noise, and provided silencers and ear devices to protect them.

Egypt Will Ban Demonstrations

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 5 (AP)—Police fired shotgun blasts and used clubs to disperse anti-British student demonstrators here today. A government spokesman then delcared all demonstrations will be banned throughout Egypt, effective tomorrow.

Interior Minister Serag El Din told a news conference of the projected ban on demonstrations. "The government is edtermined to repress them by all means x x to reserve all its energies for the struggle between Egypt and the occupant (British) forces," he said.

Serag El Din listed 15 police and four civilians injured in Cairo rioting today, saying the police were injured by stones and the civilians by police clubs. Other sources had reported as many as 60 injured.

The students were protesting the killing of Egyptians in the British-occupied Suez Canal zone.

Serag El Din said 117 Egyptians have been killed and 438 wounded since trouble erupted Oct. 16 over Egypt's effort to oust British troops.

Collector Reaches Into Taxpayer's Pocket

St. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 5 (AP)—County Collector F. Hurst actually as well as literally reached into the pocket of a taxpayer.

Charles A. Lee came to Hurst's office to pay his taxes. Both of his arms were in slings as the result of a fall.

He asked Hurst to take his billfold from his pocket and take out the tax money. Hurst did.

Club Bars Press So General Holds Curbstone Conference

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—An Army general held a curbstone news conference today after a club refused to admit the press.

Maj. Gen. George A. Horkan, quartermaster general, was to have held the conference in the Chicago Club but when newsmen arrived club officials said the club had a long-standing rule that no newsmen would be admitted to any club function.

The State Street Council, which had invited the press to the conference, said it had not been told of the rule when it reserved a room at the club even though it stated the room was to be used for a press conference.

When the press was barred, Gen. Horkan accompanied the reporters and photographers toward a neighboring book store, which had agreed to permit the conference to be held there. Then he halted and said, "why not have the press conference right here?"

The reporters pulled out their notebooks and, standing on the curb, learned from the general that the Army clothing situation for the Korean winter is well in hand and the problem of purchasing meat for the armed forces also is "under control."

Oliphant Says Story Of Plot "Filthy Lie"

King Calls Justice Dept. Into Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Charles Oliphant resigned as chief legal officer of the Internal Revenue Service today, deploring "vilification" and piling another sensation on the heap already collected by a House investigating committee.

As Oliphant gave up his $14,000-a-year job in the Truman administration, Frank Nathan went before the inquiry group to deny a charge that he tried to shake down a wealthy Chicago lawyer for $500,000 with promises to "fix" his tax troubles through influential friends in Washington officialdom.

Nathan shouted that the accusation was "a dirty, filthy lie."

The conflict in testimony brought an announcement from Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of the committee, that a transcript of the testimony about the alleged shakedown would be sent to the Department of Justice for perjury action.

Writes To Truman

"It has been quite clear in the past 24 hours that one or more persons perjured themselves before this committee," King said.

Oliphant resigned in a strongly-worded letter to President Truman.

"I find it beyond the limits of my endurance to protect my name and reputation and the prestige of the office I hold in the face of baseless and scurrilous charges x x x" he wrote in part.

Oliphant's name was connected with the shakedown story, but the 42-year-old attorney, who has been with the revenue bureau since 1939, told Mr. Truman that it was "fantastic" to infer that he had anything to do with the alleged plot.

The shakedown story was told to the inquiry group—a House Ways and Means subcommittee—yesterday by Abraham Teitlebaum, a well-to-do attorney and real estate operator in Chicago.

Teitelbaum swore that at Miami Beach, Fla., last winter he was approached by Nathan and Bert K. Naster and told that if he would shell out half a million dollars they would "make it easy" for him in a tax fraud case which is still pending.

Caudle, Larson Accused

The two men, Teitelbaum said, hinted that there was a clique in Washington looking for "soft touches" like him. Te said they rattled off the names of Oliphant, T. Lamar Caudle, Jess Larson, George J. Schoeneman and Joseph Nunan.

Caudle was an assistant attorney general in charge of all tax fraud prosecutions for the Justice Department before he was ousted by Mr. Truman Nov. 16. Larson heads the General Services Administration, the government's "housekeeper" in buying supplies and maintaining public buildings. Schoeneman and Nunan are former internal revenue commissioners.

All issued indignant denials they had combined in any way to high-pressure taxpayers or with Nathan.

Air Force Plans 143 Wings In '52

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett disclosed today that the Air Force has set a new goal of 143 wings—somewhere between 4,200 and 10,700 planes — in planning the next military budget.

The new figure compares with current strength of about 90 wings. Pre-Korean strength was 48 wings.

Lovett told a news conference that the Defense Department is asking President Truman and Congress to authorize the extension, and he emphasized that the emergency calls for prompt action rather than a long-drawn program.

The defense chief said 126 of the proposed 143 wings would be combat planes and the remainder troops carriers.

So far, Lovett said, neither the White House nor the Budget Bureau has set a ceiling for the military budget to be laid before Congress when the lawmakers return in January.

He said, however, the Defense Department and the National Security Council have been using a tentative figure of $45 billion — merely as an estimate — to start from in calculating what should be asked for the 1952-53 budget.

The current budget is about $59.4 billion for military expenditures.

Reds Dodge Replies On Armistice Supervision Plan; 5 MIGs Downed

U. N. Ready To Try For Compromise

MUNSAN, Korea, Thursday, Dec. 6 (AP) — Communist truce delegates dodged or gave evasive answers Wednesday on terms for supervising a Korean armistice but the United Nations command indicated it was ready to probe today for areas of common agreement.

A third subcommittee session began at 11 a.m. today (9 p.m. Wednesday, EST) at Panmunjom.

In exploratory talks Wednesday the Communists cited two Russian satellites, Poland and Czechoslovakia, as suitable to serve on the Communist proposed neutral inspection teams to police a Korean truce.

The Reds also mentioned Switzerland, Denmark and Sweden as qualified to serve because they had not sent troops to Korea.

Exploratory Questions

An Allied spokesman told news correspondents that the fact neutral countries were discussed was no indication that the U. N. command had accepted the Red proposal for truce inspections by neutral nations.

"Our questions," said Lt. Col. Howard Levie, "were merely exploratory in an effort to obtain complete clarification of the various terms used in the Communist proposal."

The U. N. command communique Wednesday night said it was "important to note" that the countries mentioned were "merely given as examples of the type which the Communists considered within their definition of 'neutral nations.'"

Referring to attempts to obtain clarification of the Red truce inspection plan, the communique said:

"This attempt was unfortunately largely unsuccessful. The Communists repeatedly gave evasive answers or refused to answer . . ."

Allied Proposal Unanswered

The Allies also noted that the Reds still have not replied to an offer to begin separate subcommittee discussions on exchange of prisoners of war. The Reds said they had "received no instructions" from Maj. Gen. Nam Il, their senior delegate.

(The Communist version of Wednesday's meeting was broadcast by Peiping radio early today. As recorded in San Francisco, it said the U. N. delegates "avoided expressing their attitude . . . but played for time by repeatedly raising questions which had been fully answered by our side.")

FREED — Msgr. Alojzijc Stepinac (above), Roman Catholic primate condemned in 1946 to 66 years imprisonment on charges of collaborating with the Nazis in World War II, was given his conditional freedom yesterday by the Yugoslav government.

Tito Government Frees Stepinac Conditionally

Won't Be Recognized As Leader Of Church

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Marshal Tito's Communist government today gave conditional freedom to Msgr. Alojzijc Stepinac, the Roman Catholic primate condemned in 1946 to 66 years imprisonment on charges of collaborating with the Nazis in World War II.

The announcement did not say what the conditions were. But it referred to Msgr. Stepinac as the "former archbishop," making clear that the government does not recognize him as the head of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia or in any other official capacity.

It seemed obvious that Tito hoped to make public opinion in Western countries more friendly to his regime by the release. But a new element of controversy may now be introduced.

Mandate "Remains Intact"

Vatican sources already have declared that "the mandate Archbishop Stepinac received upon his consecration remains intact even if the Yugoslav government should not recognize it."

Stepinac was sentenced to hard labor Oct. 11, 1946, while still declaring his innocence.

He never was required to work. He spent the last five years in two simply furnished cells, one of them turned into a chapel, in Lepoglava prison near Zagreb. He is now 53.

The announcement said that, by his own decision, he will live in the local parish house at Krasic, his native town near Zagreb.

The brief Tanjug statement said: "Alojzijc Stepinac, former archbishop of the Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, has been conditionally released.

Yugoslav Law Cited

"That decision has been taken by the Croation minister of the interior xxx and was based on Articles 67 and 68 of the law on punishment, security and educational correctional measures."

The articles mentioned provide for the conditional release of a person after he has served half his term if he shows by his behavior "that he has been corrected to such a degree that it could be expected he will permit no more criminal deeds"—or before he has served half his term if he "particularly distinguishes himself through his behavior and work."

Tempo Of Air War Continues To Rise

SEOUL, Korea, Thursday, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Fifth Air Force destroyed five Communist jets and damaged five more Wednesday in the tenth straight day of aerial duels over Northwest Korea.

An Air Force communique said all Allied planes returned safely without damage, although "MIG Alley" swarmed with 230 or more of the swift Russian-built jets.

It was the greatest sustained series of air clashes of the Korean war and underscored the rising tempo of the air war.

The action over Northwest Korea contrasted sharply with the fading "twilight war" along the 145-mile battle line. Only slight contact was reported Wednesday by the U. S. Eighth Army.

Doughboys "Dig In"

Air fighting became so dominant in the new war pattern that orders were given to United Nations infantrymen Wednesday to "dig in" against possible Communist air attacks. An unidentified plane attacked a U. N. position on the western front two days ago.

(A Washington report said the Navy was tightening its guard against possible Red air attacks on Allied surface ships over Northeast Korea.)

The Communists Wednesday apparently were under orders to keep away from swift U. S. Sabre jets and to attack slower fighter-bombers.

One of the longest jet clashes on record — 35 minutes — was fought during the day when 29 Sabres intercepted 80 MIGs as they attempted to break up an Allied rail cutting mission.

During this blazing action, the Fifth Air Force announced five MIGs were shot out of the skies and one more damaged while the Sabres suffered no damage.

132 MIGs Destroyed

Three more MIGs were claimed damaged when 80 MIGs attacked a flight of U. S. F-84 Thunderjets. In a third clash 36 MIGs jumped 32 F-80 Shooting Stars—slowest U. S. jet in Korea—and after a 30-minute fight headed back to Yalu River bases with one MIG damaged.

The Fifth Air Force claimed the Shooting Stars and Thunderjets returned safely.

The Fifth Air Force total for the 10 days is 32 Red planes shot down, one probably destroyed and 31 damaged.

All told 132 Red MIGs have been shot down, 26 probably destroyed and 292 damaged.

Volcano Spews Out More Lava

MANILA, Thursday, Dec. 6 (AP)—Hibok Hibok volcano blasted loose again last night and today on devastated Camiguin Island where the death toll from Tuesday's explosive eruption has climbed to 172.

Hundreds of others may lie under the blanket of ash and lava that fell like rain across a 10-square mile area.

The governor of Misamis Province estimated that the death toll may climb to 500. He earlier had expressed fears that 2,000 may have perished.

The latest explosive blasts were the third and fourth.

AP Correspondent Frank White reported the latest eruption from Cagayan De Oro on Mindanao Island.

Medical supplies and blood plasma were rushed to the area by U. S. and Philippines Air Force planes. Fast action may have prevented an epidemic resulting from polluted water and clogged sanitary lines.

White said 7,000 refugees from Mambajao, a town on the north shore closest to Hibok Hibok, were crowded into the village of Mahinog.

Eugene O'Neill Is Critically Ill

BOSTON, Dec. 5 (AP) — Eugene O'Neill, Nobel and Pulitzer prize winning playwright, is in critical condition at Faulkner Hospital.

The 63-year-old dramatist, whose home is at Marblehead, returned to the hospital last weekend after several previous visits. He has Parkinson's disease, described as a deterioration of the nerve centers.

The hospital confirmed that the playwright is so ill he can have no visitors, except for his wife, Carlotta Monterey, who spends most of her time with him.

The author of "Strange Interlude," "Beyond The Horizon" and "Anna Christie" has been ill for several years and has not gone far beyond his monest one and one-half story house on Point of Rocks Lane, Marblehead, since he purchased it in May, 1948. So far as the outside world knows, O'Neill has done no writing for some time.

The $40,000 Nobel prize in literature came to O'Neill in 1936. Previously he had won the Pulitzer prize for drama three times.

Only last week McKeldin charged five Democrats on a Legislative Council committee with trying to thwart reduction.

Citizens Urged To Act

The Democrats, a majority of the council's finance committee, had voted to transfer state police expenses back to general funds. The administration pushed through the last General Assembly a measure financing the police with motor vehicle revenues.

McKeldin urged all citizens, regardless of party affiliation, to let their representatives know their desires. "You don't have to wait for an election to speak to your representatives x x If you want tax reduction, say so."

Shipyard Workers Sue, Saying Noise Deafened Them

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 5 (AP)—Employes of Bethlehem Steel Company's Hoboken shipyard have filed a total of 232 suits seeking some $5,000,000 damages on claims that they became deaf from noise at work.

The damage claims have been filed with the Hudson County Court during the past few months.

Workers charged that the company should have made tests on the amount of noise, and provided silencers and ear devices to protect them.

Egypt Will Ban Demonstrations

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 5 (AP)—Police fired shotgun blasts and used clubs to disperse anti-British student demonstrators here today. A government spokesman then delcared all demonstrations will be banned throughout Egypt, effective tomorrow.

Interior Minister Serag El Din told a news conference of the projected ban on demonstrations. "The government is edtermined to repress them by all means x x to reserve all its energies for the struggle between Egypt and the occupant (British) forces," he said.

Serag El Din listed 15 police and four civilians injured in Cairo rioting today, saying the police were injured by stones and the civilians by police clubs. Other sources had reported as many as 60 injured.

The students were protesting the killing of Egyptians in the British-occupied Suez Canal zone.

Serag El Din said 117 Egyptians have been killed and 438 wounded since trouble erupted Oct. 16 over Egypt's effort to oust British troops.

Collector Reaches Into Taxpayer's Pocket

St. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 5 (AP)—County Collector F. Hurst actually as well as literally reached into the pocket of a taxpayer.

Charles A. Lee came to Hurst's office to pay his taxes. Both of his arms were in slings as the result of a fall.

He asked Hurst to take his billfold from his pocket and take out the tax money. Hurst did.

Oliphant Says Story Of Plot "Filthy Lie"

King Calls Justice Dept. Into Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Charles Oliphant resigned as chief legal officer of the Internal Revenue Service today, deploring "vilification" and piling another sensation on the heap already collected by a House investigating committee.

As Oliphant gave up his $14,000-a-year job in the Truman administration, Frank Nathan went before the inquiry group to deny a charge that he tried to shake down a wealthy Chicago lawyer for $500,000 with promises to "fix" his tax troubles through influential friends in Washington officialdom.

Nathan shouted that the accusation was "a dirty, filthy lie."

The conflict in testimony brought an announcement from Rep. King (D-Calif), chairman of the committee, that a transcript of the testimony about the alleged shakedown would be sent to the Department of Justice for perjury action.

Writes To Truman

"It has been quite clear in the past 24 hours that one or more persons perjured themselves before this committee," King said.

Oliphant resigned in a strongly-worded letter to President Truman.

"I find it beyond the limits of my endurance to protect my name and reputation and the prestige of the office I hold in the face of baseless and scurrilous charges x x x" he wrote in part.

Oliphant's name was connected with the shakedown story, but the 42-year-old attorney, who has been with the revenue bureau since 1939, told Mr. Truman that it was "fantastic" to infer that he had anything to do with the alleged plot.

The shakedown story was told to the inquiry group—a House Ways and Means subcommittee—yesterday by Abraham Teitlebaum, a well-to-do attorney and real estate operator in Chicago.

Teitelbaum swore that at Miami Beach, Fla., last winter he was approached by Nathan and Bert K. Naster and told that if he would shell out half a million dollars they would "make it easy" for him in a tax fraud case which is still pending.

Caudle, Larson Accused

The two men, Teitelbaum said, hinted that there was a clique in Washington looking for "soft touches" like him. Te said they rattled off the names of Oliphant, T. Lamar Caudle, Jess Larson, George J. Schoeneman and Joseph Nunan.

Caudle was an assistant attorney general in charge of all tax fraud prosecutions for the Justice Department before he was ousted by Mr. Truman Nov. 16. Larson heads the General Services Administration, the government's "housekeeper" in buying supplies and maintaining public buildings. Schoeneman and Nunan are former internal revenue commissioners.

All issued indignant denials they had combined in any way to high-pressure taxpayers or with Nathan.

Air Force Plans 143 Wings In '52

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett disclosed today that the Air Force has set a new goal of 143 wings—somewhere between 4,200 and 10,700 planes — in planning the next military budget.

The new figure compares with current strength of about 90 wings. Pre-Korean strength was 48 wings.

Lovett told a news conference that the Defense Department is asking President Truman and Congress to authorize the extension, and he emphasized that the emergency calls for prompt action rather than a long-drawn program.

The defense chief said 126 of the proposed 143 wings would be combat planes and the remainder troops carriers.

So far, Lovett said, neither the White House nor the Budget Bureau has set a ceiling for the military budget to be laid before Congress when the lawmakers return in January.

He said, however, the Defense Department and the National Security Council have been using a tentative figure of $45 billion — merely as an estimate — to start from in calculating what should be asked for the 1952-53 budget.

The current budget is about $59.4 billion for military expenditures.

Robber-Rapist Jailed

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP)—Louis Sales, 20, Baltimore, was sentenced to 12 years in the House of Correction today after he was convicted in Youth Court of robbing and raping the mother of five children.

Vast Expansion Of A-Arms Output Planned, Dean Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said tonight that tentative plans are now being developed for a vast new expansion of America's atomic weapons output—the third since 1949.

Dean said the proposed expansion was spurred by the threat of the "Communist colossus" towering over the world's free nations and was made feasible, at least in part, by fresh discoveries of uranium deposits in Canada and Colorado.

"There has recently been a very decided improvement in the uranium supply outlook," Dean said in a speech prepared for the annual mobilization dinner of the American Ordnance Association.

"Although the known sources of uranium available to us today are certainly far from inexhaustible, they nevertheless do represent a substantial improvement over the situation which prevailed until a relatively short while ago."

Dean said one of the major reasons "why a further expansion of the atomic energy program is now being considered" is the fact that recent technological developments "have made possible the consideration of atomic weapons for tactical as well as strategic employment."

Production Of Arms Too Slow, Foster Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Deputy Defense Secretary William C. Foster told American and European manufacturers tonight that jet planes, tanks, bomb sights and radar—among other things—are not being produced fast enough.

And, he added:

"Many reports I see tell of immense and accelerating preparations on the other side of the Iron Curtain.

"I know these hard words will not be popular, but my studied opinion is that our relative position is not improving fast enough."

Club Bars Press So General Holds Curbstone Conference

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (AP)—An Army general held a curbstone news conference today after a club refused to admit the press.

Maj. Gen. George A. Horkan, quartermaster general, was to have held the conference in the Chicago Club but when newsmen arrived club officials said the club had a long-standing rule that no newsmen would be admitted to any club function.

The State Street Council, which had invited the press to the conference, said it had not been told of the rule when it reserved a room at the club even though it stated the room was to be used for a press conference.

When the press was barred, Gen. Horkan accompanied the reporters and photographers toward a neighboring book store, which had agreed to permit the conference to be held there. Then he halted and said, "why not have the press conference right here?"

The reporters pulled out their notebooks and, standing on the curb, learned from the general that the Army clothing situation for the Korean winter is well in hand and the problem of purchasing meat for the armed forces also is "under control."

VA Insurance Offices Plan Consolidation

5 Cities To Merge At Philadelphia

Plans to move insurance and death claims activities of the Veterans Administration now centered in the Columbus, Ohio, District Office to Philadelphia were announced by Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr.

This transfer of the Columbus Office will compiete the consolidation in Philadelphia of District Office activities for 17 Eastern and Northeastern States and the District of Columbia, by bringing together in a single office the insurance and death claims activities formerly handled in District Offices at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond and Columbus.

The consolidation of these five offices into one at Philadelphia will result in an estimated annual savings of more than $2,700,000. Of this, it is estimated that a savings of $450,000 a year will be effected by the inclusion of the Columbus Office in the consolidation.

The cost of the consolidation, including transfer of personnel, records and equipment, training of new personnel, alteration and moving of all offices involved has been placed at $1,800,000. This is a one-time cost and will be more than offset in the first year, after which the total savings of $2,700,000 may be expected every year.

To acquire room in Philadelphia for the consolidation of the five offices, a Records Center which had been established in Philadelphia will be transferred to Columbus where it will occupy space formerly used by the District Office.

Evans reported last night that there is plenty of water now for normal needs and that the general supply for the area is fairly good.

Residents of Lonaconing said supplies have been adequate around the clock since Thanksgiving.

VA Insurance Offices Plan Consolidation

5 Cities To Merge At Philadelphia

Plans to move insurance and death claims activities of the Veterans Administration now centered in the Columbus, Ohio, District Office to Philadelphia were announced by Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr.

This transfer of the Columbus Office will complete the consolidation in Philadelphia of District Office activities for 17 Eastern and Northeastern States and the District of Columbia, by bringing together in a single office the insurance and death claims activities formerly handled in District Offices at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Richmond and Columbus.

The consolidation of these five offices into one at Philadelphia will result in an estimated annual savings of more than $2,700,000. Of this, it is estimated that a savings of $450,000 a year will be effected by the inclusion of the Columbus Office in the consolidation.

The cost of the consolidation, including transfer of personnel, records and equipment, training of new personnel, alteration and moving of all offices involved has been placed at $1,800,000. This is a one-time cost and will be more than offset in the first year, after which the total savings of $2,700,000 may be expected every year.

To acquire room in Philadelphia for the consolidation of the five offices, a Records Center which had been established in Philadelphia will be transferred to Columbus where it will occupy space formerly used by the District Office.

Several meetings of Lonaconing officials with residents, water company officials and health officials were held prior to this action.

Supplies Adequate Now

Rains which have fallen in the area, meanwhile, have gradually improved the water supply for the Lonaconing-Gilmore-Midland area.

Evans reported last night that there is plenty of water now for normal needs and that the general supply for the area is fairly good.

Residents of Lonaconing said supplies have been adequate around the clock since Thanksgiving.

Competing Medical Plans

Senator Taft was the main speaker before the house of delegates of the American Medical Association yesterday at Los Angeles. At that time he put on record his latest ideas on the Truman plan of compulsory health insurance and his own medical care plan.

The administration plan would provide complete medical, dental, hospital, drug, nursing and auxiliary services for all persons covered by the Social Security system and their immediate families. It would be financed by a pay-roll tax of 1½ per cent each on employer and employe on the first $4,800 of annual earnings, plus a federal contribution of ½ per cent of pay rolls during the first five years and 1 per cent during the next three years.

The Taft plan, as embodied in bills introduced in each Congress since the President first presented his plan in 1945, would provide free medical, dental and hospital services to indigent persons and to all others not able to pay all of the costs. It calls for appropriations of $1¼ billion over a five-year period, which would be matched by state funds. To provide the medical care, states could pay premiums to voluntary health insurance associations or make direct payments to private or public agencies.

Taft calls his plan "an American plan, based on assistance to the needy, liberty to the individual, and a free medical profession." The President says his plan is the only one he knows of that will provide adequate medical care for the American people. "I intend to keep right on working for that," he said last June 22, "as long as I am President of the United States and also after I get through being President of the United States."

The President is expected again to call for prepaid medical insurance when Congress meets in January. However, as an immediate objective, he may press a proposal advanced last June 25 by Social Security Administrator Ewing. It was then announced that legislation to carry out Ewing's idea would be laid before Congress before adjournment of the 1951 session but it wasn't and there is some suspicion that concrete presentation is being withheld for the election year 1952.

Ewing suggested that free hospitalization benefits for persons over 65 be added to present benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance system. While this program would cost $200 million in its first year of operation, Ewing said the outlay could be met from present old-age insurance funds. Because of the country's growing concern for welfare of the aged, and because there would be no immediate increase in payroll taxes, the plan has an undoubted appeal. Said Ewing: "It is difficult for me to see how anyone with a heart can oppose this thing."

While the Ewing plan would not enable "all Americans to pay for the medical care they need," as the President has said compulsory insurance would do, it would meet the hospital expenses (up to 60 days a year) of some five million persons. Opponents of compulsory medical insurance see in it "an entering wedge for socialized medicine."

The Taft plan would give more extensive benefits to many of the same persons who would receive hospitalization under the Ewing plan, but it is condemned by the administration as "a system of poor-man's medicine involving a means test." A substitute for both the Taft plan and the administration plan of compulsory medical insurance, proposed by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), would give federal-state subsidies to voluntary health insurance associations, with patients charged on the basis of their incomes. The difference between these payments and costs of service would be made up by the federal-state grants.

Guided And Misguided

According to a State Department announcement, the Dominican Republic will be a big help in the development of guided missiles. At Ciudad Trujillo, the capital of the little Caribbean country, an agreement has been signed permitting the United States to set up gear to track and control missiles launched in Florida, 1,000 miles away.

This announcement informs the Soviet Union of something it would learn anyway, if it does not already know all the details. But though high fences are built around the control-stations and the gear itself is guarded against unauthorized view, what is the point in an official U. S. communique about it?

Several weeks ago high Army brass ordered flunkies to San Francisco from Washington to threaten a newspaper for printing a story about an Army canine training project. The Reds are not supposed to know the Army has dogs, but Washington will gladly tell them all about this country's guided missiles.

The same day this announcement was made, the Radio Corporation of America came up with news, too. David Sarnoff, chairman of the board, is reported to have developed a complex means of detecting enemy missiles. It involves picket aircraft equipped with television transmitters to scan radar scopes and relay the pictures to intelligence centers.

Have the Soviet scientists a Sarnoff to figure stuff like that? Maybe so. But have they perfected or begun to work on gear to intercept signals guiding a missile and to flash back, in the same channel, signals misguiding it to its own destruction?

That's what RCA says the Sarnoff patents include. Many persons remember how hush-hush even the name radar was until the last big war was well advanced.

Perhaps this news is calculated to awe the Moscow Reds. Or it might be put out for domestic consumption to take the people's minds off other news originating in Washington in a steady stream.

50 Years Of Nobel Prizes

Monday, December 10, marks the 50th anniversary of the first grant of a Nobel prize, shared by a Swiss and a Frenchman for efforts for peace. The United States has received 11 of these Nobel peace awards, more than any other nation. The 11 went to—

Theodore Roosevelt in 1906; Elihu Root in 1912; Woodrow Wilson in 1919; Charles G. Dawes in 1925; Frank B. Kellogg in 1929; Nicholas M. Butler and Jane Addams in 1931; Cordell Hull in 1945; John R. Mott and Emily G. Balch in 1946; Ralph J. Bunche in 1950. In 1947 American and British Quaker groups shared the peace award.

Americans have been at the top, or near the top, also in the prizes for medicine and for physics. Americans have lagged behind nationals of other countries in the other two categories of Nobel awards: chemistry and literature.

Alfred Nobel was a Swede who created an endowment for these annual prizes from a fortune in his dynamite cartel. The source of his wealth has always seemed a little ironical in connection with a peace award. Also ironical is the fact that the world has much poorer prospects for peace today than when that first Nobel peace prize was awarded half a century ago.

How To Keep Well

The Adolescent Era

Most parents are self-conscious about their teen-aged youngsters who are awkward, unpredictable, and different. In many respects they are neither children nor grown ups. Most adults, rather than attempting to understand the behavior of the boys and girls in this age group, are inclined to shrug and say "adolescence" and let it go at that.

In many foreign countries the youngster of 14 to 15 goes to work. In some nations, even marriage is allowed at this tender age and the youngsters start rearing a family. In America, they are still boys and girls—at least, in the eyes of the law and in the hearts of the parents. But our customs have not changed Mother Nature and despite how we feel about it she effects the physical changes indicative to manhood and womanhood.

Psychological changes also occur, which make the period one of the most trying in life. Some of the controversy stems from the age-old controversy between the generations. The parents consider the son or daughter too young and the children consider the father and mother too old. The parents have all they can do to guide the child thru this interval and in some instances it may be necessary to limit the number of hours of work and play to prevent the youngster from burning the candle at both ends. It is fitting that our young people develop independence and stability but it is better that this be done in places with some moral and religious influence rather than on the street and in roving gangs.

Most boys and girls survive adolescence and there is no specific answer to problem cases. Children are as different as grownups and what might be said of Bob is not applicable to Sandra. One of the best solutions stems from a New York institution which, more than a decade ago, established an adolescent clinic for girls. The personnel at the clinic act as the third party and help the parents to understand what can be expected of the girl and vice versa. All angles are investigated, varying from the mental status of the young woman to her special talents and capabilities. Her difficulties are given a thoro airing.

In some cases the parents are at fault; in others, a brother or sister. Overcrowded conditions in the home, lack of privacy, or inadequate social outlets also produce conflicts. Now and then the teenager is misbehaving because she feels she is not being treated like a grownup or that she no longer is loved or trusted. Girls this age have been known to balk when the mothers insist that they act or dress in a manner different from their companions. Parents who forget that adolescence is a transitional period are courting trouble. Many youngsters worry because of the physical changes, or lack of them, and this makes them seem preoccupied or overly boisterous. Others have made a mountain out of a molehill because of acne; or they are concerned about obseity or menstrual irregularities.

War clouds have a disturbing influence, particularly on boys because the future is so uncertain. The impact may not be felt for some years because most young men welcome adventure and are indifferent to what they are losing in the way of of an education or home associations. But when they come to the realization of what has been missed they are likely to be bitter against those who are responsible. Our country loses also because one of the worst features of taking these youngsters out of their normal environment is that it breaks them of the habit of reading, thinking, and discussing the rational principles of everyday affairs.

STERILIZING CLOTHING

Mrs. W. writes: Will the washing and ironing of cotton dresses make them germ free? This clothing was worn by a woman who took care of a person with pneumonia.

REPLY

Yes—free of pneumonia germs.

BURN TREATMENT

Mrs. A. R. writes: What is the best home treatment of small burns? What do you think of ice applications?

REPLY

The best way to handle a small burn is to wash the area well with soap and water and cover with a sterile bandage. Cold applications may ease distress but I would not recommend placing ice directly on the burned skin.

ALKALIZE

Mrs. R. writes: How can distress induced by acid urine be relieved?

REPLY

Burning can be relieved by taking an alkali such as sodium bicarbonate or citrocarbonate.

RIB PAIN

L. T. writes: Could pain along both sides of the ribs, which occurs only on going to bed, indicate liver trouble?

REPLY

This is possible but bowel spasm or spinal arthritis are more likely to be responsible for the discomfort you describe.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Navy Refuses To Help Air Force Combat Russian MIGs; Truman Advisers Divided On McGrath Ouster; Merry-Go-Round To Test Political Sentiment

WASHINGTON—The Navy has taken an unusual stand regarding the air warfare which is getting more and more intense over Korea. It has turned down a request from General Otto Weyland, Air Force commander in the Far East, that Navy jets help out the Air Force in combating Russian MIGs.

With increasing Communist strength in the air, and with the Air Force sometimes badly outnumbered in battling Russian MIGs, General Weyland requested help from the Navy's carrier-based jet fighters.

However, despite the fact that there is supposed to be armed services unification, the Navy refused. Official reason was that Navy carriers were outside the fighting range.

Air Force officers point out, however, that the Navy used to fly its fighter planes as far north as the Yalu River when there weren't many MIGs in the area; so presumably it could do so again. They also feel that for one branch of the service to refuse help to another branch in wartime—especially when badly outnumbered—is anything but unification. In fact, they use words far less refined.

Air Force pilots who sometimes go into battle against superior Communist odds believe the Navy is trying to hide the fact that its jets are inferior to the MIGs. Since the Navy specializes in fighters, and not long ago boasted the best jet fighter plane in the world, this is a bitter pill to swallow.

Navy pilots today are among the best in the world, but apparently planes haven't kept up with either the Air Force or the enemy. As a result only two MIGs have been shot down by the Navy during the Korean War. One was bagged by a Navy Panther jet some time ago, the other by a Navy pilot who, however, flew an Air Force Sabre jet.

President Truman's advisers are split down the seam on a bold move to oust Attorney General Howard McGrath and name crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver to clean up the Justice Department.

This proposal was pushed backstage by Averell Harriman, who has been on speaking trips out of Washington and knows how deeply the corruption issue is hurting; also by usually cautious White House Counsel Charlie Murphy, and younger staff members.

Their argument with the President is: "The investigations are not going to stop with Internal Revenue and RFC, but will go into Alien Property Custodian, Surplus Property, and possibly the federal judiciary right up to the Supreme Court. The American people won't be satisfied unless the administration cleans house boldly and dramatically. A sure-fire way to regain public confidence is to name Senator Kefauver as attorney general, giving him complete authority to prosecute, no matter who is hurt."

Mr. Truman seems to like the idea and has been saying privately: "I've always been loyal to my friends. But they haven't been fair to me."

On the other side, a powerful White House force, Matt Connelly, who sits next to the President and makes all his appointments, is more than cool. Connelly vigorously defends his fellow Irishman in the Justice Department and has been digging up political friends of Mr. Truman to talk up McGrath and talk down his ouster.

The decisive factor and still on the fence is the forthright new national Democratic chairman, Frank McKinney. McKinney owes his appointment to Connelly, but agrees with Harriman that corruption is the issue and requires bold steps by the administration.

In a recent talk with President Truman, McKinney told him, in effect: "You don't have any obligation to any official who has been indiscreet or corrupt. They've pulled the rug out from under you."

Merry-Go-Round

People not on the political inside seldom realize how much backstage wire pulling goes into the nomination of a Presidential candidate. To a considerable extent this lessens the chance of the American people to elect a President. For, while they can elect, not many can nominate.

This frequently leaves the selection of the Presidential nominee a matter of barter and backstage lobbying by the party bosses.

This was true when Bob Hannegan and the big-city bosses finagled in the Blackstone Hotel to pick Truman for vice president in 1944. It was also true of the famous smoke-filled room conference in the same Blackstone Hotel which picked Harding in 1920. And it was likewise true that most Democratic delegates in 1948 were roped and hog-tied for Truman before they ever took the train to Philadelphia.

Today, Taft scouts have been combing every state in the union, pledging delegates six months in advance. Some of these may represent the people of their state, some may not. Some, may realize that world conditions, the threat of war, the hopes for peace, can change the world in six months, and with them can change the Presidential needs of the nation.

Therefore, to sound out the true political sentiment of the American people through the 600 newspapers publishing the Washington Merry-Go-Round, this column is conducting a post-card poll on the Republican candidates. The Democratic poll will come later.) To vote, address a post card to the GOP candidate of your choice, Box 1952, Washington 13, D. C., and tell him: "I'm for you in 1952."

Results will be announced from time to time in this column.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It looks like a congressional inquiry will be made into the mix-up over the news dispatches last week which said an informal cease-fire had developed in Korea and which were denied by President Truman, who blamed the war correspondents for allegedly faking the news.

"Where there's smoke, there's fire" is an old saying but never more applicable than to the many cases in which officials give the impression that reports which they deny have no basis whatsoever, implying that the whole thing is usually invented by the press.

The correspondents, especially in wartime, are sometimes mistaken but often they are misled unintentionally by legitimate news sources. Mr. Truman at Key West referred a few days ago to what he called a "fake" report of an armistice just before the actual ceasefire which ended World War I. While the incident is now more than 33 years old and will be remembered only by those who saw an amazing demonstration of enthusiasm and jubilation in America from cost to coast, it arose out of an erroneous report in which the government itself bungled the news by delaying the publication of a correction.

Howard Tells Story

This writer asked Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, who sent the original message about the armistice from Brest on November 7, 1918, to tell the story. For it never has been revealed how Washington officials were really responsible—as they were in the Korean episode of last week—for the circumstances that gave rise to an erroneous piece of news.

"I was informed," writes Mr. Howard in a letter to this correspondent, "by both Colonel House and the then Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, that messages (saying there had been an armistice signed) virtually identical to the one received by Admiral Wilson at Brest were sent to Secretary of State Lansing by Ambassador Sharp at Paris, and to Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels by Major Warburton and Captain Jackson, the Army and the Navy attaches at the Paris embassy.

"Colonel House told me that as soon as he learned of the messages which had been sent to Washington he got in touch with Ambassador Sharp and told him that the information was erroneous and that as a result the messages sent to State, War and Navy were promptly 'killed' from Paris. Captain Jackson also wired a 'kill' to Admiral Wilson, who was out of his office at the moment the correction arrived. As soon as his office contacted Admiral Wilson, the latter dispatched a messenger to me, and I sent a 'kill' on my original bulletin something less than two hours after the bulletin had been filed.

Held Up By Navy

"Acting on orders from Secretary Daniels' office my correcting story to the United Press was held up by the Navy censorship in New York and forwarded directly to the Navy Department in Washington, where Secretary Daniels ordered it held up until released by him. Daniels later told me that he ordered the correction held up until he could receive a reply from Admiral Wilson. Meantime, as I understand it, Daniels was out of Washington on November 7th, but more or less in contact with his office by phone.

"About 8 o'clock on the morning of November 8th, a former Scripps' employe, the late Harper Leech, at his death a financial writer on a Chicago newspaper, called my associate in New York, Bill Hawkins, and at the risk of being court martialled, told Bill of my correction which was still being held by the Secretary of the Navy's office in Washington. Bill called Bob Bender, the then Washington manager of the United Press, who in turn got in touch with George Creel of the Committee on Public Information and Joe Tumulty (President Wilson's secretary), and as a result of Bender's explanation of the situation, Tumulty wrote a note to the Secretary of the Navy's office stating it was the desire of the President that my message of correction be released in fairness to me and to the United Press.

"In consequence of Tumulty's action, the Navy released at 10 a. m., November 8th, my second message 'killing' the original bulletin. This was the correction which but for the action of Secretary Daniels would have been in the office of every United Press client in the country by 2 p. m. EST, November 7th. My original armistice bulletin was received in New York a little before noon."

The foregoing explanation of what did set off the premature celebration in 1918 concerns a very sensational event, but the background in many another case since shows that censorship delays and lack of coordination in Washington result in many instances in news reports which are sent out in good faith in the instance but with which delayed revisions never catch up.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

We Must Buy Time

BAGDAD

As a practical matter, real peace and stability in this area are for the present impossible. This rather dreary conclusion stands out after a tour of Israel and the Arab states. All we can hope to do is to buy time here. But we must buy time.

The reporter in these parts is impelled to put these words in capital letters, the poor substitute for a shout on the printed page—WE MUST BUY TIME HERE. If we do not, the whole Middle East will go the way of China, and then there will be no way to avert the final, awful penalty of a third world war. For the Arab states, like China before its capture, are a sort of inflammable mush, politically, economically, and militarily.

If we are to buy time, the Arab states must somehow be strengthened. Otherwise the mushy vacuum will sooner or later be filled, as in the case of China. The Arab states must be strengthened militarily, although no Arab army is going to be an important military factor, in case of war, for a very long time to come. We must strengthen Arab military forces simply in order to give these states the kind of internal authority and cohesion which no military mush can have, and also in order to insure a minimum of cooperation with the West if war comes.

Lever Of Power Needed

The Arab states must be strengthened economically, if mass misery is not to cause the whole Middle East to fall like rotten fruit into the Kremlin's garden. And, finally, the Arab states must also be strengthened because the United States now lacks what the United States desperately needs—a lever of power in this area.

The simple conclusion that the Arab states must be strengthened is shared by virtually every objective observer in the Middle East, there is nothing simple about the Middle East. And its just here that all sorts of nightmarish complications enter the Middle Eastern political equation. To take a few examples—the erosion of the power of our British ally, the universal Middle Eastern Anglophobia, and the corrupt and feudal social system in the Moslem states, which would probably cut to a fraction of its dollar value any serious program of economic aid.

But by far the most nightmarish of all complications is the relationship between Israel and the Arab states. For if one day the Arabs believe that they have a reasonable chance of success, they are quite likely again to attack Israel. This is not "Zionist propaganda." It is the simple truth. No one who has observed the Arab states at first hand and with an open mind can doubt that the danger exists. Both for reasons which are perfectly understandable from the Arab point of view, and for other reasons which are buried in the mists of the Arab subconscious, Arabs of all classes genuinely fear the state of Israel. They share a universal emotional conviction that sooner or later Israel will attempt—with the support of the United States—to conquer and rule the Arab world.

This fear of forty million people for a million and a half people may seem absurd. Yet it is real, and as of today perhaps not altogether irrational. For Israel is certainly as nationalist-minded as any country in the Middle East, and the Israeli military leaders themselves believe that the Israeli army could march to Damascus tomorrow, and the day after, as near to Cairo as the British would let them get.

Cruel Dilemma

At any rate, whether or not Arab fears are logical, they exist. And because the Arabs see Israel as a mortal danger, they are determined sooner or later, in one way or another, to eliminate the danger. Leaving to one side all moral or humane considerations, another Israel-Arab war would spell disaster to Western interests. Hence the danger inherent in strengthening the Arab states, and hence the cruel dilemma which confronts American policy in the Middle East.

So far, the United States has tried to deal with this dilemma by adopting a policy of "one for the mole, and one for the badger." Sixty-five million dollars, for example, is currently assigned to the tiny state of Israel, and precisely the same sum to the whole vast Arab world which has the oil, the immense majority of the population, and the vital strategic area. This is worse than useless, merely confirming the Arabs in their bitter suspicion that the United States will sooner or later abandon the whole Middle East in favor of Israel.

This is precisely what is in fact advocated by those who hold the "bastion of democracy" theory, according to which Western strategic planning should be based exclusively on Israel. This is fatal nonsense. There is not the slightest doubt, in the minds of those who know the area best, that to adopt this policy would be to throw the whole Middle East, once and for all, into the Soviet bloc. There is, in truth, no sure way out of the dilemma. There is only one risky escape exit. That is to make it far more clear than it has yet been made that any aggression on either side will end in final, fatal failure. Only in this way can the inflamed fears of both Arabs and Israelis be dealt with. And only thus can the risk of strengthening the Arab states be undertaken. The risk is great. The results are far from sure. Yet, we are to buy time here, the Arab states must be decisively strengthened. And it cannot be said too often—we must buy time here.

Political Miracles

The death of Senator Kenneth Wherry, minority leader of the Senate, makes sharper the division within the Republican party between the Taft and Eisenhower adherents. If seniority prevails, Wherry's position should be taken by Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts, an Eisenhower adherent. Senator Saltonstall has been an internationalist, a liberal, and close to the CIO, which is influential in Massachusetts. He is a man of dignity if not of stature; he is respected if not admired.

The Taft men are not likely to accept Saltonstall, although he is not politically as objectionable as Senator Wayne Morse would be. Many feel that Senator Byrd or Governor James Byrnes would be more suited for Republican leadership than Senator Saltonstall.

The logical minority leader would be Senator Owen Brewster, a New Englander of rare political skill and party devotion. Ordinarily, his leadership would be acceptable, but now the Eisenhower forces are likely to oppose Brewster lest they add another notch to Taft's gun.

Republicans generally do not want this sort of quarrel before the convention. It is a quarrel over nothing, for as of the moment the minority leadership is hardly important. In the Senate, Robert A. Taft will lead his party, anyhow.

It has been suggested that wisdom lies in giving this office temporarily to Senator William Knowland of California, who belongs neither to Taft nor Eisenhower and who is being courted by both. Senator Knowland is independent and knowledgeable and would be acceptable to the Taft group, although the Eisenhower contingent and the CIO prefer Saltonstall.

It just goes to show that in a free society things do happen that the politicians cannot control. Efforts to realign the parties continue as though that were within the realm of possibility. Conversations on the subject are interminable and each conversationalist has a new and brilliant gimmick to get around the organizational and legalistic handicaps.

What seems to have been forgotten is that the United States remains a federation of 48 sovereign states, each one of which controls the election within that state. To many citizens, the state and local election is as important as the national election.

Furthermore, senators and representatives are not elected on a national but a state level. The citizen votes for them to represent him in the federal government but he votes for them as state personalities. New York is represented, for instance, in the United States Senate by Irving Ives and Herbert Lehman, local characters, who could not be elected to anything, say, in Tennessee or Texas. Similarly, such a person as Wayne Morse could not carry Ohio where he would not fit, he being more suited to the British parliament as a back-bencher for the Labor party.

The individualistic character of political personalities in this country makes realignment difficult. For instance, Anthony Eden, over in the mother country, has loyally waited for Winston Churchill to step down, to get out of the way. But Winston stays on, frustrating the aforesaid Anthony's hopes of being prime minister.

In this country, a politician so situated would, soon enough, try to get from under, perhaps projecting himself as an extremely suitable candidate. He would travel the land delivering speeches on every conceivable subject, at first slightly and in time fully divergent from the position of his leader. His hope would be that, in time, his leader would be fouled up and he would take his place.

In our system, this is not considered disloyal either to party or individual. It is part of our individualistic, competitive spirit. Actually, in the present situation two men are projecting themselves in the hope that the vacancy, which must eventually be caused by Dean Acheson, will fall to one of them. Each hopes the other will become attorney general.

All this is called politics, which I am constantly being told by those who pretend to understand it; nobody else does. It is amazing how many men in Washington know that nobody else knows as much as they do. They remind me of a German physician I knew in China who built a huge practice by the simple device:

"There are only six men in the world who understand this sickness. Most people die of it. The leading one is Dr. Hotziklotz, but he is in Vienna. I am his favorite pupil, therefore, I know the cure. The other four are scattered over the face of the earth. So only I can cure you."

Whereupon he gave the patient a shot of morphine—and the pain went away. It was a miracle.

Competing Medical Plans

Senator Taft was the main speaker before the house of delegates of the American Medical Association yesterday at Los Angeles. At that time he put on record his latest ideas on the Truman plan of compulsory health insurance and his own medical care plan.

The administration plan would provide complete medical, dental, hospital, drug, nursing and auxiliary services for all persons covered by the Social Security system and their immediate families. It would be financed by a pay-roll tax of 1½ per cent each on employer and employe on the first $4,800 of annual earnings, plus a federal contribution of ½ per cent of pay rolls during the first five years and 1 per cent during the next three years.

The Taft plan, as embodied in bills introduced in each Congress since the President first presented his plan in 1945, would provide free medical, dental and hospital services to indigent persons and to all others not able to pay all of the costs. It calls for appropriations of $1¼ billion over a five-year period, which would be matched by state funds. To provide the medical care, states could pay premiums to voluntary health insurance associations or make direct payments to private or public agencies.

Taft calls his plan "an American plan, based on assistance to the needy, liberty to the individual, and a free medical profession." The President says his plan is the only one he knows of that will provide adequate medical care for the American people. "I intend to keep right on working for that," he said last June 22, "as long as I am President of the United States and also after I get through being President of the United States."

The President is expected again to call for prepaid medical insurance when Congress meets in January. However, as an immediate objective, he may press a proposal advanced last June 25 by Social Security Administrator Ewing. It was then announced that legislation to carry out Ewing's idea would be laid before Congress before adjournment of the 1951 session but it wasn't and there is some suspicion that concrete presentation is being withheld for the election year 1952.

Ewing suggested that free hospitalization benefits for persons over 65 be added to present benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance system. While this program would cost $200 million in its first year of operation, Ewing said the outlay could be met from present old-age insurance funds. Because of the country's growing concern for welfare of the aged, and because there would be no immediate increase in payroll taxes, the plan has an undoubted appeal. Said Ewing: "It is difficult for me to see how anyone with a heart can oppose this thing."

While, the Ewing plan would not enable "all Americans to pay for the medical care they need," as the President has said compulsory insurance would do, it would meet the hospital expenses (up to 60 days a year) of some five million persons. Opponents of compulsory medical insurance see in it "an entering wedge for socialized medicine."

The Taft plan would give more extensive benefits to many of the same persons who would receive hospitalization under the Ewing plan, but it is condemned by the administration as "a system of poor-man's medicine involving a means test." A substitute for both the Taft plan and the administration plan of compulsory medical insurance, proposed by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), would give federal-state subsidies to voluntary health insurance associations, with patients charged on the basis of their incomes. The difference between these payments and costs of service would be made up by the federal-state grants.

Guided And Misguided

According to a State Department announcement, the Dominican Republic will be a big help in the development of guided missiles. At Ciudad Trujillo, the capital of the little Caribbean country, an agreement has been signed permitting the United States to set up gear to track and control missiles launched in Florida, 1,000 miles away.

This announcement informs the Soviet Union of something it would learn anyway, if it does not already know all the details. But though high fences are built around the control-stations and the gear itself is guarded against unauthorized view, what is the point in an official U. S. communique about it?

Several weeks ago high Army brass ordered flunkies to San Francisco from Washington to threaten a newspaper for printing a story about an Army canine training project. The Reds are not supposed to know the Army has dogs, but Washington will gladly tell them all about this country's guided missiles.

The same day this announcement was made, the Radio Corporation of America came up with news, too. David Sarnoff, chairman of the board, is reported to have developed a complex means of detecting enemy missiles. It involves picket aircraft equipped with television transmitters to scan radar scopes and relay the pictures to intelligence centers.

Have the Soviet scientists a Sarnoff to figure stuff like that? Maybe so. But have they perfected or begun to work on gear to intercept signals guiding a missile and to flash back, in the same channel, signals misguiding it to its own destruction?

That's what RCA says the Sarnoff patents include. Many persons remember how hush-hush even the name radar was until the last big war was well advanced.

Perhaps this news is calculated to awe the Moscow Reds. Or it might be put out for domestic consumption to take the people's minds off other news originating in Washington in a steady stream.

50 Years Of Nobel Prizes

Monday, December 10, marks the 50th anniversary of the first grant of a Nobel prize, shared by a Swiss and a Frenchman for efforts for peace. The United States has received 11 of these Nobel peace awards, more than any other nation. The 11 went to—

Theodore Roosevelt in 1906; Elihu Root in 1912; Woodrow Wilson in 1919; Charles G. Dawes in 1925; Frank B. Kellogg in 1929; Nicholas M. Butler and Jane Addams in 1931; Cordell Hull in 1945; John R. Mott and Emily G. Balch in 1946; Ralph J. Bunche in 1950. In 1947 American and British Quaker groups shared the peace award.

Americans have been at the top, or near the top, also in the prizes for medicine and for physics. Americans have lagged behind nationals of other countries in the other two categories of Nobel awards: chemistry and literature.

Alfred Nobel was a Swede who created an endowment for these annual prizes from a fortune in his dynamite cartel. The source of his wealth has always seemed a little ironical in connection with a peace award. Also ironical is the fact that the world has much poorer prospects for peace today than when that first Nobel peace prize was awarded half a century ago.

The Adolescent Era

Most parents are self-conscious about their teen-aged youngsters who are awkward, unpredictable, and different. In many respects they are neither children nor grown ups. Most adults, rather than attempting to understand the behavior of the boys and girls in this age group, are inclined to shrug and say "adolescence" and let it go at that.

In many foreign countries the youngster of 14 to 15 goes to work. In some nations, even marriage is allowed at this tender age and the youngsters start rearing a family. In America, they are still boys and girls—at least, in the eyes of the law and in the hearts of the parents. But our customs have not changed Mother Nature and despite how we feel about it she effects the physical changes indicative to manhood and womanhood.

Psychological changes also occur, which make the period one of the most trying in life. Some of the controversy stems from the age-old controversy between the generations. The parents consider the son or daughter too young and the children consider the father and mother too old. The parents have all they can do to guide the child thru this interval and in some instances it may be necessary to limit the number of hours of work and play to prevent the youngster from burning the candle at both ends. It is fitting that our young people develop independence and stability but it is better that this be done in places with some moral and religious influence rather than on the street and in roving gangs.

Most boys and girls survive adolescence and there is no specific answer to problem cases. Children are as different as grownups and what might be said of Bob is not applicable to Sandra. One of the best solutions stems from a New York institution which, more than a decade ago, established an adolescent clinic for girls. The personnel at the clinic act as the third party and help the parents to understand what can be expected of the girl and vice versa. All angles are investigated, varying from the mental status of the young woman to her special talents and capabilities. Her difficulties are given a thoro airing.

In some cases the parents are at fault; in others, a brother or sister. Overcrowded conditions in the home, lack of privacy, or inadequate social outlets also produce conflicts. Now and then the teenager is misbehaving because she feels she is not being treated like a grownup or that she no longer is loved or trusted. Girls this age have been known to balk when the mothers insist that they act or dress in a manner different from their companions. Parents who forget that adolescence is a transitional period are courting trouble. Many youngsters worry because of the physical changes, or lack of them, and this makes them seem preoccupied or overly boisterous. Others have made a mountain out of a molehill because of acne; or they are concerned about obseity or menstrual irregularities.

War clouds have a disturbing influence, particularly on boys because the future is so uncertain. The impact may not be felt for some years because most young men welcome adventure and are indifferent to what they are losing in the way of of an education or home associations. But when they come to the realization of what has been missed they are likely to be bitter against those who are responsible. Our country loses also because one of the worst features of taking these youngsters out of their normal environment is that it breaks them of the habit of reading, thinking, and discussing the rational principles of everyday affairs.

STERILIZING CLOTHING

Mrs. W. writes: Will the washing and ironing of cotton dresses make them germ free? This clothing was worn by a woman who took care of a person with pneumonia.

REPLY

Yes—free of pneumonia germs.

BURN TREATMENT

Mrs. A. R. writes: What is the best home treatment of small burns? What do you think of ice applications?

REPLY

The best way to handle a small burn is to wash the area well with soap and water and cover with a sterile bandage. Cold applications may ease distress but I would not recommend placing ice directly on the burned skin.

ALKALIZE

Mrs. R. writes: How can distress induced by acid urine be relieved?

REPLY

Burning can be relieved by taking an alkali such as sodium bicarbonate or citrocarbonate.

RIB PAIN

L. T. writes: Could pain along both sides of the ribs, which occurs only on going to bed, indicate liver trouble?

REPLY

This is possible but bowel spasm or spinal arthritis are more likely to be responsible for the discomfort you describe.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Navy Refuses To Help Air Force Combat Russian MIGs; Truman Advisers Divided On McGrath Ouster; Merry-Go-Round To Test Political Sentiment

WASHINGTON—The Navy has taken an unusual stand regarding the air warfare which is getting more and more intense over Korea. It has turned down a request from General Otto Weyland, Air Force commander in the Far East, that Navy jets help out the Air Force in combating Russian MIGs.

With increasing Communist strength in the air, and with the Air Force sometimes badly outnumbered in battling Russian MIGs, General Weyland requested help from the Navy's carrier-based jet fighters.

However, despite the fact that there is supposed to be armed services unification, the Navy refused. Official reason was that Navy carriers were outside the fighting range.

Air Force officers point out, however, that the Navy used to fly its fighter planes as far north as the Yalu River when there weren't many MIGs in the area; so presumably it could do so again. They also feel that for one branch of the service to refuse help to another branch in wartime—especially when badly outnumbered—is anything but unification. In fact, they use words far less refined.

Air Force pilots who sometimes go into battle against superior Communist odds believe the Navy is trying to hide the fact that its jets are inferior to the MIGs. Since the Navy specializes in fighters, and not long ago boasted the best jet fighter plane in the world, this is a bitter pill to swallow.

Navy pilots today are among the best in the world, but apparently planes haven't kept up with either the Air Force or the enemy. As a result only two MIGs have been shot down by the Navy during the Korean War. One was bagged by a Navy Panther jet some time ago, the other by a Navy pilot who, however, flew an Air Force Sabre jet.

President Truman's advisers are split down the seam on a bold move to oust Attorney General Howard McGrath and name crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver to clean up the Justice Department.

This proposal was pushed backstage by Averell Harriman, who has been on speaking trips out of Washington and knows how deeply the corruption issue is hurting; also by usually cautious White House Counsel Charlie Murphy, and younger staff members.

Their argument with the President is: "The investigations are not going to stop with Internal Revenue and RFC, but will go into Alien Property Custodian, Surplus Property, and possibly the federal judiciary right up to the Supreme Court. The American people won't be satisfied unless the administration cleans house boldly and dramatically. A sure-fire way to regain public confidence is to name Senator Kefauver as attorney general, giving him complete authority to prosecute, no matter who is hurt."

Mr. Truman seems to like the idea and has been saying privately: "I've always been loyal to my friends. But they haven't been fair to me."

On the other side, a powerful White House force, Matt Connelly, who sits next to the President and makes all his appointments, is more than cool. Connelly vigorously defends his fellow Irishman in the Justice Department and has been digging up political friends of Mr. Truman to talk up McGrath and talk down his ouster.

The decisive factor and still on the fence is the forthright new national Democratic chairman, Frank McKinney. McKinney owes his appointment to Connelly, but agrees with Harriman that corruption is the issue and requires bold steps by the administration.

In a recent talk with President Truman, McKinney told him, in effect: "You don't have any obligation to any official who has been indiscreet or corrupt. They've pulled the rug out from under you."

Merry-Go-Round

People not on the political inside seldom realize how much backstage wire pulling goes into the nomination of a Presidential candidate. To a considerable extent this lessens the chance of the American people to elect a President. For, while they can elect, not many can nominate.

This frequently leaves the selection of the Presidential nominee a matter of barter and backstage lobbying by the party bosses.

This was true when Bob Hannegan and the big-city bosses finagled in the Blackstone Hotel to pick Truman for vice president in 1944. It was also true of the famous smoke-filled room conference in the same Blackstone Hotel which picked Harding in 1920. And it was likewise true that most Democratic delegates in 1948 were roped and hog-tied for Truman before they ever took the train to Philadelphia.

Today, Taft scouts have been combing every state in the union, pledging delegates six months in advance. Some of these may represent the people of their state, some may not. Some, may realize that world conditions, the threat of war, the hopes for peace, can change the world in six months, and with them can change the Presidential needs of the nation.

Therefore, to sound out the true political sentiment of the American people through the 600 newspapers publishing the Washington Merry-Go-Round, this column is conducting a post-card poll on the Republican candidates. The Democratic poll will come later.) To vote, address a post card to the GOP candidate of your choice, Box 1952, Washington 13, D. C., and tell him: "I'm for you in 1952."

Results will be announced from time to time in this column.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It looks like a congressional inquiry will be made into the mix-up over the news dispatches last week which said an informal cease-fire had developed in Korea and which were denied by President Truman, who blamed the war correspondents for allegedly faking the news.

"Where there's smoke, there's fire" is an old saying but never more applicable than to the many cases in which officials give the impression that reports which they deny have no basis whatsoever, implying that the whole thing is usually invented by the press.

The correspondents, especially in wartime, are sometimes mistaken but often they are misled unintentionally by legitimate news sources. Mr. Truman at Key West referred a few days ago to what he called a "fake" report of an armistice just before the actual ceasefire which ended World War I. While the incident is now more than 33 years old and will be remembered only by those who saw an amazing demonstration of enthusiasm and jubilation in America from cost to coast, it arose out of an erroneous report in which the government itself bungled the news by delaying the publication of a correction.

Howard Tells Story

This writer asked Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, who sent the original message about the armistice from Brest on November 7, 1918, to tell the story. For it never has been revealed how Washington officials were really responsible—as they were in the Korean episode of last week—for the circumstances that gave rise to an erroneous piece of news.

"I was informed," writes Mr. Howard in a letter to this correspondent, "by both Colonel House and the then Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, that messages (saying there had been an armistice signed) virtually identical to the one received by Admiral Wilson at Brest were sent to Secretary of State Lansing by Ambassador Sharp at Paris, and to Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels by Major Warburton and Captain Jackson, the Army and the Navy attaches at the Paris embassy.

"Colonel House told me that as soon as he learned of the messages which had been sent to Washington he got in touch with Ambassador Sharp and told him that the information was erroneous and that as a result the messages sent to State, War and Navy were promptly 'killed' from Paris. Captain Jackson also wired a 'kill' to Admiral Wilson, who was out of his office at the moment the correction arrived. As soon as his office contacted Admiral Wilson, the latter dispatched a messenger to me, and I sent a 'kill' on my original bulletin something less than two hours after the bulletin had been filed.

Held Up By Navy

"Acting on orders from Secretary Daniels' office my correcting story to the United Press was held up by the Navy censorship in New York and forwarded directly to the Navy Department in Washington, where Secretary Daniels ordered it held up until released by him. Daniels later told me that he ordered the correction held up until he could receive a reply from Admiral Wilson. Meantime, as I understand it, Daniels was out of Washington on November 7th, but more or less in contact with his office by phone.

"About 8 o'clock on the morning of November 8th, a former Scripps' employe, the late Harper Leech, at his death a financial writer on a Chicago newspaper, called my associate in New York, Bill Hawkins, and at the risk of being court martialled, told Bill of my correction which was still being held by the Secretary of the Navy's office in Washington. Bill called Bob Bender, the then Washington manager of the United Press, who in turn got in touch with George Creel of the Committee on Public Information and Joe Tumulty (President Wilson's secretary), and as a result of Bender's explanation of the situation, Tumulty wrote a note to the Secretary of the Navy's office stating it was the desire of the President that my message of correction be released in fairness to me and to the United Press.

"In consequence of Tumulty's action, the Navy released at 10 a. m., November 8th, my second message 'killing' the original bulletin. This was the correction which but for the action of Secretary Daniels would have been in the office of every United Press client in the country by 2 p. m. EST, November 7th. My original armistice bulletin was received in New York a little before noon."

The foregoing explanation of what did set off the premature celebration in 1918 concerns a very sensational event, but the background in many another case since shows that censorship delays and lack of coordination in Washington result in many instances in news reports which are sent out in good faith in the instance but with which delayed revisions never catch up.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

We Must Buy Time

BAGDAD

As a practical matter, real peace and stability in this area are for the present impossible. This rather dreary conclusion stands out after a tour of Israel and the Arab states. All we can hope to do is to buy time here. But we must buy time.

The reporter in these parts is impelled to put these words in capital letters, the poor substitute for a shout on the printed page —WE MUST BUY TIME HERE. If we do not, the whole Middle East will go the way of China, and then there will be no way to avert the final, awful penalty of a third world war. For the Arab states, like China before its capture, are a sort of inflammable mush, politically, economically, and militarily.

If we are to buy time, the Arab states must somehow be strengthened. Otherwise, the mushy vacuum will sooner or later be filled, as in the case of China. The Arab states must be strengthened militarily, although no Arab army is going to be an important military factor, in case of war, for a very long time to come. We must strengthen Arab military forces simply in order to give these states the kind of internal authority and cohesion which no military mush can have, and also in order to insure a minimum of cooperation with the West if war comes.

Lever Of Power Needed

The Arab states must be strengthened economically, if mass misery is not to cause the whole Middle East to fall like rotten fruit into the Kremlin's garden. And, finally, the Arab states must also be strengthened because the United States now lacks what the United States desperately needs—a lever of power in this area.

The simple conclusion that the Arab states must be strengthened is shared by virtually every objective observer in the Middle East, there is nothing simple about the Middle East. And its just here that all sorts of nightmarish complications enter the Middle Eastern political equation. To take a few examples—the erosion of the power of our British ally, the universal Middle Eastern Anglophobia, and the corrupt and feudal social system in the Moslem states, which would probably cut to a fraction of its dollar value any serious program of economic aid.

But by far the most nightmarish of all complications is the relationship between Israel and the Arab states. For if one day the Arabs believe that they have a reasonable chance of success, they are quite likely again to attack Israel. This is not "Zionist propaganda." It is the simple truth. No one who has observed the Arab states at first hand and with an open mind can doubt that the danger exists. Both for reasons which are perfectly understandable from the Arab point of view, and for other reasons which are buried in the mists of the Arab subconscious, Arabs of all classes genuinely fear the state of Israel. They share a universal emotional conviction that sooner or later Israel will attempt—with the support of the United States—to conquer and rule the Arab world.

This fear of forty million people for a million and a half people may seem absurd. Yet it is real, and as of today perhaps not altogether irrational. For Israel is certainly as nationalist-minded as any country in the Middle East, and the Israeli military leaders themselves believe that the Israeli army could march to Damascus tomorrow, and, the day after, as near to Cairo as the British would let them get.

Cruel Dilemma

At any rate, whether or not Arab fears are logical, they exist. And because the Arabs see Israel as a mortal danger, they are determined sooner or later, in one way or another, to eliminate the danger. Leaving to one side all moral or humane considerations, another Israel-Arab war would spell disaster to Western interests. Hence the danger inherent in strengthening the Arab states, and hence the cruel dilemma which confronts American policy in the Middle East.

So far, the United States has tried to deal with this dilemma by adopting a policy of "one for the mole, and one for the badger." Sixty-five million dollars, for example, is currently assigned to the tiny state of Israel, and precisely the same sum to the whole vast Arab world which has the oil, the immense majority of the population, and the vital strategic area. This is worse than useless, merely confirming the Arabs in their bitter suspicion that the United States will sooner or later abandon the whole Middle East in favor of Israel.

This is precisely what is in fact advocated by those who hold the "bastion of democracy" theory, according to which Western strategic planning should be based exclusively on Israel. This is fatal nonsense. There is not the slightest doubt, in the minds of those who know this area best, that to adopt this policy would be to throw the whole Middle East, once and for all, into the Soviet bloc. There is, in truth, no sure way out of the dilemma. There is only one risky escape exit. This is to make it far more clear than it has yet been made that any aggression on either side will end in final, fatal failure. Only in this way can the inflamed fears of both Arabs and Israelis be dealt with. And only thus can the risk of strengthening the Arab states be undertaken. The risk is great. The results are far from sure. Yet, if we are to buy time here, the Arab states must be decisively strengthened. And it cannot be said too often—we must buy time here.

Political Miracles

The death of Senator Kenneth Wherry, minority leader of the Senate, makes sharper the division within the Republican party between the Taft and Eisenhower adherents. If seniority prevails, Wherry's position should be taken by Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts, an Eisenhower adherent. Senator Saltonstall has been an internationalist, a liberal, and close to the CIO, which is influential in Massachusetts. He is a man of dignity if not of stature; he is respected if not admired.

The Taft men are not likely to accept Saltonstall, although he is not politically as objectionable as Senator Wayne Morse would be. Many feel that Senator Byrd or Governor James Byrnes would be more suited for Republican leadership than Senator Saltonstall.

The logical minority leader would be Senator Owen Brewster, a New Englander of rare political skill and party devotion. Ordinarily, his leadership would be acceptable, but now the Eisenhower forces are likely to oppose Brewster lest they add another notch to Taft's gun.

Republicans generally do not want this sort of quarrel before the convention. It is a quarrel over nothing, for as of the moment the minority leadership is hardly important. In the Senate, Robert A. Taft will lead his party, anyhow.

It has been suggested that wisdom lies in giving this office temporarily to Senator William Knowland of California, who belongs neither to Taft nor Eisenhower and who is being courted by both. Senator Knowland is independent and knowledgeable and would be acceptable to the Taft group, although the Eisenhower contingent and the CIO prefer Saltonstall.

It just goes to show that in a free society things do happen that the politicians cannot control. Efforts to realign the parties continue as though that were within the realm of possibility. Conversations on the subject are interminable and each conversationalist has a new and brilliant gimmick to get around the organizational and legalistic handicaps.

What seems to have been forgotten is that the United States remains a federation of 48 sovereign states, each one of which controls the election within that state. To many citizens, the state and local election is as important as the national election.

Furthermore, senators and representatives are not elected on a national but a state level. The citizen votes for them to represent him in the federal government but he votes for them as state personalities. New York is represented, for instance, in the United States Senate by Irving Ives and Herbert Lehman, local characters, who could not be elected to anything, say, in Tennessee or Texas. Similarly, such a person as Wayne Morse could not carry Ohio where he would not fit, he being more suited to the British parliament as a back-bencher for the Labor party.

The individualistic character of political personalities in this country makes realignment difficult. For instance, Anthony Eden, over in the mother country, has loyally waited for Winston Churchill to step down, to get out of the way. But Winston stays on, frustrating the aforesaid Anthony's hopes of being prime minister.

In this country, a politician so situated would, soon enough, try to get from under, perhaps projecting himself as an extremely suitable candidate. He would travel the land delivering speeches on every conceivable subject, at first slightly and in time fully divergent from the position of his leader. His hope would be that, in time, his leader would be fouled up and he would take his place.

In our system, this is not considered disloyal either to party or individual. It is part of our individualistic, competitive spirit. Actually, in the present situation two men are projecting themselves in the hope that the vacancy, which must eventually be caused by Dean Acheson, will fall to one of them. Each hopes the other will become attorney general.

All this is called politics, which I am constantly being told by those who pretend to understand it; nobody else does. It is amazing how many men in Washington know that nobody else knows as much as they do. They remind me of a German physician I knew in China who built a huge practice by the simple device:

"There are only six men in the world who understand this sickness. Most people die of it. The leading one is Dr. Hotziklotz, but he is in Vienna. I am his favorite pupil, therefore, I know the cure. The other four are scattered over the face of the earth. So only I can cure you."

Whereupon he gave the patient a shot of morphine—and the pain went away. It was a miracle.

Competing Medical Plans

Senator Taft was the main speaker before the house of delegates of the American Medical Association yesterday at Los Angeles. At that time he put on record his latest ideas on the Truman plan of compulsory health insurance and his own medical care plan.

The administration plan would provide complete medical, dental, hospital, drug, nursing and auxiliary services for all persons covered by the Social Security system and their immediate families. It would be financed by a pay-roll tax of 1½ per cent each on employer and employe on the first $4,800 of annual earnings, plus a federal contribution of ½ per cent of pay rolls during the first five years and 1 per cent during the next three years.

The Taft plan, as embodied in bills introduced in each Congress since the President first presented his plan in 1945, would provide free medical, dental and hospital services to indigent persons and to all others not able to pay all of the costs. It calls for appropriations of $1¼ billion over a five-year period, which would be matched by state funds. To provide the medical care, states could pay premiums to voluntary health insurance associations or make direct payments to private or public agencies.

Taft calls his plan "an American plan, based on assistance to the needy, liberty to the individual, and a free medical profession." The President says his plan is the only one he knows of that will provide adequate medical care for the American people. "I intend to keep right on working for that," he said last June 22, "as long as I am President of the United States and also after I get through being President of the United States."

The President is expected again to call for prepaid medical insurance when Congress meets in January. However, as an immediate objective, he may press a proposal advanced last June 25 by Social Security Administrator Ewing. It was then announced that legislation to carry out Ewing's idea would be laid before Congress before adjournment of the 1951 session but it wasn't and there is some suspicion that concrete presentation is being withheld for the election year 1952.

Ewing suggested that free hospitalization benefits for persons over 65 be added to present benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance system. While this program would cost $200 million in its first year of operation, Ewing said the outlay could be met from present old-age insurance funds. Because of the country's growing concern for welfare of the aged, and because there would be no immediate increase in payroll taxes, the plan has an undoubted appeal. Said Ewing: "It is difficult for me to see how anyone with a heart can oppose this thing."

While, the Ewing plan would not enable "all Americans to pay for the medical care they need," as the President has said compulsory insurance would do, it would meet the hospital expenses (up to 60 days a year) of some five million persons. Opponents of compulsory medical insurance see in it "an entering wedge for socialized medicine."

The Taft plan would give more extensive benefits to many of the same persons who would receive hospitalization under the Ewing plan, but it is condemned by the administration as "a system of poor-man's medicine involving a means test." A substitute for both the Taft plan and the administration plan of compulsory medical insurance, proposed by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), would give federal-state subsidies to voluntary health insurance associations, with patients charged on the basis of their incomes. The difference between these payments and costs of service would be made up by the federal-state grants.

Guided And Misguided

According to a State Department announcement, the Dominican Republic will be a big help in the development of guided missiles. At Ciudad Trujillo, the capital of the little Caribbean country, an agreement has been signed permitting the United States to set up gear to track and control missiles launched in Florida, 1,000 miles away.

This announcement informs the Soviet Union of something it would learn anyway, if it does not already know all the details. But though high fences are built around the control-stations and the gear itself is guarded against unauthorized view, what is the point in an official U. S. communique about it?

Several weeks ago high Army brass ordered flunkies to San Francisco from Washington to threaten a newspaper for printing a story about an Army canine training project. The Reds are not supposed to know the Army has dogs, but Washington will gladly tell them all about this country's guided missiles.

The same day this announcement was made, the Radio Corporation of America came up with news, too. David Sarnoff, chairman of the board, is reported to have developed a complex means of detecting enemy missiles. It involves picket aircraft equipped with television transmitters to scan radar scopes and relay the pictures to intelligence centers.

Have the Soviet scientists a Sarnoff to figure stuff like that? Maybe so. But have they perfected or begun to work on gear to intercept signals guiding a missile and to flash back, in the same channel, signals misguiding it to its own destruction?

That's what RCA says the Sarnoff patents include. Many persons remember how hush-hush even the name radar was until the last big war was well advanced.

Perhaps this news is calculated to awe the Moscow Reds. Or it might be put out for domestic consumption to take the people's minds off other news originating in Washington in a steady stream.

50 Years Of Nobel Prizes

Monday, December 10, marks the 50th anniversary of the first grant of a Nobel prize, shared by a Swiss and a Frenchman for efforts for peace. The United States has received 11 of these Nobel peace awards, more than any other nation. The 11 went to—

Theodore Roosevelt in 1906; Elihu Root in 1912; Woodrow Wilson in 1919; Charles G. Dawes in 1925; Frank B. Kellogg in 1929; Nicholas M. Butler and Jane Addams in 1931; Cordell Hull in 1945; John R. Mott and Emily G. Balch in 1946; Ralph J. Bunche in 1950. In 1947 American and British Quaker groups shared the peace award.

Americans have been at the top, or near the top, also in the prizes for medicine and for physics. Americans have lagged behind nationals of other countries in the other two categories of Nobel awards: chemistry and literature.

Alfred Nobel was a Swede who created an endowment for these annual prizes from a fortune in his dynamite cartel. The source of his wealth has always seemed a little ironical in connection with a peace award. Also ironical is the fact that the world has much poorer prospects for peace today than when that first Nobel peace prize was awarded half a century ago.

The Adolescent Era

Most parents are self-conscious about their teen-aged youngsters who are awkward, unpredictable, and different. In many respects they are neither children nor grown ups. Most adults, rather than attempting to understand the behavior of the boys and girls in this age group, are inclined to shrug and say "adolescence" and let it go at that.

In many foreign countries the youngster of 14 to 15 goes to work. In some nations, even marriage is allowed at this tender age and the youngsters start rearing a family. In America, they are still boys and girls—at least, in the eyes of the law and in the hearts of the parents. But our customs have not changed Mother Nature and despite how we feel about it she effects the physical changes indicative to manhood and womanhood.

Psychological changes also occur, which make the period one of the most trying in life. Some of the controversy stems from the age-old controversy between the generations. The parents consider the son or daughter too young and the children consider the father and mother too old. The parents have all they can do to guide the child thru this interval and in some instances it may be necessary to limit the number of hours of work and play to prevent the youngster from burning the candle at both ends. It is fitting that our young people develop independence and stability but it is better that this be done in places with some moral and religious influence rather than on the street and in roving gangs.

Most boys and girls survive adolescence and there is no specific answer to problem cases. Children are as different as grownups and what might be said of Bob is not applicable to Sandra. One of the best solutions stems from a New York institution which, more than a decade ago, established an adolescent clinic for girls. The personnel at the clinic act as the third party and help the parents to understand what can be expected of the girl and vice versa. All angles are investigated, varying from the mental status of the young woman to her special talents and capabilities. Her difficulties are given a thoro airing.

In some cases the parents are at fault; in others, a brother or sister. Overcrowded conditions in the home, lack of privacy, or inadequate social outlets also produce conflicts. Now and then the teenager is misbehaving because she feels she is not being treated like a grownup or that she no longer is loved or trusted. Girls this age have been known to balk when the mothers insist that they act or dress in a manner different from their companions. Parents who forget that adolescence is a transitional period are courting trouble. Many youngsters worry because of the physical changes, or lack of them, and this makes them seem preoccupied or overly boisterous. Others have made a mountain out of a molehill because of acne; or they are concerned about obseity or menstrual irregularities.

War clouds have a disturbing influence, particularly on boys because the future is so uncertain. The impact may not be felt for some years because most young men welcome adventure and are indifferent to what they are losing in the way of of an education or home associations. But when they come to the realization of what has been missed they are likely to be bitter against those who are responsible. Our country loses also because one of the worst features of taking these youngsters out of their normal environment is that it breaks them of the habit of reading, thinking, and discussing the rational principles of everyday affairs.

STERILIZING CLOTHING

Mrs. W. writes: Will the washing and ironing of cotton dresses make them germ free? This clothing was worn by a woman who took care of a person with pneumonia.

REPLY

Yes—free of pneumonia germs.

BURN TREATMENT

Mrs. A. R. writes: What is the best home treatment of small burns? What do you think of ice applications?

REPLY

The best way to handle a small burn is to wash the area well with soap and water and cover with a sterile bandage. Cold applications may ease distress but I would not recommend placing ice directly on the burned skin.

ALKALIZE

Mrs. R. writes: How can distress induced by acid urine be relieved?

REPLY

Burning can be relieved by taking an alkali such as sodium bicarbonate or citrocarbonate.

RIB PAIN

L. T. writes: Could pain along both sides of the ribs, which occurs only on going to bed, indicate liver trouble?

This is possible but bowel spasm or spinal arthritis are more likely to be responsible for the discomfort you describe.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Navy Refuses To Help Air Force Combat Russian MIGs; Truman Advisers Divided On McGrath Ouster; Merry-Go-Round To Test Political Sentiment

WASHINGTON—The Navy has taken an unusual stand regarding the air warfare which is getting more and more intense over Korea. It has turned down a request from General Otto Weyland, Air Force commander in the Far East, that Navy jets help out the Air Force in combating Russian MIGs.

With increasing Communist strength in the air, and with the Air Force sometimes badly outnumbered in battling Russian MIGs, General Weyland requested help from the Navy's carrier-based jet fighters.

However, despite the fact that there is supposed to be armed services unification, the Navy refused. Official reason was that Navy carriers were outside the fighting range.

Air Force officers point out, however, that the Navy used to fly its fighter planes as far north as the Yalu River when there weren't many MIGs in the area; so presumably it could do so again. They also feel that for one branch of the service to refuse help to another branch in wartime—especially when badly outnumbered—is anything but unification. In fact, they use words far less refined.

Air Force pilots who sometimes go into battle against superior Communist odds believe the Navy is trying to hide the fact that its jets are inferior to the MIGs. Since the Navy specializes in fighters, and not long ago boasted the best jet fighter plane in the world, this is a bitter pill to swallow.

Navy pilots today are among the best in the world, but apparently planes haven't kept up with either the Air Force or the enemy. As a result only two MIGs have been shot down by the Navy during the Korean War. One was bagged by a Navy Panther jet some time ago, the other by a Navy pilot who, however, flew an Air Force Sabre jet.

President Truman's advisers are split down the seam on a bold move to oust Attorney General Howard McGrath and name crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver to clean up the Justice Department.

This proposal was pushed backstage by Averell Harriman, who has been on speaking trips out of Washington and knows how deeply the corruption issue is hurting; also by usually cautious White House Counsel Charlie Murphy, and younger staff members.

Their argument with the President is: "The investigations are not going to stop with Internal Revenue and RFC, but will go into Alien Property Custodian, Surplus Property, and possibly the federal judiciary right up to the Supreme Court. The American people won't be satisfied unless the administration cleans house boldly and dramatically. A sure-fire way to regain public confidence is to name Senator Kefauver as attorney general, giving him complete authority to prosecute, no matter who is hurt."

Mr. Truman seems to like the idea and has been saying privately: "I've always been loyal to my friends. But they haven't been fair to me."

On the other side, a powerful White House force, Matt Connelly, who sits next to the President and makes all his appointments, is more than cool. Connelly vigorously defends his fellow Irishman in the Justice Department and has been digging up political friends of Mr. Truman to talk up McGrath and talk down his ouster.

The decisive factor and still on the fence is the forthright new national Democratic chairman, Frank McKinney. McKinney owes his appointment to Connelly, but agrees with Harriman that corruption is the issue and requires bold steps by the administration.

In a recent talk with President Truman, McKinney told him, in effect: "You don't have any obligation to any official who has been indiscreet or corrupt. They've pulled the rug out from under you."

Merry-Go-Round

People not on the political inside seldom realize how much backstage wire pulling goes into the nomination of a Presidential candidate. To a considerable extent this lessens the chance of the American people to elect a President. For, while they can elect, not many can nominate.

This frequently leaves the selection of the Presidential nominee a matter of barter and backstage lobbying by the party bosses.

This was true when Bob Hannegan and the big-city bosses finagled in the Blackstone Hotel to pick Truman for vice president in 1944. It was also true of the famous smoke-filled room conference in the same Blackstone Hotel which picked Harding in 1920. And it was likewise true that most Democratic delegates in 1948 were roped and hog-tied for Truman before they ever took the train to Philadelphia.

Today, Taft scouts have been combing every state in the union, pledging delegates six months in advance. Some of these may represent the people of their state, some may not. Some, may realize that world conditions, the threat of war, the hopes for peace, can change the world in six months, and with them can change the Presidential needs of the nation.

Therefore, to sound out the true political sentiment of the American people through the 600 newspapers publishing the Washington Merry-Go-Round, this column is conducting a post-card poll on the Republican candidates. The Democratic poll will come later.) To vote, address a post card to the GOP candidate of your choice, Box 1952, Washington 13, D. C., and tell him: "I'm for you in 1952."

Results will be announced from time to time in this column.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—It looks like a congressional inquiry will be made into the mix-up over the news dispatches last week which said an informal cease-fire had developed in Korea and which were denied by President Truman, who blamed the war correspondents for allegedly faking the news.

"Where there's smoke, there's fire" is an old saying but never more applicable than to the many cases in which officials give the impression that reports which they deny have no basis whatsoever, implying that the whole thing is usually invented by the press.

The correspondents, especially in wartime, are sometimes mistaken but often they are misled unintentionally by legitimate news sources. Mr. Truman at Key West referred a few days ago to what he called a "fake" report of an armistice just before the actual ceasefire which ended World War I. While the incident is now more than 33 years old and will be remembered only by those who saw an amazing demonstration of enthusiasm and jubilation in America from cost to coast, it arose out of an erroneous report in which the government itself bungled the news by delaying the publication of a correction.

Howard Tells Story

This writer asked Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, who sent the original message about the armistice from Brest on November 7, 1918, to tell the story. For it never has been revealed how Washington officials were really responsible—as they were in the Korean episode of last week—for the circumstances that gave rise to an erroneous piece of news.

"I was informed," writes Mr. Howard in a letter to this correspondent, "by both Colonel House and the then Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, that messages (saying there had been an armistice signed) virtually identical to the one received by Admiral Wilson at Brest were sent to Secretary of State Lansing by Ambassador Sharp at Paris, and to Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels by Major Warburton and Captain Jackson, the Army and the Navy attaches at the Paris embassy.

"Colonel House told me that as soon as he learned of the messages which had been sent to Washington he got in touch with Ambassador Sharp and told him that the information was erroneous and that as a result the messages sent to State, War and Navy were promptly 'killed' from Paris. Captain Jackson also wired a 'kill' to Admiral Wilson, who was out of his office at the moment the correction arrived. As soon as his office contacted Admiral Wilson, the latter dispatched a messenger to me, and I sent a 'kill' on my original bulletin something less than two hours after the bulletin had been filed.

Held Up By Navy

"Acting on orders from Secretary Daniels' office my correcting story to the United Press was held up by the Navy censorship in New York and forwarded directly to the Navy Department in Washington, where Secretary Daniels ordered it held up until released by him. Daniels later told me that he ordered the correction held up until he could receive a reply from Admiral Wilson. Meantime, as I understand it, Daniels was out of Washington on November 7th, but more or less in contact with his office by phone.

"About 8 o'clock on the morning of November 8th, a former Scripps' employe, the late Harper Leech, at his death a financial writer on a Chicago newspaper, called my associate in New York, Bill Hawkins, and at the risk of being court martialled, told Bill of my correction which was still being held by the Secretary of the Navy's office in Washington. Bill called Bob Bender, the then Washington manager of the United Press, who in turn got in touch with George Creel of the Committee on Public Information and Joe Tumulty (President Wilson's secretary), and as a result of Bender's explanation of the situation, Tumulty wrote a note to the Secretary of the Navy's office stating it was the desire of the President that my message of correction be released in fairness to me and to the United Press.

"In consequence of Tumulty's action, the Navy released at 10 a. m., November 8th, my second message 'killing' the original bulletin. This was the correction which but for the action of Secretary Daniels would have been in the office of every United Press client in the country by 2 p. m. EST, November 7th. My original armistice bulletin was received in New York a little before noon."

The foregoing explanation of what did set off the premature celebration in 1918 concerns a very sensational event, but the background in many another case since shows that censorship delays and lack of coordination in Washington result in many instances in news reports which are sent out in good faith in the instance but with which delayed revisions never catch up.

We Must Buy Time

BAGDAD

As a practical matter, real peace and stability in this area are for the present impossible. This rather dreary conclusion stands out after a tour of Israel and the Arab states. All we can hope to do is to buy time here. But we must buy time.

The reporter in these parts is impelled to put these words in capital letters, the poor substitute for a shout on the printed page —WE MUST BUY TIME HERE. If we do not, the whole Middle East will go the way of China, and then there will be no way to avert the final, awful penalty of a third world war. For the Arab states, like China before its capture, are a sort of inflammable mush, politically, economically, and militarily.

If we are to buy time, the Arab states must somehow be strengthened. Otherwise; the mushy vacuum will sooner or later be filled, as in the case of China. The Arab states must be strengthened militarily, although no Arab army is going to be an important military factor, in case of war, for a very long time to come. We must strengthen Arab military forces simply in order to give these states the kind of internal authority and cohesion which no military mush can have, and also in order to insure a minimum of cooperation with the West if war comes.

Lever Of Power Needed

The Arab states must be strengthened economically, if mass misery is not to cause the whole Middle East to fall like rotten fruit into the Kremlin's garden. And, finally, the Arab states must also be strengthened because the United States now lacks what the United States desperately needs—a lever of power in this area.

The simple conclusion that the Arab states must be strengthened is shared by virtually every objective observer in the Middle East, there is nothing simple about the Middle East. And its just here that all sorts of nightmarish complications enter the Middle Eastern political equation. To take a few examples—the erosion of the power of our British ally, the universal Middle Eastern Anglophobia, and the corrupt and feudal social system in the Moslem states, which would probably cut to a fraction of its dollar value any serious program of economic aid.

But by far the most nightmarish of all complications is the relationship between Israel and the Arab states. For if one day the Arabs believe that they have a reasonable chance of success, they are quite likely again to attack Israel. This is not "Zionist propaganda." It is the simple truth. No one who has observed the Arab states at first hand and with an open mind can doubt that the danger exists. Both for reasons which are perfectly understandable from the Arab point of view, and for other reasons which are buried in the mists of the Arab subconscious, Arabs of all classes genuinely fear the state of Israel. They share a universal emotional conviction that sooner or later Israel will attempt—with the support of the United States—to conquer and rule the Arab world.

This fear of forty million people for a million and a half people may seem absurd. Yet it is real, and as of today perhaps not altogether irrational. For Israel is certainly as nationalist-minded as any country in the Middle East, and the Israeli military leaders themselves believe that the Israeli army could march to Damascus tomorrow, and the day after, as near to Cairo as the British would let them get.

Cruel Dilemma

At any rate, whether or not Arab fears are logical, they exist. And because the Arabs see Israel as a mortal danger, they are determined sooner or later, in one way or another, to eliminate the danger. Leaving to one side all moral and humane considerations, another Israel-Arab war would spell disaster to Western interests. Hence the danger inherent in strengthening the Arab states, and hence the cruel dilemma which confronts American policy in the Middle East.

So far, the United States has tried to deal with this dilemma by adopting a policy of "one for the mole, and one for the badger." Sixty-five million dollars, for example, currently assigned to the tiny state of Israel, and precisely the same sum to the whole vast Arab world which has the oil, the immense majority of the population, and the vital strategic area. This is worse than useless, merely confirming the Arabs in their bitter suspicion that the United States will sooner or later abandon the whole Middle East in favor of Israel.

This is precisely what is in fact advocated by those who hold the "bastion of democracy" theory, according to which Western strategic planning should be based exclusively on Israel. This is fatal nonsense. There is not the slightest doubt, in the minds of those who know the area best, that to adopt this policy would be to throw the whole Middle East, once and for all, into the Soviet bloc. There is, in truth, only one sure way out of the dilemma. There is only one risky escape exit. That is to make it far more clear than it has yet been made that aggression on either side will end in final, fatal failure. Only in this way can the inflamed fears of both Arabs and Israelis be dealt with. And only thus can the risk of strengthening the Arab states be undertaken. The risk is great. The results are far from sure. Yet, we are to buy time here, the Arab states must be decisively strengthened. And it cannot be said often—we must buy time here.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Political Miracles

The death of Senator Kenneth Wherry, minority leader of the Senate, makes sharper the division within the Republican party between the Taft and Eisenhower adherents. If seniority prevails, Wherry's position should be taken by Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts, an Eisenhower adherent. Senator Saltonstall has been an internationalist, a liberal, and close to the CIO, which is influential in Massachusetts. He is a man of dignity if not of stature; he is respected if not admired.

The Taft men are not likely to accept Saltonstall, although he is not politically as objectionable as Senator Wayne Morse would be. Many feel that Senator Byrd or Governor James Byrnes would be more suited for Republican leadership than Senator Saltonstall.

The logical minority leader would be Senator Owen Brewster, a New Englander of rare political skill and party devotion. Ordinarily, his leadership would be acceptable, but now the Eisenhower forces are likely to oppose Brewster lest they add another notch to Taft's gun.

Republicans generally do not want this sort of quarrel before the convention. It is a quarrel over nothing, for as of the moment the minority leadership is hardly important. In the Senate, Robert A. Taft will lead his party, anyhow.

It has been suggested that wisdom lies in giving this office temporarily to Senator William Knowland of California, who belongs neither to Taft nor Eisenhower and who is being courted by both. Senator Knowland is independent and knowledgeable and would be acceptable to the Taft group, although the Eisenhower contingent and the CIO prefer Saltonstall.

It just goes to show that in a free society things do happen that the politicians cannot control. Efforts to realign the parties continue as though that were within the realm of possibility. Conversations on the subject are interminable and each conversationalist has a new and brilliant gimmick to get around the organizational and legalistic handicaps.

What seems to have been forgotten is that the United States remains a federation of 48 sovereign states, each one of which controls the election within that state. To many citizens, the state and local election is as important as the national election.

Furthermore, senators and representatives are not elected on a national but a state level. The citizen votes for them to represent him in the federal government but he votes for them as state personalities. New York is represented, for instance, in the United States Senate by Irving Ives and Herbert Lehman, local characters, who could not be elected to anything, say, in Tennessee or Texas. Similarly, such a person as Wayne Morse could not carry Ohio where he would not fit, he being more suited to the British parliament as a back-bencher for the Labor party.

The individualistic character of political personalities in this country makes realignment difficult. For instance, Anthony Eden, over in the mother country, has loyally waited for Winston Churchill to step down, to get out of the way. But Winston stays on, frustrating the aforesaid Anthony's hopes of being prime minister.

In this country, a politician so situated would, soon enough, try to get from under, perhaps projecting himself as an extremely suitable candidate. He would travel the land, delivering speeches on every conceivable subject, at first slightly and in time fully divergent from the position of his leader. His hope would be that, in time, his leader would be fouled up and he would take his place.

In our system, this is not considered disloyal either to party or individual. It is part of our individualistic, competitive spirit. Actually, in the present situation two men are projecting themselves in the hope that the vacancy, which must eventually be caused by Dean Acheson, will fall to one of them. Each hopes the other will become attorney general.

All this is called politics which I am constantly being told by those who pretend to understand it; nobody else does. It is amazing how many men in Washington know that nobody else knows as much as they do. They remind me of a German physician I knew in China who built a huge practice by the simple device:

"There are only six men in the world who understand this sickness. Most people die of it. The leading one is Dr. Hotziklotz, but he is in Vienna. I am his favorite pupil, therefore, I know the cure. The other four are scattered over the face of the earth. So only I can cure you."

Whereupon he gave the patient a shot of morphine—and the patient went away. It was a miracle.

City Accepts Hazelwood Bid For Filters

The Mayor and Council yesterday accepted the bid of the George F. Hazelwood Company for construction of additional filters at the Lake Gordon filtration plant.

The bid was for $237,210. Several conferences have been held by the Mayor and Council since November 26 when the bids were opened and after it was found the amount was $83,210 higher than the $154,000 estimated cost.

The bid was accepted unanimously although Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, in a prepared statement, explained why she had cast a "reluctant affirmative vote."

The motion to accept the bid was made by Water Commissioner George H. Tederick and seconded by Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz. Mrs. Roeder asked Tederick before the voting what plans had been made for engineering supervision of the work. Tederick said plans for that will come later.

Tederick in commenting on the project said: "We have an operation at the plant of 12 filters of 1,000,000 gallons each. These are in a worn condition and the repair work should be done on them. With the consumption of daily use at 12,000,000 gallons and consumption in the summertime going above that figure, it is a demand that we have additional filters.

"If something should happen to the filters and pipe, Cumberland would be in a serious condition for the want of water. So, it is not only necessary to have the additional filters but also to have a reserve there for repair work on the old ones.

"We have had our engineer look at the plans and all bids have been given careful consideration. Mr. Hazelwood, a Cumberland resident who operates a reliable firm, gave the low bid and the engineer on the project has gone over all the details and points on the plans and specifications with the Mayor and City Council and has recommended acceptance of that bid.

"Under the present conditions, it is the best thing we could do. We would like to delay the work, if possible, but it is too urgent. The work must begin at once."

City Attorney W. Earle Cobey said after the meeting the bond and contract would be mailed the contractor yesterday. The contract should be signed within a week, he added.

Cobey said the National Production Authority papers of approval are expected here momentarily. The NPA has already indicated approval.

Mrs. Roeder in explaining why she had voted yes with reluctance said that the imperative need for a modernized filtration plant has been substantiated by several qualified engineers at tremendous cost to the city.

"The request for this information was made several years ago and received several years ago (January, 1944). The peak of costs is higher today than during the last World War. This fact was substantiated by the November 1, 1951 issue of the Engineers News Record. Not only are we at the peak of increased cost of construction, but we are informed by many reliable sources that construction materials are going to be increasingly more scarce in 1952. Prices will go steadily upward. One almost infallible source for this prognostic picture can be found in the November issue of the Research Institute of America publications."

Here Mrs. Roeder cited civilian and military needs are 205 per cent greater than total available structural materials, then continued:

"Even when money is forthcoming for a project these days—with a partial priority clause hooked on—materials can not be secured until an application for the same finds its way through the mass of National Production Authority red tape.

"Thus if this project is delayed, the city faces a possibility of an inadequate water supply or of no water at all.

"Also if there is a delay, we face the possibility of not getting the necessary materials, or if we do not get the materials, we will undoubtedly have to pay more for them. After weighing these realistic factors carefully, I have cast my vote for this project at this time.

"It is regrettable beyond words that the Water Commissioner (Tederick) did not get 'greatly perturbed' 19 months ago instead of just in recent weeks. It is likely the project could have been done at that time for $150,000 and we could have saved enough to more than pay for the other much-needed water projects in the city," she concluded.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—Ted Saucier is a portly ,mustachioed, suave man who for more than 20 years handled the public relations of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. During that time he became the confidante of kings, queens, saxophone players and cowboy movie stars, and finally, when Conrad Hilton bought the Waldorf and Saucier left to set up his own business, he had become the man in New York who knew more celebrities than anyone else.

Mr. Saucier at last has put this knowledge of the noted and the notorious to some concrete use. He has brought out a portly, sauve book called "Bottoms Up," which is just about the most elegant volume ever to come across my cigaret burn-scarred desk, and certainly is the most expensive. It costs seven and a half bucks and, to the practiced drinker, it seems worth every penny of it—if only for the recipe on Page 121 called Heimer's Hoist. This one will, as they say, kill you. Or at least mutilate you.

Leafing through "Bottoms Up," however, I became disillusioned.

You know, you can stand alongside of men at a bar for years on end and think you have them figured out honestly as Scotch-and-water dringers, or rye-and-ginger participants or souls who take their liquor neat—in other words, intelligent, perceptive citizens who understand one of the basic truths of life . . . that whisky was meant to be tasted, not disguised.

The next thing you know, you pick up something like Mr. Saucier's impressive volume—and discover that this so-called honest drinker is the kind of man who puts a slice of pineapple, a half-teaspoon of sugar and a dash of cointreau into good, clean, undiluted Scotch.

• — • — •

I am not making this up; those pieces of garbage, as the barkeeps say, belong to something called "Frozen Scotch El Borracho" that was invented — and presumably drunk—by a genial saloon owner named Nicky Quattriocchi. You go along thinking that Nicky Q. is that rarity among cafe proprietors, an honest man, and then you read his recipe in "Bottoms Up" and the bottom falls from your world.

I don't know how many of you might know Louis Sobol, but if you've ever read the things he writes you probably have him tabbed as a warm, friendly, pleasant soul—the kind of guy you'd invite home for dinner. Hah!

Do you know what Sobol does? He puts honey in his bourbon! The book says so. Not only that, but he dissolves the honey in lemon juice. I do not have to tell you anything more about this kind of man, I am sure.

I guess it is true what they say about tennis players, too, although I am one, of a sort, myself. You remember Frank Hunter, the old Davis Cup star. Well, Frank now is the big wheel in the liquor firm tied up with the restaurant Twenty-One —and yet in "Bottoms Up" he lists his pet drink as a "Hunter" . . . one quarter dry vermouth and three-quarters sweet vermouth, flavored by orange peel.

I'll be hanged if I'll ever stand up at Twenty-One's bar next to Hunter again. Although likely he wouldn't dare drink it there; this he prepares at home with the door locked.

• — • — •

Dorothy Kilgallen and her husband Dick Kollmar, the actor, have one of the strangest of perversions—they mix dry champaigne with an equal amount of pineapple juice... and mix ice cubes in it, yet, for the final sacrilege.

I scorn them, and even more, I refer them to Lucius Beebe's comment father back in the book in describing his drink, the Russian Restorer: "Keep the entire setup so cold that no ice is necessary to the wine. There is no conceivable point in drinking champagne into which water has been permitted to intrude.

Beebe, of course, spoils all his good work by mixing strawberry brandy with the champagne, ending up coyly by saying you should "Drink it while it is laughing at you." And Cholly Knickerbocker offers another frightening combination — champagne and raspberry cordial.

Even as rugged a character as sports writer Dan Parker mixes bacardi with maraschino cordial in his "Broadway Bugle." Dan—how could you? I found one honest man. This was newspaperman Bob Considine. His drink consists of Scotch, ice and lemon peel. He advises to pour the Scotch—"a double jolt"—over the ice and drop in the lemon peel. Then, simply: "Drink."

Secretaries Plan Party, GW Station

Algonquin Chapter, National Secretaries Association heard letters of appreciation read and announcement made of the Christmas party at the meeting Monday evening at Central YMCA.

Miss Margaret Lester presided and read the letters from the national officers and out-of-town chapters who attended the regional meeting recently at Bedford Springs.

It was announced that the Christmas party will be held December 17 at 8 o'clock in the Green room at the Y. Each member is to bring a jingle for the party and a donation of canned foods for the Associated Charities basket. This will also be a farewell party for a member.

Miss Anna McGraw, Ways and Means chairman, reported on the Gift Wrapping Station sponsored by the chapter. She said the station will be open today, Friday and Saturday at regular store hours; and beginning Monday through December 22, it will be open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. This year the station is at the Jackpot Store, 37 North Centre Street.

Three committees were appointed: Miss Betty Lewis, Miss Doris See, Ways and Means; Mrs. Eleanor Snyder, Mrs. Reba Whitehair, Social; and Mrs. Edith Ryan, Telephone. Routine reports were given also.

There were 26 members attending and two guests, Mrs. Ada Long and John Edward Lester. The latter played several piano selections for the program.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—Ted Saucier is a portly ,mustachioed, suave man who for more than 20 years handled the public relations of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. During that time he became the confidante of kings, queens, saxophone players and cowboy movie stars, and finally, when Conrad Hilton bought the Waldorf and Saucier left to set up his own business, he had become the man in New York who knew more celebrities than anyone else.

Mr. Saucier at last has put this knowledge of the noted and the notorious to some concrete use. He has brought out a portly, sauve book called "Bottoms Up," which is just about the most elegant volume ever to come across my cigaret burn-scarred desk, and certainly is the most expensive. It costs seven and a half bucks and, to the practiced drinker, it seems worth every penny of it—if only for the recipe on Page 121 called Heimer's Hoist. This one will, as they say, kill you. Or at least mutilate you.

Leafing through "Bottoms Up," however, I became disillusioned.

You know, you can stand alongside of men at a bar for years on end and think you have them figured out honestly as Scotch-and-water dringers, or rye-and-ginger participants or souls who take their liquor neat—in other words, intelligent, perceptive citizens who understand one of the basic truths of life . . . that whisky was meant to be tasted, not disguised.

The next thing you know, you pick up something like Mr. Saucier's impressive volume—and discover that this so-called honest drinker is the kind of man who puts a slice of pineapple, a half-teaspoon of sugar and a dash of cointreau into good, clean, undiluted Scotch.

• — • — •

I am not making this up; those pieces of garbage, as the barkeeps say, belong to something called "Frozen Scotch El Borracho" that was invented — and presumably drunk—by a genial saloon owner named Nicky Quattriocchi. You go along thinking that Nicky Q. is that rarity among cafe proprietors, an honest man, and then you read his recipe in "Bottoms Up" and the bottom falls from your world.

I don't know how many of you might know Louis Sobol, but if you've ever read the things he writes you probably have him tabbed as a warm, friendly, pleasant soul—the kind of guy you'd invite home for dinner. Hah!

Do you know what Sobol does? He puts honey in his bourbon! The book says so. Not only that, but he dissolves the honey in lemon juice. I do not have to tell you anything more about this kind of man, I am sure.

I guess it is true what they say about tennis players, too, although I am one, of a sort, myself. You remember Frank Hunter, the old Davis Cup star. Well, Frank now is the big wheel in the liquor firm tied up with the restaurant Twenty-One—and yet in "Bottoms Up" he lists his pet drink as a "Hunter" . . . one quarter dry vermouth and three-quarters sweet vermouth, flavored by orange peel.

I'll be hanged if I'll ever stand up at Twenty-One's bar next to Hunter again. Although likely he wouldn't dare drink it there; this he prepares at home with the door locked.

• — • — •

Dorothy Kilgallen and her husband Dick Kollmar, the actor, have one of the strangest of perversions—they mix dry champaigne with an equal amount of pineapple juice... and mix ice cubes in it, yet, for the final sacrilege.

I scorn them, and even more, I refer them to Lucius Beebe's comment father back in the book in describing his drink, the Russian Restorer: "Keep the entire setup so cold that no ice is necessary to the wine. There is no conceivable point in drinking champagne into which water has been permitted to intrude.

Beebe, of course, spoils all his good work by mixing strawberry brandy with the champagne, ending up coyly by saying you should "Drink it while it is laughing at you." And Cholly Knickerbocker offers another frightening combination — champagne and raspberry cordial.

Even as rugged a character as sports writer Dan Parker mixes bacardi with maraschino cordial in his "Broadway Bugle." Dan—how could you? I found one honest man. This was newspaperman Bob Considine. His drink consists of Scotch, ice and lemon peel. He advises to pour the Scotch—"a double jolt"—over the ice and drop in the lemon peel. Then, simply: "Drink."

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

What's a gift? That's easy to answer—it is something bestowed on another voluntarily with no thought of return There is no question about it. It is simple, clear, and uncontrovertible.

But along about this time of year what's a gift, with Christmas looming up on the calendar? Why, it's a problem! It's "what are we going to do for Aunt Martha who has everything, and for the kid down the street who needs everything but whose family is so proud —and the Jones family who send mementos that are so costly we can't afford to reciprocate in kind?" When that kind of pressure enters, the joy of Christmas flees and a chore takes its place. That's when frenzy waxes and frazzle is what you'll be worn to by Christmas.

The Perfect Gift

Let's take up the first problem—Aunt Martha. As Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The only gift is a portion of thyself .... Therefore, the poet brings his poem; the shepherd, his lamb; the farmer, corn; the miner, a gem; the sailor, coral and shells; the painter, his picture; the girl, a handkerchief of her own sewing.

If none of those capacities is yours, give Aunt Martha a bit of your thought of time. Think of something that caters to her tastes, perhaps from some distant spot — choice jellies or candies from Florida or New Orleans; flowers flown in from Hawaii just in time for Christmas Eve; a bit of Indian-wrought silver from Ariona or New Mexico; a pot of cheese from New York or Wisconsin. The cost may be trivial—the gift is in the thought and time you've spent in running down its course. Here is a tip — go to your library and look through advertisements in travel magazines.

Now, how about the boy down the street? Content yourself with something you know will make him glad —and remember that no gift does that if it invades another's independence.

Price No Criterion —

As for the Jones family, "getting even" has nothing to do with a gift The price tag is no criterion. The only pocketbook to consider is your own. No matter how lovely the gift, if you cannot easily afford it, it brings no pleasure in the giving or the receiving.

Your taste and your understanding of the recipient's taste, be it a trifle or a treasure that you give, are what make a superb offering. Eau de Cologne and emeralds both miss the mark if sent to someone with no taste for them.

If you've made your gifts, of course a bit of you goes with each. If not, devise the wrapping or the card to convey your personal affection and touch.

Footprints Of Legendary "Monster" Photographed By Indian Expedition

NEW DELHI.—(INS)—A British expedition to Mount Everest is reported to have obtained photographs of the footprints of legendary "abominable snowmen" who devour humans and larger animals.

The footprints were said to have been discovered by the expedition party led by Eric Shipton which is to leave New Delhi this week by air to return to London.

The 44-year-old Shipton reportedly talked to a hillman who had seen the tracks of the mysterious and supposed "semi-human, gorilla-like monster" in the snow. The prints, triangular in shape, were said to be larger than ordinary snowshoes.

Legends of the mountain people of Tibet, Nepal and Sikkim describe the dread "snowman" as a large and fierce carnivorous animals. The larger variety is safd to eat yaks and the smaller ones men.

Their color is reported varied, sometimes white, black or brown. The legend is that anyone seeing the ferocious creature immediately drops dead.

British Climber Frank Smythe, ascending from Bhyunder Valley in the Himalayas in 1937, reported seeing the "imprint of a huge naked foot, apparently of a bi-ped." The imprint was described as 13 inches in length and having five toes in front and two in back.

Hillmen at that time insisted they were the tracks of the dreaded snowman and nothing would induce them to trace the source.

Two Gamblers Seek Federal Tax Stamps

Two Allegany County gamblers have by-passed the local office of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue and filed applications with Baltimore headquarters for the new occupational tax stamp required of them to operate under federal law.

George Hofferbert, chief of the Maryland Tax Collecting District which includes Washington, D. C., made the announcement yesterday but declined to name the applicants or their home addresses.

Hofferbert said the two countians filed incomplete forms which have been returned to them to fill out properly if they desire a license. Only those two applications, were processed up until 5 p. m. Tuesday, he stated, adding "none have been received from Garrett County."

The official pointed out that names of applicants are withheld from publication until a permit is issued. When incomplete forms are corrected, returned to his office and approved, information becomes public record.

Local authorities surmised the two district gamblers filed at Baltimore, instead of here, to escape attention. However, their names are turned over to police once they apply for a license.

Hofferbert also reported he had put three 'racket squads" on the trail of gamblers who failed to take out the new tax stamp. Investigators were armed with a list of suspects.

It was put together, he explained, from data his office obtained from informers, police officials, court records and newspaper files.

"There are certainly hundreds of gamblers throughout Maryland and in the District of Columbia," Hofferbert declared.

Investigation of one suspected gambler, Hofferbert said, resulted in adding between 30 and 40 names to the list.

Gamblers, who now are subject to a 10 per cent federal tax on the money they handle, were supposed to get their $50 annual occupation stamps by December 1.

So far, Hofferbert's office has issued only 11 stamps. It is processing 17 more applications. Six were returned to the applicants for more detailed information, so the total is 34.

Hofferbert said copies of the applications are being supplied to law enforcement authorities in Baltimore, Washington and the Maryland counties. In turn, he said, these authorities are supplying him with information about suspected gamblers.

One man in the District already has submitted a payment on the 10 per cent tax. Hofferbert said it hasn't been completely checked yet but it apparently is a payment by a man convicted of gambling in Baltimore. The small payment apparently represented 10 per cent of the amount of money he was convicted of handling.

The deadline for the first payment is December 31.

"We are working on it every day," Hofferbert said of the tax enforcement drive. "We are calling some of them in for questioning, investigating independently, and examining records."

School Vacation Opens December 21

The Christmas vacation for students in Allegany County public schools is only two short weeks away.

Board of Education calendar shows that classes will recess at the end of the regular school day on Friday, December 21, and will resume at 9 a. m. Thursday, January 3.

The shorter Christmas vacation allows the Board of Education to give the students a longer spring vacation at Easter time.

County educators feel that the longer Easter recess comes at a time when both teachers and pupils need a rest.

This year, the spring vacation starts on Thursday, April 10, at 1 p. m. and ends at 9 a. m. Thursday, April 17.

County PTA Group Plans Patrol Trip

Although the annual Allegany county school safety patrol trip to Washington isn't until May, the Allegany County Council of Parents and Teachers is making plans for the jaunt.

Ernest Killingsworth, county safety chairman, at a meeting Monday night in West Side School, urged each PTA president to discuss the trip with his association.

The council has sent out questionnaires pertaining to participation in the event.

Mrs. Lester Reed, legislative chairman, reported on legislation passed at the state PTA convention held recently in Hagerstown.

A symposium on the convention was conducted by: Mrs. Robert Lord, moderator; Mrs. Reed, "Are Our Citadels Secure"; Mrs. Edgar Hounshell, "Magazine and Book Fair"; Mrs. Adam Baer, "Mrs. John E. Hayes"; Miss Winifred Green, "Banquet and Installation Ceremony"; Mrs. Ralph Isiminger, "Salom Risque"; Mrs. Lester McGill, Dr. Daniel Prescott's talk on "Meeting the Needs of Children and Youths in Troubled Times"; Mrs. Lester Hough and Mrs. Julius Johnson, "Young Adults in Troubled Times," and Mrs. Frank Wineland, "Impressions of My First Convention."

Mrs. Lord, music chairman, led the group in singing the "PTA Song" and the "PTA Prayer Song."

Routine reports were given by Carl Belt, treasurer, and Mrs. Gertrude Collins, secretary.

Mrs. George Dunlap, program chairman, asked local presidents to send her the name of each PTA's program chairman.

Twelve associations had five or more representatives present. They were Corriganville, Mt. Savage, West Side, Cresaptown, East Side, Pennsylvania Avenue, Centre Street, Columbia Street, Eckhart, Ellerslie, Beall Elementary and Johnson Heights schools. In all 21 associations were represented.

Two Gamblers Seek Federal Tax Stamps

Two Allegany County gamblers have by-passed the local office of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue and filed applications with Baltimore headquarters for the new occupational tax stamp required of them to operate under federal law.

George Hofferbert, chief of the Maryland Tax Collecting District which includes Washington, D. C., made the announcement yesterday but declined to name the applicants or their home addresses.

Hofferbert said the two countians filed incomplete forms which have been returned to them to fill out properly if they desire a license. Only those two applications, were processed up until 5 p. m. Tuesday, he stated, adding "none have been received from Garrett County."

The official pointed out that names of applicants are withheld from publication until a permit is issued. When incomplete forms are corrected, returned to his office and approved, information becomes public record.

Churchill To Air Defense Policy

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill may clear up tomorrow Britain's cloudy attitude toward a unified European army.

The issue is rapidly becoming a touchy one in the United States, France and Britain.

As his own minister of defense, Churchill is expected to lay down his policy in a speech opening a defense debate in the House of Commons.

Confusion on just what his policy is regarding a European army stems from his past work for European unity. He is one of the founders of the European movement.

But in the six weeks he has been back in power here, the Conservative warrior has followed mainly the old line of the Labor government. It had held aloof from close association with the continent.

The best informed guess tonight is that Churchill will indicate strong sympathy for the European army idea.

But he is expected to stop short of offering to make Britain a partner in it.

Man Buys Burial Lot, Casket, Then Kills Self

ANBURN, Me., Dec. 5 (AP)—A 73-year-old Augusta man was found hanged in a hotel room here today and police said he spent yesterday buying a burial lot and picking out a casket.

Guy A. Sylvester was ruled a suicide by Dr. M. S. F. Greene, county medical examiner.

Police Chief Alton E. Savage said a note was found asking that an Auburn funeral home and two apparent relatives be notified. "I am sorry to cause you all this trouble," the note added.

Investigation showed, Savage said, that Sylvester went to an Auburn cemetery yesterday afternoon, bought a lot and paid a cremation fee. He told a cemetery official it was for a friend in Richmond.

It Was A Real Riot, All Right

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 5 (AP) — As the wife of Ben Grenald told him on the phone, it was a real riot. There was a monkey in a tree.

"Come on home, Ben," she told the Miami Beach pharmacist. "This is a real riot. You'll die."

Patrolman John Ward had been called too. He was dancing around under the tree with a bunch of bananas trying to get the monkey down.

All the neighborhood kids were whooping and laughing.

That was when the Grenalds' boy, Douglas, got into the red ants. Two-year-old Douglas screamed.

So did his sister and the kids from the neighborhood.

Grenald dunked him in the tub. Then they went back to watch the monkey.

That was when the house caught fire. Mrs. Grenald had left a pan full of grease on the stove. It set fire to the curtains and woodwork.

Grenald finally put out the fire.

The smoke made him sick.

Mrs. Grenald put the rags they had used to clean up the mess in the washing machine. One of the kids opened the door of the machine.

That was how the house became flooded.

Wen they noticed the water it was four inches deep in the kitchen.

The maid was sick and went home.

Grenald doesn't know what became of the monkey.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Color television was relayed coast-to-coast for the first time today.

Cinderella Girl Won't Say Yes Or No To Reconciliation

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP) — The 16-year-old California Cinderella girl wouldn't say no and wouldn't say yes today on the possibility of a reconciliation with the dashing millionaire industrialist she married in a Paris cathedral three weeks ago.

The high school girl, Martha Morris DeVigier, flew home to mama today after filing a suit in San Francisco for maintenance. She asks $10,000 a month support from Roland DeVigier, 28, Swiss industrialist, and a share in community property.

The petite brunette met DeVigier over a malted milk in her home town of suburban Torrance, Calif. After a whirlwind courtship they were married in Paris, by civil ceremony and church rites at the Notre Dame Cathedral. Then they flew to California.

Papa Charles Morris brought her home from San Francisco. The girl's brother-in-law, Attorney Dudley Gray of nearby Gardena told newsmen: "Martha's plans for the future are somewhat uncertain."

He said her suit probably will be withdrawn because she is not of legal age and had no legal guardian to act in her behalf when it was filed.

"Once she realized what she had done she appreciated how ridiculous it was," said Gray. "When met by her father yesterday, she expressed a desire to come back and live a normal life."

As to a reconciliation, Gray said: "Frankly, she won't say yes and she won't say no."

In the San Francisco suit the Southern California girl said she is still an unkissed bride. She charged mental cruelty and asked $75,000 fees for her attorney.

Churchill To Air Defense Policy

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill may clear up tomorrow Britain's cloudy attitude toward a unified European army.

The issue is rapidly becoming a touchy one in the United States, France and Britain.

As his own minister of defense, Churchill is expected to lay down his policy in a speech opening a defense debate in the House of Commons.

Confusion on just what his policy is regarding a European army stems from his past work for European unity. He is one of the founders of the European movement.

But in the six weeks he has been back in power here, the Conservative warrior has followed mainly the old line of the Labor government. It had held aloof from close association with the continent.

The best informed guess tonight is that Churchill will indicate strong sympathy for the European army idea.

But he is expected to stop short of offering to make Britain a partner in it.

It Was A Real Riot, All Right

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 5 (AP) — As the wife of Ben Grenald told him on the phone, it was a real riot. There was a monkey in a tree.

"Come on home, Ben," she told the Miami Beach pharmacist. "This is a real riot. You'll die."

Patrolman John Ward had been called too. He was dancing around under the tree with a bunch of bananas trying to get the monkey down.

All the neighborhood kids were whooping and laughing.

That was when the Grenalds' boy, Douglas, got into the red ants. Two-year-old Douglas screamed.

So did his sister and the kids from the neighborhood.

Grenald dunked him in the tub. Then they went back to watch the monkey.

That was when the house caught fire. Mrs. Grenald had left a pan full of grease on the stove. It set fire to the curtains and woodwork.

Grenald finally put out the fire. The smoke made him sick.

Mrs. Grenald put the rags they had used to clean up the mess in the washing machine. One of the kids opened the door of the machine.

That was how the house became flooded.

Wen they noticed the water it was four inches deep in the kitchen.

The maid was sick and went home.

Grenald doesn't know what became of the monkey.

First Color Television Sent Coast-To-Coast

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Color television was relayed coast-to-coast for the first time today.

The Columbia Broadcasting System conducted a test transmission over the Los Angeles-New York TV network hookup in preparation for the televising of a delicate heart operation in color Friday.

Although it was the first transcontinental transmission of color television, there have been a number of relays of several hundred miles. The transmission was over closed circuits, as Friday's also will be, and did not go out over the air.

Cinderella Girl Won't Say Yes Or No To Reconciliation

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5 (AP) — The 16-year-old California Cinderella girl wouldn't say no and wouldn't say yes today on the possibility of a reconciliation with the dashing millionaire industrialist she married in a Paris cathedral three weeks ago.

The high school girl, Martha Morris DeVigier, flew home to mama today after filing a suit in San Francisco for maintenance. She asks $10,000 a month support from Roland DeVigier, 28, Swiss industrialist, and a share in community property.

The petite brunette met DeVigier over a malted milk in her home town of suburban Torrance, Calif. After a whirlwind courtship they were married in Paris, by civil ceremony and church rites at the Notre Dame Cathedral. Then they flew to California.

Papa Charles Morris brought her home from San Francisco. The girl's brother-in-law, Attorney Dudley Gray of nearby Gardena told newsmen: "Martha's plans for the future are somewhat uncertain."

He said her suit probably will be withdrawn because she is not of legal age and had no legal guardian to act in her behalf when it was filed.

"Once she realized what she had done she appreciated how ridiculous it was," said Gray. "When met by her father yesterday, she expressed a desire to come back and live a normal life."

As to a reconciliation, Gray said: "Frankly, she won't say yes and she won't say no."

In the San Francisco suit the Southern California girl said she is still an unkissed bride. She charged mental cruelty and asked $75,000 fees for her attorney.

Maryland Highway Accidents Kill Three

[By The Associated Press]

Maryland counted three traffic fatalities yesterday as the result of automobile accidents the night before.

Two of the victims died as the result of a head-on collision of two automobiles at Harmony, on the Eastern Shore. Mrs. Mary Williamson, Harmony, was killed outright in the wreck, and Charles Fearins, also of Harmony, died yesterday in an Easton hospital.

Corp. Donald L. Ready, 18, an airman stationed at Andrews Air Force Base, was pronounced dead on arrival at South Baltimore General Hospital after another collision at the intersection of Crain Highway and Furnace Branch Road, south of Baltimore.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The historian of the distant future who applies himself to the task of writing a book, or a chapter, about the year 1951 A. D. will be a man to be pitied. At the end of exhausting months or years of research it seems likely that, in earnest frustration over the want of a theme, he will decide to give up the task and hie himself off to a stimulating game of Russian roulette.

How could he conceivably piece together the events of this year into a compactly describable pattern? he cannot even call his work "year of indecision." Momentous decisions took place this year — including Eleanor's changing of the lock on Billy Rose's front door, separating him from his laundry.

This was the year when the men who are fighting the Korean war—Americans, Chinese, Koreans, British, Greeks, Turks, Australians, Canadians, New Zealanders, South Africans, Filipinos and others—stopped shooting, only to have their political superiors, the great and trusted guardians of the peace, rap them on the knuckles and tell them to start fighting again.

This was the year the guardians of the A-bomb would not permit reporters to approach within 30 or 40 miles of a little bomb that went "pop," though once they witlessly embraced in their midst a spy named Fuchs who told the enemy how to make the big one that goes "boing!" And this was the year the death sentence was imposed on a man and wife who contributed much less atomic information to Russia than Fuchs, who got 14 years and is permitted by the British to continue his nuclear research.

• — • — •

The historian will note, before giving up the hopeless task, that this was the year when Collier's defeated Russia, Marciano knocked out Louis, and Joe E. Lewis, the horse-player, refused to contribute to the erection of a statue to Paul Revere because he gave the horse a bad ride—taking him wide at Lexington.

Mr. Truman wrote more letters in 1951, and during the same year the music critic of the Washington Post, Paul Hume, inaugurated what should be a lively little U. S. industry by selling the one he got about Margaret's singing. This, too, was the year when thoughtful men of the cloth, in composing their sermons, wondered whether they'd rate the splendid accolade of "dinger."

The life and hard times of U.N. during 1951 will prove a stumbling block to the most careful student of events a century from now. He will believe there is room for generalization when he notes that, in '51, more nations took more problems to U.N.'s tables than ever before. But, just when he feels he has something solid in the way of a platform, he will note, too, that this was the year when more nations took more homeric problems to counsels outside the U.N., setting up tight little military and economic pacts in Western Europe, the Middle East, and paving the way for one in the Far East.

The confused historian will owe some measure of his bewilderment to the fact that this was the year a colonel got slapped down for saying 6,200 American prisoners of war had been butchered by the Reds. He was called a liar and denounced by his superiors, who announced that the figure was closer to 8,000.

It was a year of forgiveness. All the countries that defeated Japan, including Haiti, officially forgave Japan. We poured more money into Italy, and in Western Germany we no longer commanded action but requested it. Scarcely half a decade after the big war for which Americans will be paying until well into the 21st century, we felt that our three firmest friends in the world were our three enemies of World War II, and our worst enemy was our biggest ally in that war.

This was the year of the new tax, and the old school tie returned to British politics. This was the year when MacArthur was fired on the grievous charge of wanting to win a war, faded away, then came back for the busiest crusade of his life. This was the year when the word "honor" came back into the honorable field of sports. For lack of it, West Point lost a football team. For lack of it several sad young basketball goons went to jail with the man who had polished in them one facet of dishonesty overlooked by the schools which corrupted them in the first place.

This was the year Branca threw a high hard one to Thomson.

It was the year when it was revealed that the tax collectors went into the wrong pockets, and MGM spent $6,000,000 building a movie around an invitation by Robert Taylor to another Centurian to visit him in Sicily and bring Drucilla and the children. It was the year Josephine Baker did not get her filet mignon, and was thereafter under suspicion as the person who started the Spanish American War.

Looks like a tough chore for Arnold Toynbee IV.

Morris Harvey Defeats Catamounts 72-59

Green State Quintet Drops Home Opener

Murovich And Klein Pace Potomac Five; Winners Never Headed

KEYSER, W. Va., Dec. 5—Taking an early nine-point lead which was never overcome, Morris Harvey College's basketeers easily turned back a green Potomac State Catamounts five here tonight by the score of 72 to 59.

Paced by Guard Jim Goddard the Charleston quint captured its second straight West Virginia Basketball Conference victory. The game was Potomac State's opening fray for the 1951-52 season. Goddard tallied 22 points on nine fielders and four of seven free throws.

State rallied in the second period after trailing 18-9 at the quarter to pull within five points of Morris Harvey and left the floor at halftime behind 36-31, but the visitors raked the nets for 20 points in the third stanza to pull away without further difficulty. Third period ended with the winners on top 56-39.

The game was a rough affair with the two teams getting 54 foul tries, Morris Harvey sinking 16 of 30 and State 13 of 24. Three players were ejected by Referees Clifton Van Roby and Bob Pence of Cumberland. They were Goddard and Palumbo of Morris Harvey and Tom Blackwood of Potomac. All were chased in the final quarter.

Deer Kill Lags On Third Day, Total Hits 140

22 More Are Slain, Troxell Gets Biggest

A Cumberland man, J. L. Troxell of 32 Princeton Street, bagged the largest deer kill reported in Maryland yesterday when he downed a 12-point, 185-pounder on Polish Mountain.

Troxell's prize headed the slim total of 22 deer reported slain in Allegany County on the third day of the state's six-day season.

The drop-off in the number of animals killed was attributed to several factors, game wardens in the region noted. Mid-week hunting always slacks off from the first two days, officials said, while the new Maryland law which says a hunter need not report his kill until the final day has brought down the total.

Allegany's 22 kills brought the county three-day total to 140 and compared with 70 on the first day and 48 the second.

Largest number of checked deer was reported by officials at Lewis' Store in Oldtown with 11. Maryland State Police at the LaVale barracks checked nine animals while Shipway's Inn on Green Ridge accounted for only two. The 22 county kills was more than half the reported state total of 40 for the day.

Garrett County is far ahead of the field with 304 bagged in the first two days, adding 138 Tuesday to the initial day's 166. In Washington County, the third part of District No. 1, only 15 kills were reported on the second day bringing the total to 67. The district's two day total, including Allegany, was 489, Game Warden Joseph A. Minke stated last night.

Charles Armstrong of Rawlings, whose brother James got a 185-pounder on the first day, came in with one weighing 155 pounds and 10 points yesterday to stay almost in step.

Another father-and-son team got into the act. Louis E. Smith and his son, James E., each got a buck yesterday. Dad killed an eight-point 125-pounder and Jim collected one with six points and weighing 115 pounds. Both deer were killed on Green Ridge.

Yanks Curtail Broadcasts Of Home Contests

Action Is Taken To Aid Minor Loops

BY JACK HAND

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—(AP)—The world champion New York Yankees today reduced their radio operations in reply to George Trautman's grim warning that the minor leagues can not long survive the "radio umbrella" of big league broadcasts.

Trautman, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, called for "reasonable restraints" on big league broadcasts in his annual report to the minors' golden jubilee convention.

Earlier, Commissioner Ford Frick pledged cooperation of his office, using as a yardstick—"is it good for baseball?" It was Frick's first appearance before the minors since he was elected to succeed A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Yanks Act Swiftly

Yankee action followed swiftly. The Yanks will not license any national network broadcasts—such as "game-of-the-day" — from Yankee Stadium. They will curtail their "home of champions" network that covered 18 cities in 1951, and will limit these broadcasts to day games. There will be no out-of-town television of Yank home games. They will continue to broadcast all games, home and away and televise all home games over a New York station.

The attitude of other big league clubs was not definite. Many were tied down to long term contracts that would rule out drastic action in '51. Trautman, however, said "other encouraging announcements are to be expected."

Trautman put the burden squarely on the big leaguers when he said, "it is the legal right (and moral obligation) for each individual club to exercise a reasonable restraint over its broadcasting and telecasting policies."

In two years the minors shrunk from 59 leagues to 49 and dropped over 16,000,000 in attendance. Trautman said daily, highly colored descriptions of big league play made the fans major league conscious, killing local interest.

The radio-TV discussion is certain to be hot and heavy at tomorrow's closed session when the delegates vote on 37 amendments.

One amendment would combine the major league and minor league drafts, eliminating expenses of attending two separate sessions as in the past.

New High School Rule

Some new version of the high school rule, which expires Dec. 31, is expected to develop from three proposals. Most likely to pass is a suggestion that baseball men be permitted to contact high school players but not sign them until their class graduates. Under the old rule, scouts were not allowed to talk to the boys until graduation day, often losing out to football talent seekers.

A new "open" classification, by which the Pacific Coast League could take a step toward major league status with partial draft exemption, is expected to pass.

Among the new managers named were Jack Tighe to Buffalo and Don Heffner to Baltimore of the International, Al Vincent to Birmingham of the Southern Association and Chick Genovese to Minneapolis of the American Association.

40-8 Captures Overtime Tussle

Paced by Bob Lookabaugh and Jim Eckhard with 31 points between them, Forty and Eight cagers captured an overtime thriller from Ridgeley Legion 51-47 last night in the Senior Men's Basketball League.

The extra period tilt was the nightcap of a doubleheader on the WMCA Board. The Telephone Company quint trounced the Elks 50-25 in the first contest.

Forty and Eight took an early 16-3 lead in the first quarter, led 23-20 at halftime but trailed 33-30 at the close of the third stanza. The regulation game ended in a 43-43 deadlock. The scores.

Army Brass Denies Blaik On Way Out As Grid Coach

Report Pentagon Wants His Ouster

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 5 (INS)—The Newark Evening News said today a "top Pentagon decision" has ordered the ousting of Col. Earl Blaik as West Point football coach, but three Army chiefs denied it.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., and combined staffs chief Gen. Omar Bradley, all mentioned in the News' story as having been among those who decided Blaik must go, issued categorical denials.

At West Point, both Blaik and Military Academy Supt. Maj. Gen. Frederick Irving said they knew nothing of the report.

The News story, published under the by-line of Washington correspondent Arthur Sylvester, said the decision to remove Blaik was made some weeks ago as "the next step needed to clean up the unsavory football situation uncovered at the academy with the revelation last summer of the cribbing scandals."

Blaik, whose son Bob was among the 40 football stars expelled from West Point during the cribbing scandal, has been rumored ready to resign for the past month or more. Today's story by Sylvester said that under the "top Pentagon decision," Blaik's departure will be made "as sweet as possible," and he will be allowed to "write his own ticket now that it has been stamped 'out.' "

John Hughes and Joe Orschanski of the University of Wyoming basketball team come from California.

15,733 Deer Slain In W. Va. In Two Days

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 5 (AP) — Unofficial conservation commission figures showed today that at least 15,733 deer were killed in West Virginia Monday and Tuesday, the first two days of the annual three-day open season.

Several other counties had a one-day season Monday.

Tucker County, with a two-day figure of 2,902, reported the largest take. Kills this year were certain, even before the season began, to break all previous records because does as well as bucks were declared fair game.

Seixas To Face Frank Sedgman

Philadelphian Seeks Davis Cup Berth

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Vic Seixas, the darkhorse of the American Davis Cup squad, will seek to nail down a cup berth tomorrow when he faces formidable Frank Sedgman, the Australian ace, in a semi-final of the Victorian tennis championships.

The lean, net-storming Philadelphian has become a favorite of the Australian fans with his smashing play and a capacity crowd of 7,500 is expected to jam Kooyong Stadium for his return engagement with the Aussie Davis Cup star.

Dick Savitt, the Australian and Wimbledon champion from Orange, N. J., meets Ken McGregor, the No. 2 Australian, in the other semifinal.

These matches are being looked on here as previews of the challenge round. The U. S., of course, has to face Sweden in the interzone finals Dec. 13-15, but it would be considered a tremendous upset if the Swedes, who have not been impressive here, win out. The challenge round will be played in Sydney Dec. 26-28.

Only eighth-ranked in the U. S., Seixas earned a trip here with the U. S. Davis Cup squad when he reached the finals on the American championships at Forest Hills. He lost to Sedgman in straight sets.

But the 28-year old 170-pounder evened matters with his conqueror with a decisive victory in the semi-finals of the New South Wales tournament two weeks ago. Seixas went on to beat Mervyn Rose, No. 3 Australian, for the title.

Baseball Suits Are Dismissed

Judge Says Court Has No Jurisdiction

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 5 (INS)—Two suits against organized baseball, one involving $115,000 damages, were dismissed today by U. S. District Court Judge John H. Druffel on the grounds that this court had no jurisdiction.

One suit was brought against the Cincinnati Reds and former Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler by Jack Corbett of Los Angeles. Corbett asked for $115,000 damages to compensate for losses incurred when he was forced to release several Mexicans who played for his El Pasco baseball club.

The other against the Brooklyn Dodgers was filed by Walter J. Kowalski who contended the reserve clause injured minor league ball players.

The attorneys for the defendants sought dismissal of the suits on the grounds that the court lacked jurisdiction and that the suits failed to state a claim on which relief could be granted.

Yanks Curtail Broadcasts Of Home Contests

BY JACK HAND

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—(AP)—The world champion New York Yankees today reduced their radio operations in reply to George Trautman's grim warning that the minor leagues can not long survive the "radio umbrella" of big league broadcasts.

Trautman, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues, called for "reasonable restraints" on big league broadcasts in his annual report to the minors' golden jubilee convention.

Earlier, Commissioner Ford Frick pledged cooperation of his office, using as a yardstick—"is it good for baseball?" It was Frick's first appearance before the minors since he was elected to succeed A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Yanks Act Swiftly

Yankee action followed swiftly. The Yanks will not license any national network broadcasts—such as "game-of-the-day" — from Yankee Stadium. They will curtail their "home of champions" network that covered 18 cities in 1951, and will limit these broadcasts to day games. There will be no out-of-town television of Yank home games. They will continue to broadcast all games, home and away and televise all home games over a New York station.

The attitude of other big league clubs was not definite. Many were tied down to long term contracts that would rule out drastic action in '51. Trautman, however, said "other encouraging announcements are to be expected."

Trautman put the burden squarely on the big leaguers when he said, "it is the legal right (and moral obligation) for each individual club to exercise a reasonable restraint over its broadcasting and telecasting policies."

In two years the minors shrunk from 59 leagues to 49 and dropped over 16,000,000 in attendance. Trautman said daily, highly colored descriptions of big league play made the fans major league conscious, killing local interest.

The radio-TV discussion is certain to be hot and heavy at tomorrow's closed session when the delegates vote on 37 amendments.

One amendment would combine the major league and minor league drafts, eliminating expenses of attending two separate sessions as in the past.

New High School Rule

Some new version of the high school rule, which expires Dec. 31, is expected to develop from three proposals. Most likely to pass is a suggestion that baseball men be permitted to contact high school players but not sign them until their class graduates. Under the old rule, scouts were not allowed to talk to the boys until graduation day, often losing out to football talent seekers.

A new "open" classification, by which the Pacific Coast League could take a step toward major league status with partial draft exemption, is expected to pass.

Among the new managers named were Jack Tighe to Buffalo and Don Heffner to Baltimore of the International, Al Vincent to Birmingham of the Southern Association and Chick Genovese to Minneapolis of the American Association.

The extra period tilt was the nightcap of a doubleheader on the WMCA Board. The Telephone Company quint trounced the Elks 50-25 in the first contest.

Forty and Eight took an early 16-3 lead in the first quarter, led 23-20 at halftime but trailed 33-30 at the close of the third stanza. The regulation game ended in a 43-43 deadlock. The scores.

Army Brass Denies Blaik On Way Out As Grid Coach

Report Pentagon Wants His Ouster

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 5 (INS)—The Newark Evening News said today a "top Pentagon decision" has ordered the ousting of Col. Earl Blaik as West Point football coach, but three Army chiefs denied it.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., and combined staffs chief Gen. Omar Bradley, all mentioned in the News' story as having been among those who decided Blaik must go, issued categorical denials.

At West Point, both Blaik and Military Academy Supt. Maj. Gen. Frederick Irving said they knew nothing of the report.

The News' story, published under the by-line of Washington correspondent Arthur Sylvester, said the decision to remove Blaik was made some weeks ago as "the next step needed to clean up the unsavory football situation uncovered at the academy with the revelation last summer of the cribbing scandals."

Blaik, whose son Bob was among the 40 football stars expelled from West Point during the cribbing scandal, has been rumored ready to resign for the past month or more. Today's story by Sylvester said that under the "top Pentagon decision," Blaik's departure will be made "as sweet as possible," and he will be allowed to "write his own ticket now that it has been stamped 'out.'"

They are Bob Ward, 185-pound All America guard; halfback Bob (Shoo Shoo) Shemonski, and Fullback Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski.

Their acceptance to play with Coach Paul Brown's North team, means they'll oppose four key Tennessee men two times in the same week.

15,733 Deer Slain In W. Va. In Two Days

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 5 (AP) — Unofficial conservation commission figures showed today that at least 15,733 deer were killed in West Virginia Monday and Tuesday, the first two days of the annual three-day open season.

The commission said Pendleton, the last to report among the 14 counties in which the three-day season was established, listed 70 kills Tuesday and a two-day total of 195.

Several other counties had a one-day season Monday.

Tucker County, with a two-day figure of 2,902, reported the largest take. Kills this year were certain, even before the season began, to break all previous records because does as well as bucks were declared fair game.

Seixas To Face Frank Sedgman

Philadelphian Seeks Davis Cup Berth

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Vic Seixas, the darkhorse of the American Davis Cup squad, will seek to nail down a cup berth tomorrow when he faces formidable Frank Sedgman, the Australian ace, in a semi-final of the Victorian tennis championships.

The lean, net-storming Philadelphian has become a favorite of the Australian fans with his smashing play and a capacity crowd of 7,500 is expected to jam Kooyong Stadium for his return engagement with the Aussie Davis Cup star.

Dick Savitt, the Australian and Wimbledon champion from Orange, N. J., meets Ken McGregor, the No. 2 Australian, in the other semifinal.

These matches are being looked on here as previews of the challenge round. The U. S., of course, has to face Sweden in the interzone finals Dec. 13-15, but it would be considered a tremendous upset if the Swedes, who have not been impressive here, win out. The challenge round will be played in Sydney Dec. 26-28.

Only eighth-ranked in the U. S., Seixas earned a trip here with the U. S. Davis Cup squad when he reached the finals on the American championships at Forest Hills. He lost to Sedgman in straight sets.

But the 28-year old 170-pounder evened matters with his conqueror with a decisive victory in the semi-finals of the New South Wales tournament two weeks ago. Seixas went on to beat Mervyn Rose, No. 3 Australian, for the title.

Baseball Suits Are Dismissed

Judge Says Court Has No Jurisdiction

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 5 (INS)—Two suits against organized baseball, one involving $115,000 damages, were dismissed today by U. S. District Court Judge John H. Druffel on the grounds that this court had no jurisdiction.

One suit was brought against the Cincinnati Reds and former Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler by Jack Corbett of Los Angeles. Corbett asked for $115,000 damages to compensate for losses incurred when he was forced to release several Mexicans who played for his El Pasco baseball club.

The other against the Brooklyn Dodgers was filed by Walter J. Kowalski who contended the reserve clause injured minor league ball players.

The attorneys for the defendants sought dismissal of the suits on the grounds that the court lacked jurisdiction and that the suits failed to state a claim on which relief could be granted.

Deer Kill Lags On Third Day, Total Hits 140

22 More Are Slain, Troxell Gets Biggest

A Cumberland man, J. L. Troxell of 32 Princeton Street, bagged the largest deer kill reported in Maryland yesterday when he downed a 12-point, 185-pounder on Polish Mountain.

Troxell's prize headed the slim total of 22 deer reported slain in Allegany County on the third day of the state's six-day season.

The drop-off in the number of animals killed was attributed to several factors, game wardens in the region noted. Mid-week hunting always slacks off from the first two days, officials said, while the new Maryland law which says a hunter need not report his kill until the final day has brought down the total.

Allegany's 22 kills brought the county three-day total to 140 and compared with 70 on the first day and 48 the second.

Largest number of checked deer was reported by officials at Lewis' Store in Oldtown with 11. Maryland State Police at the LaVale barracks checked nine animals while Shipway's Inn on Green Ridge accounted for only two. The 22 county kills was more than half the reported state total of 40 for the day.

Garrett County is far ahead of the field with 304 bagged in the first two days, adding 138 Tuesday to the initial day's 166. In Washington County, the third part of District No. 1, only 15 kills were reported on the second day bringing the total to 67. The district's two day total, including Allegany, was 489, Game Warden Joseph A. Minke stated last night.

Charles Armstrong of Rawlings, whose brother James got a 185-pounder on the first day, came in with one weighing 155 pounds and 10 points yesterday to stay almost in step.

Another father-and-son team got into the act. Louis E. Smith and his son, James E., each got a buck yesterday. Dad killed an eight-point 125-pounder and Jim collected one with six points and weighing 115 pounds. Both deer were killed on Green Ridge.

Three Terp Stars To Play For North

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 5—(AP)—Three members of Maryland's undefeated Terps, the nation's third ranking team, accepted bids today to play in the Senior Bowl Jan. 5.

They are Bob Ward, 185-pound All America guard; halfback Bob (Shoo Shoo) Shemonski, and Fullback Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski.

Their acceptance to play with Coach Paul Brown's North team, means they'll oppose four key Tennessee men two times in the same week.

Tennessee's Hank Lauricella, Gordon Polofsky, Ted Daffer and Bill Pearman already had accepted invitations to play with the South. Tennessee and Maryland will meet in the Sugar Bowl Jan. 1.

Browns Sign Team

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns and the Scranton, Pa. miners of the Class-A Eastern League today signed a one-year working agreement.

15,733 Deer Slain In W. Va. In Two Days

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 5 (AP) — Unofficial conservation commission figures showed today that at least 15,733 deer were killed in West Virginia Monday and Tuesday, the first two days of the annual three-day open season.

The commission said Pendleton, the last to report among the 14 counties in which the three-day season was established, listed 70 kills Tuesday and a two-day total of 195.

Several other counties had a one-day season Monday.

Tucker County, with a two-day figure of 2,902, reported the largest take. Kills this year were certain, even before the season began, to break all previous records because does as well as bucks were declared fair game.

Thorpe Offered Free House In Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 5 (INS) —Jim Thorpe can spend the rest of his life in Uniontown, if he wants to, and it won't cost him a cent.

Ben T. Sillman, of Uniontown, today offered the one-time great athlete a four-room house and all the necessities of life for the rest of his days.

Hill Gets Contract

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5—(AP)—Jess Hill, who wound up his first year as head coach of the Southern California football team with a varsity record of seven wins and three defeats, was handed a new contract for three years today.

Seixas To Face Frank Sedgman

Philadelphian Seeks Davis Cup Berth

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Vic Seixas, the darkhorse of the American Davis Cup squad, will seek to nail down a cup berth tomorrow when he faces formidable Frank Sedgman, the Australian ace, in a semi-final of the Victorian tennis championships.

The lean, net-storming Philadelphian has become a favorite of the Australian fans with his smashing play and a capacity crowd of 7,500 is expected to jam Kooyong Stadium for his return engagement with the Aussie Davis Cup star.

Dick Savitt, the Australian and Wimbledon champion from Orange, N. J., meets Ken McGregor, the No. 2 Australian, in the other semifinal.

These matches are being looked on here as previews of the challenge round. The U. S., of course, has to face Sweden in the interzone finals Dec. 13-15, but it would be considered a tremendous upset if the Swedes, who have not been impressive here, win out. The challenge round will be played in Sydney Dec. 26-28.

Only eighth-ranked in the U. S., Seixas earned a trip here with the U. S. Davis Cup squad when he reached the finals on the American championships at Forest Hills. He lost to Sedgman in straight sets.

But the 28-year old 170-pounder evened matters with his conqueror with a decisive victory in the semi-finals of the New South Wales tournament two weeks ago. Seixas went on to beat Mervyn Rose, No. 3 Australian, for the title.

Baseball Suits Are Dismissed

Judge Says Court Has No Jurisdiction

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 5 (INS)—Two suits against organized baseball, one involving $115,000 damages, were dismissed today by U. S. District Court Judge John H. Druffel on the grounds that his court had no jurisdiction.

One suit was brought against the Cincinnati Reds and former Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler by Jack Corbett of Los Angeles. Corbett asked for $115,000 damages to compensate for losses incurred when he was forced to release several Mexicans who played for his El Pasco baseball club.

The other against the Brooklyn Dodgers was filed by Walter J. Kowalski who contended the reserve clause injured minor league ball players.

The attorneys for the defendants sought dismissal of the suits on the grounds that the court lacked jurisdiction and that the suits failed to state a claim on which relief could be granted.

Hairston Stops Zivic

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5 (AP) — Eugene (Silent) Hairston of New York scored a technical knockout over Charles Zivic of Pittsburgh at 1:59 of the fifth round in a scheduled 10 rounder at the Cleveland Arena.

Hairston showed far too much class for the Pittsburgh battler and the outcome was never in doubt. Zivic was virtually out on his feet when Referee Lou Palmer finally stepped between the two battlers to end the fight.

22 Players Are Named To Little All-America Team

Dawkins, Carinci Standout Picks

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Two linemen, one an offensive guard and the other a linebacker on defense, are the standouts of the 1951 little college All-America football team announced today by the Associated Press.

The offensive guard is William Dawkins of Florida State, and on the defensive platoon it is Tito Carinci of Xavier College, Cincinnati.

The little college All-America is a two-platoon affair for the first time this year and players from 22 different schools were honored.

Pacing in the offensive backfield are Robert Miller of Emroy and Henry, making his second showing on the all-star team; Robert Flanagan of St. Ambrose; Joe Pahr of Valparaiso, who moved up from the 1950 second team; and Ralph Dimicco of Alfred. Dimicco is the only junior on the offensive team and Miller the only repeater.

On the offensive line with Dawkins are ends Dale Bruce of Ohio Wesleyan and Haldo Norman of Gustavus Adolphus; tackles Lester Wheeler of Abilene Christian and Robert Williamson of San Francisco State.

The other guard is William Chal, 200-pound Hawaiian playing for the unbeaten College of Empiria, Kas. team. James Hazlett of Susquehanna is the center.

The only two juniors on the defense platoon are the ends, Jack Wilson of Randolph-Macon and James Terry of Stephen F. Austin.

Biggest man on either squad is George Young of Bucknell, a 245-pound tackle. He teams with Chester Lagod of Chattanooga.

Charles Salmon of Williams, the third generation of a football playing family, and Vic Makovitch of Western Maryland, are the guards. Ken Spencer of St. Lawrence shares the line-backing duties with the talented Carinci.

The deep secondary is made up of Jack Beeler of Wooford, Norman Hash of Western Washington College and Ray Renfro of North Texas State.

Gerald Staley, 31-year-old right hander, pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to 19 victories last season.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (INS) — Sandy Saddler, the featherweight champion, who fights lightweight Paddy Demarco in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, is a unique character in more ways than one.

He has a freak build. He is very tall for a featherweight and he looks as if anybody could knock him over with a feather. But nobody knocks him over. Sandy does what knocking is to be done.

Ninety knockouts in 139 fights in eight years attest how well he flattens them.

He has no known bad habits. Doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, doesn't carouse. And he's the only fighter we ever heard of whom you can find in the gym the next day after a fight.

The reason for that is he loves to fight. Most fighters we've ever met go through their gruelling work merely for the money.

But, although Sandy loves money even a little more than the next fellow, he loves to swap punches with somebody even more. And he doesn't care how big the other fellow may be.

A glance at his record discloses that he has fought about as many lightweights as he has feathers, sometimes giving away 15 pounds. Now 15 pounds means nothing among heavyweights but it is a veritable ton to concede among little fellows.

Again, uniquely, he has absolutely run out of contention in his own class. He so far outclasses all other feathers that there is nobody left for him to fight.

Hence, his frequent sorties among the lightweights. He knocked out Paddy Demarco, whom he fights tomorrow, two years ago, but he may have more trouble tomorrow because Paddy is a greatly improved fighter. Still, Sandy figures to win.

Sandy is taking this as a stepping stone toward the lightweight title now held by Jimmy Carter. Few know that Sandy once fought a 10-round draw with Carter. That was four years ago in Washington.

Carter is a sound mechanic of the ring. He is a pretty fair puncher, takes a punch well and knows his way around the ring, as the boys in the fight racket put it.

Nevertheless, Sandy figures that he hits harder than Carter and is much faster and that therefore he is a cinch to beat him for the title.

Sandy says, and the records bear him out, that he has licked more champions of various countries than any fighter who ever lived.

Here's his score: He has licked both the featherweight and lightweight champions of Mexico, Panama, Cuba, and Venezuela, the feather champions of Bolivia and Trinidad and the lightweight champion of Ireland. And, of course, he also licked Willie Pep, former world's feather champion, three times.

He started fighting in the Police Athletic League when he weighed only 85 pounds and he's been fighting and relishing it ever since. Incidentally, he has managed to make about $50,000 a year which is not bad for a little fellow.

22 Players Are Named To Little All-America Team

Dawkins, Carinci Standout Picks

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Two linemen, one an offensive guard and the other a linebacker on defense, are the standouts of the 1951 little college All-America football team announced today by the Associated Press.

The offensive guard is William Dawkins of Florida State, and on the defensive platoon it is Tito Carinci of Xavier College, Cincinnati.

The little college All-America is a two-platoon affair for the first time this year and players from 22 different schools were honored.

Pacing in the offensive backfield are Robert Miller of Emroy and Henry, making his second showing on the all-star team; Robert Flanagan of St. Ambrose; Joe Pahr of Valparaiso, who moved up from the 1950 second team; and Ralph Dimicco of Alfred. Dimicco is the only junior on the offensive team and Miller the only repeater.

On the offensive line with Dawkins are ends Dale Bruce of Ohio Wesleyan and Haldo Norman of Gustavus Adolphus; tackles Lester Wheeler of Abilene Christian and Robert Williamson of San Francisco State.

The other guard is William Chai, 200-pound Hawaiian playing for the unbeaten College of Empiria, Kas. team. James Hazlett of Susquehanna is the center.

The only two juniors on the defense platoon are the ends, Jack Wilson of Randolph-Macon and James Terry of Stephen F. Austin.

Biggest man on either squad is George Young of Bucknell, a 245-pound tackle. He teams with Chester Lagod of Chattanooga.

Charles Salmon of Williams, the third generation of a football playing family, and Vic Makovitch of Western Maryland, are the guards. Ken Spencer of St. Lawrence shares the line-backing duties with the talented Carinci.

The deep secondary is made up of Jack Beeler of Wooford, Norman Hash of Western Washington College and Ray Renfro of North Texas State.

Gerald Staley, 31-year-old right hander, pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to 19 victories last season.

SPORTS GRILL

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (INS) — Sandy Saddler, the featherweight champion, who fights lightweight Paddy Demarco in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, is a unique character in more ways than one.

He has a freak build. He is very tall for a featherweight and he looks as if anybody could knock him over with a feather. But nobody knocks him over. Sandy does what knocking is to be done.

Ninety knockouts in 139 fights in eight years attest how well he flattens them.

He has no known bad habits. Doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, doesn't carouse. And he's the only fighter we ever heard of whom you can find in the gym the next day after a fight.

The reason for that is he loves to fight. Most fighters we've ever met go through their gruelling work merely for the money.

But, although Sandy loves money even a little more than the next fellow, he loves to swap punches with somebody even more. And he doesn't care how big the other fellow may be.

A glance at his record discloses that he has fought about as many lightweights as he has feathers, sometimes giving away 15 pounds. Now 15 pounds means nothing among heavyweights but it is a veritable ton to concede among little fellows.

Again, uniquely, he has absolutely run out of contention in his own class. He so far outclasses all other feathers that there is nobody left for him to fight.

Hence, his frequent sorties among the lightweights. He knocked out Paddy Demarco, whom he fights tomorrow, two years ago, but he may have more trouble tomorrow because Paddy is a greatly improved fighter. Still, Sandy figures to win.

Sandy is taking this as a stepping stone toward the lightweight title now held by Jimmy Carter. Few know that Sandy once fought a 10-round draw with Carter. That was four years ago in Washington.

Carter is a sound mechanic of the ring. He is a pretty fair puncher, takes a punch well and knows his way around the ring, as the boys in the fight racket put it.

Nevertheless, Sandy figures that he hits harder than Carter and is much faster and that therefore he is a cinch to beat him for the title.

Sandy says, and the records bear him out, that he has licked more champions of various countries than any fighter who ever lived.

Here's his score: He has licked both the featherweight and lightweight champions of Mexico, Panama, Cuba, and Venezuela, the feather champions of Bolivia and Trinidad and the lightweight champion of Ireland. And, of course, he also licked Willie Pep, former world's feather champion, three times.

He started fighting in the Police Athletic League when he weighed only 85 pounds and he's been fighting and relishing it ever since. Incidentally, he has managed to make about $50,000 a year which is not bad for a little fellow.

22 Players Are Named To Little All-America Team

Dawkins, Carinci Standout Picks

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP)—Two linemen, one an offensive guard and the other a linebacker on defense, are the standouts of the 1951 little college All-America football team announced today by the Associated Press.

The offensive guard is William Dawkins of Florida State, and on the defensive platoon it is Tito Carinci of Xavier College, Cincinnati.

The little college All-America is a two-platoon affair for the first time this year and players from 22 different schools were honored.

Pacing in the offensive backfield are Robert Miller of Emroy and Henry, making his second showing on the all-star team; Robert Flanagan of St. Ambrose; Joe Pahr of Valparaiso, who moved up from the 1950 second team; and Ralph Dimicco of Alfred. Dimicco is the only junior on the offensive team and Miller the only repeater.

On the offensive line with Dawkins are ends Dale Bruce of Ohio Wesleyan and Haldo Norman of Gustavus Adolphus; tackles Lester Wheeler of Abilene Christian and Robert Williamson of San Francisco State.

The other guard is William Chai, 200-pound Hawaiian playing for the unbeaten College of Empiria, Kas. team. James Hazlett of Susquehanna is the center.

The only two juniors on the defense platoon are the ends, Jack Wilson of Randolph-Macon and James Terry of Stephen F. Austin.

Biggest man on either squad is George Young of Bucknell, a 245-pound tackle. He teams with Chester Lagod of Chattanooga.

Charles Salmon of Williams, the third generation of a football playing family, and Vic Makovitch of Western Maryland, are the guards. Ken Spencer of St. Lawrence shares the line-backing duties with the talented Carinci.

The deep secondary is made up of Jack Beeler of Wooford, Norman Hash of Western Washington College and Ray Renfro of North Texas State.

Gerald Staley, 31-year-old right hander, pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to 19 victories last season.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (INS) — Sandy Saddler, the featherweight champion, who fights lightweight Paddy Demarco in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, is a unique character in more ways than one.

He has a freak build. He is very tall for a featherweight and he looks as if anybody could knock him over with a feather. But nobody knocks him over. Sandy does what knocking is to be done.

Ninety knockouts in 139 fights in eight years attest how well he flattens them.

He has no known bad habits. Doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, doesn't carouse. And he's the only fighter we ever heard of whom you can find in the gym the next day after a fight.

The reason for that is he loves to fight. Most fighters we've ever met go through their gruelling work merely for the money.

But, although Sandy loves money even a little more than the next fellow, he loves to swap punches with somebody even more. And he doesn't care how big the other fellow may be.

A glance at his record discloses that he has fought about as many lightweights as he has feathers, sometimes giving away 15 pounds. Now 15 pounds means nothing among heavyweights but it is a veritable ton to concede among little fellows.

Again, uniquely, he has absolutely run out of contention in his own class. He so far outclasses all other feathers that there is nobody left for him to fight.

Hence, his frequent sorties among the lightweights. He knocked out Paddy Demarco, whom he fights tomorrow, two years ago, but he may have more trouble tomorrow because Paddy is a greatly improved fighter. Still, Sandy figures to win.

Sandy is taking this as a stepping stone toward the lightweight title now held by Jimmy Carter. Few know that Sandy once fought a 10-round draw with Carter. That was four years ago in Washington.

Carter is a sound mechanic of the ring. He is a pretty fair puncher, takes a punch well and knows his way around the ring, as the boys in the fight racket put it.

Nevertheless, Sandy figures that he hits harder than Carter and is much faster and that therefore he is a cinch to beat him for the title.

Sandy says, and the records bear him out, that he has licked more champions of various countries than any fighter who ever lived.

Here's his score: He has licked both the featherweight and lightweight champions of Mexico, Panama, Cuba, and Venezuela, the feather champions of Bolivia and Trinidad and the lightweight champion of Ireland. And, of course, he also licked Willie Pep, former world's feather champion, three times.

He started fighting in the Police Athletic League when he weighed only 85 pounds and he's been fighting and relishing it ever since. Incidentally, he has managed to make about $50,000 a year which is not bad for a little fellow.

Handicapped Child Survey Being Conducted In County

A survey requested by the State Department of Education to determine the number of handicapped children in the county is being conducted.

Ralph E. Kessler, supervisor of special education for the Board of Education, is collecting the information being furnished through several channels.

Kessler said the survey is being made for a layman's committee to study special education. This group was appointed by Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, director of the State Department of Education.

The group has several questions it is seeking to solve—who needs special education; what is being done and what would be a suggested program.

Kessler said children with these handicaps are being totaled—Mentally retarded, cerebral palsied, infantile paralysis, other orthopedic handicaps, rheumatic fever, epileptics, tuberculosis deaf, blind, speech disorders, emotional maladjustments, glandular disorders, facial disfigurement, and mentally gifted.

He reported he will obtain two sets of figures for the state committee. One will include those in Allegany county public schools, while the other will cover all children in the county.

Assisting him are the Allegany League for Crippled Children, the County Health Department, the psychiatric clinic in the City Hall.

In additoin, Kessler, as director of the special education program in public schools, has extensive lists of handicapped children, together with the annual census figures compiled by Homer Higgins, supervisor of pupil personnel for the Board of Education.

The time limit on the survey has been set for December 14.

George Constable, Baltimore attorney, is chairman of the state committee, and the member from this county is Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, who is president and has been active with the Allegany County League For Crippled Children since its organization.

Clinics Scheduled

A child hygiene clinic will be conducted at the Corriganville Fire Hall at 10 a.m. today. A similar clinic is scheduled for the Bowman's Addition Health Center at 10 a. m. Friday.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5—(INS)—We'll have two Salomes on the screen at the same time, played by two of our most glamorous women—Rita Hayworth ("Salome" is being prepared as her second picture for Columbia) and Hedy Lamarr, who is being sought by Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna for the role of Salome in "Pilate's Wife."

Rita Hayworth

There's very little actually known about Salome. Oscar Wilde's play and other stories that have been written, are legendary and imaginary. In Clare Booth Luce's script of "Pilate's Wife," Salome is shown being taken to the palace of Herod by Claudia, the wife of Pontius Pilate.

Jean Simmons plays Claudia, who tried to influence Pilate to stay the crucifixion of Christ because of a dream.

In the good old days before Frank Sinatra labelled all newspaper people creeps, and when he was always glad to see the press, he used to tell stories about his father, who was with his hometown New Jersey fire department.

Gene Kelly was so intrigued with those stories that for two years he and Stanley Donen have been writing a musical around them. Now it will be made by MGM and Gene is presenting it to Fred Astaire, hoping he will co-star with him.

The plan is to make a musical with all the old song favorites of the nineties.

May I say Howard Welch picked himself off a good man to direct "Gardenia" when he arranged to borrow Mark Robson from Sam Goldwyn. Now he wants Dorothy McGuire as his star.

"Gardenia" is Vera Caspary's newest mystery about a lonely telephone operator who listens in on a conversation that gets her in a lot of trouble, plus romance.

Robson has had a batch of hits in the past few years, including "Bright Victory," "Home Of The Brave," "Champion" and Goldwyn's new movie, "I Want You.'

I dont want to say that Zsa Zsa Gabor has her eye on Robert Taylor any more than she has on any other good looking young man. But since "Quo Vadis," she has admired Bob greatly, and at the Mocambo she sent a request to his table for him to move over to her table—which he obligingly did. And at the "Quo Vadis" party at the Grove, although she and Bob didn't arrive together they went home together.

The outcome of Zsa Zsa and George Sanders' marriage is anyone's guess. I was amused to hear her say on TV that all she wants for Christmas is a husband like George made over the way she wants him to be.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Ava Gardner takes a copy of "Lonesome Gal" with her to Europe to read for MGM. She and Frank Sinatra planed out by TWA Tuesday night. Dorothy Kirsten meets the party in New York tomorrow.

Others of the contingent telephoned me from "21" in New York where they were having luncheon. Talked with Janet Leigh, Tony Curtis and John Haskell. Mrs. Bob Considine was at the luncheon with the crowd from Hollywood.

Ben Pollack, bandleader who helped popularize Dixieland jazz in the Roarin' Twenties, is ending his marriage of 18 years to Doris Pollack, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty.

Bette Davis and Gary Merrill will skip the snows of New England this year for Christmas in Bermuda.

On the other hand, the whole Robert Young family, Betty, Bob, and the four girls, leave for Sun Valley the 19th to spend the holidays.

In a corner at the Sportsmen's Lodge John Payne and Lina Romay were at a table for two.

You'll see Joan Crawford at Republic Studio when she makes her next picture, "Sudden Fear." Although it's a Columbia release, it will be produced at Papa Yates studio.

Al Werkman, vocal coach for many studios, has been paged by Cheryl Crawford for her new musical, "Encore."

DuPont Plant Construction To Start Soon

Work Will Begin Near Martinsburg

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. Dec. 5 (AP) — Chamber of Commerce officials here said today that the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co. will begin construction of its multi-million dollar industrial plant here within the next month.

In a letter to the chamber, the company sad it had received an allotment of controlled materials for the first and second quarters of 1952.

"Construction will start as soon as steel is received at the project, and a construction crew can be assembled," the latter said.

The work was originally slated to begin last summer, but was postponed becauseo f a lack of critical materials.

The plant site is on a large tract of land in the Falling Watehs-Bedington area along the Potomac River about six miles north of here. Actual production is scheduled to begin late next year.

The company has said that the new plant will be in the "explosives department."

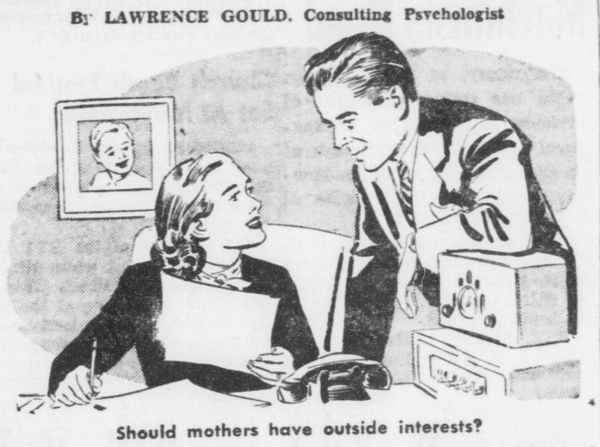
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Should mothers have outside interests?

Answer: Yes. Dr. Exie E. Welsch, child psychiatrist, told the New York Child Study Association. The parent who does most to help a child "roll with life's blows" is one who besides being a parent, is a good husband or wife and an interested member of the community. This is easier for men because business automatically involves them in social contacts, but a mother who spends her days at home with her children should try to keep up at least one outside interest, like a bridge or book club. If she does not, she risks losing her perspective and trying to do more for her children than can be done without smothering them.

Do groups judge each other fairly?

Answer: No, says Dr. A. N. J. den Hollander of the University of Amsterdam. Every group of people tends to develop a "mental image" of the members of other groups—a more or less vague complex of ideas about their qualities, appearance, customs and culture. (The idea of the "stolid Dutchman" is a good example.) But the images of other groups in our minds are based on feelings rather than facts, and particularly on the wish to see our own group as superior to all the rest. As a result, our judgments generally are neither fair nor up-to-date—there is a "lag" between the progress other groups make and our willingness to recognize it.

May narcotics aid suggestion therapy?

Answer: Yes, write Dr. Richard N. Brickner and associates in Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, Chicago. After personal interviews and tests, 39 psychiatric patients were first given large injections of sodium amytal and then made to listen for an hour while a manuscript explaining the nature of the inner conflicts that produced their difficulties was read to them. Favorable results were reported after following up 30 of the cases for "at least a year." The technique, however, must be described as "suggestive" because the interpretations impressed on the patients' minds were the psychiatrist's rather than their own.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5—(INS)—We'll have two Salomes on the screen at the same time, played by two of our most glamorous women—Rita Hayworth ("Salome" is being prepared as her second picture for Columbia) and Hedy Lamarr, who is being sought by Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna for the role of Salome in "Pilate's Wife."

Rita Hayworth

There's very little actually known about Salome. Oscar Wilde's play and other stories that have been written, are legendary and imaginary. In Clare Booth Luce's script of "Pilate's Wife," Salome is shown being taken to the palace of Herod by Claudia, the wife of Pontius Pilate.

Jean Simmons plays Claudia, who tried to influence Pilate to stay the crucifixion of Christ because of a dream.

In the good old days before Frank Sinatra labelled all newspaper people creeps, and when he was always glad to see the press, he used to tell stories about his father, who was with his hometown New Jersey fire department.

Gene Kelly was so intrigued with those stories that for two years he and Stanley Donen have been writing a musical around them. Now it will be made by MGM and Gene is presenting it to Fred Astaire, hoping he will co-star with him.

The plan is to make a musical with all the old song favorites of the nineties.

May I say Howard Welch picked himself off a good man to direct "Gardenia" when he arranged to borrow Mark Robson from Sam Goldwyn. Now he wants Dorothy McGuire as his star.

"Gardenia" is Vera Caspary's newest mystery about a lonely telephone operator who listens in on a conversation that gets her in a lot of trouble, plus romance.

Robson has had a batch of hits in the past few years, including "Bright Victory," "Home Of The Brave," "Champion" and Goldwyn's new movie, "I Want You.'

Cuff Links

FASHION: Deadly combat in the Colosseum of ancient Rome, depicted in the screen version of "Quo Vadis," has inspired a new twist in men's accessories. Baritone Donald Richards (at left) wears cuff links showing profile of a helmeted gladiator. A tie clasp in the same motif is shaped like a gladiator's sword.

Presidential Peculiarities: Theodore Roosevelt shaved every day at 12:40 p. m. The barber always came to the White House. . . . While Jefferson was president, he greatly offended a British minister by receiving him while wearing house slippers. . . . John Quincy Adams had his clothes stolen while swimming in the Potomac River.

Handyman: If your youngster rides a bicycle to school—the seat can be kept rain-free by slipping an oil-silk bowl cover over it. . . . A thumbtack stuck into the side of your pencil will keep it from rolling off desk or table. . . . Lengths of rubber tubing slipped over pliers' handles will give a sure, comfortable grip.

Gimmicks: Miniature barber pole shave rack, personalized with man's first name. Holds shaving brush, safety razor and used blades. . . . Pocket-size "Jon-E" Hand-warmer for those who work or play outdoors in cold weather. . . . A device for cracking ice without effort. The "Tap-Icer" spring steel vibrator does the trick.

Dress Tips: A soft bristle hat brush is better than a whisk broom or ordinary clothes brush for a good felt hat. Always brush with the nap, as at right. . . . For cleaning sponge rubber shoe soles, use a small brush to apply soapsuds mixed with a little ammonia. Then wipe them off with a clean damp cloth.

Brush With the Nap

Amateur Chef: To prevent tears when peeling onions—keep them under water while you're operating on them. . . . Circular cakes will remain fresh much longer after cutting if slices of bread are pinned to both cut sides with toothpicks. . . . You can remove the last elusive drops of fat from a pot of vegetable soup in a jiffy with a lettuce leaf.

Odd Items: According to Dr. Charles Shead, of the Mayo Clinic, one-quarter of your body energy is used in seeing. . . . Pass the cigars to: Restaurateur Arnold Reuben, who to my knowledge, has never turned down a request involving servicemen or veterans. He still entertains dozens each week and sends great quantities of food to hospitals and canteens.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SET THE STAGE EARLY

ESPECIALLY when the opponents are vulnerable and your side is not, it can pay heavily to open the bidding in third hand position with a hand lacking much high card strength if it has a six-card or longer suit or else two suits of five cards or more, especially the latter. This sets the stage early for a later bid by you to show your partner just what kind of hand you hold, and eventually perhaps a sound sacrifice by him which may save your side hundreds of points.

	♠ J 10 6 5 2 ♥ 4 2 ♦ 10 8 4 3 ♣ 6 2
♠ A Q 7 4 ♥ A 7 ♦ A 9 2 ♣ A J 10 8	N W E S	♠ K 9 3 ♥ K 10 9 3 ♦ J ♣ K 9 7 5 3
	♠ 8 ♥ Q J 8 6 5 ♦ K Q 7 6 5 ♣ Q 4

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Dbl.
Pass	2 ♣	2 ♦	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	7 ♣
7 ♦	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

East and West took six tricks against that contract, thereby beating it six tricks for a score of 1100 points. But that is exactly what North expected when he made his bid. Something else he expected was that East would have made his 7-Clubs contract, as he could have done.

North, having listened closely to the bidding, could easily tell that West held all four aces, in view of his bidding grand slam after East's 5-Clubs response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed none whatever. And he also knew East had three of the missing kings, from his 6-Spades response to the Blackwood 5-No Trumps. West's final bid obviously showed plenty of support for his partner's clubs, probably four cards, and East's free bid of hearts, after the opponents' suit, after responding to the double with clubs, indicated that the minor suit was of at least five cards. So North was sound in reckoning the club grand slam as a sure thing.

The big point here is that North could not have made that sacrifice if South had not shown the kind of hand he held by first bidding hearts, enabling himself later to call the diamonds and thus have two chances for a fit. The grand slam for East would have produced 1500 slam bonus plus 140 for tricks plus a game worth 500 points at least, or 2,140 points. The sacrifice therefore saved North and South at least 1,000 points, plus.

35,040 Fewer Whistles In '52

CLAREMONT, N. H., Dec. 5 (AP) — Local residents who live near one of this city's five grade crossings will hear 35,040 less train whistles in 1952.

As trains on the Boston and Maine branch line pass over each of the crossings the engineer blows four toots on the steam whistle.

And for some 10 years the populace has been annoyed.

So the state public utilities commission corrected the problem.

It ruled that the B & M must discontinue 86 whistle blasts a day.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

35,040 Fewer Whistles In '52

CLAREMONT, N. H., Dec. 5 (AP) — Local residents who live near one of this city's five grade crossings will hear 35,040 less train whistles in 1952.

As trains on the Boston and Maine branch line pass over each of the crossings the engineer blows four toots on the steam whistle.

And for some 10 years the populace has been annoyed.

So the state public utilities commission corrected the problem.

It ruled that the B & M must discontinue 86 whistle blasts a day.

Richards and Roman Links

Cuff Links

FASHION: Deadly combat in the Colosseum of ancient Rome, depicted in the screen version of "Quo Vadis," has inspired a new twist in men's accessories. Baritone Donald Richards (at left) wears cuff links showing profile of a helmeted gladiator. A tie clasp in the same motif is shaped like a gladiator's sword.

Presidential Peculiarities: Theodore Roosevelt shaved every day at 12:40 p. m. The barber always came to the White House. . . . While Jefferson was president, he greatly offended a British minister by receiving him while wearing house slippers. . . . John Quincy Adams had his clothes stolen while swimming in the Potomac River.

Handyman: If your youngster rides a bicycle to school—the seat can be kept rain-free by slipping an oil-silk bowl cover over it. . . . A thumbtack stuck into the side of your pencil will keep it from rolling off desk or table. . . . Lengths of rubber tubing slipped over pliers' handles will give a sure, comfortable grip.

Gimmicks: Miniature barber pole shave rack, personalized with man's first name. Holds shaving brush, safety razor and used blades. . . . Pocket-size "Jon-E" hand-warmer for those who work or play outdoors in cold weather. . . . A device for cracking ice without effort. The "Tap-Icer" spring steel vibrator does the trick.

Dress Tips: A soft bristle hat brush is better than a whisk broom or ordinary clothes brush for a good felt hat. Always brush with the nap, as at right. . . . For cleaning sponge rubber shoe soles, use a small brush to apply soapsuds mixed with a little ammonia. Then wipe them off with a clean damp cloth.

Brush With the Nap

Amateur Chef: To prevent tears when peeling onions—keep them under water while you're operating on them. . . . Circular cakes will remain fresh much longer after cutting if slices of bread are pinned to both cut sides with toothpicks. . . . You can remove the last elusive drops of fat from a pot of vegetable soup in a jiffy with a lettuce leaf.

Odd Items: According to Dr. Charles Shead, of the Mayo Clinic, one-quarter of your body energy is used in seeing. . . . Pass the cigars to: Restaurateur Arnold Reuben, who to my knowledge, has never turned down a request involving servicemen or veterans. He still entertains dozens each week and sends great quantities of food to hospitals and canteens.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SET THE STAGE EARLY

ESPECIALLY when the opponents are vulnerable and your side is not, it can pay heavily to open the bidding in third hand position with a hand lacking much high card strength if it has a six-card or longer suit or else two suits of five cards or more, especially the latter. This sets the stage early for a later bid by you to show your partner just what kind of hand you hold, and eventually perhaps a sound sacrifice by him which may save your side hundreds of points.

	♠ J 10 6 5 2 ♥ 4 2 ♦ 10 8 4 3 ♣ 6 2
♠ A Q 7 4 ♥ A 7 ♦ A 9 2 ♣ A J 10 8	N W E S	♠ K 9 3 ♥ K 10 9 3 ♦ J ♣ K 9 7 5 3
	♠ 8 ♥ Q J 8 6 5 ♦ K Q 7 6 5 ♣ Q 4

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Dbl.
Pass	2 ♣	2 ♦	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	7 ♣
7 ♦	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

East and West took six tricks against that contract, thereby beating it six tricks for a score of 1100 points. But that is exactly what North expected when he made his bid. Something else he expected was that East would have made his 7-Clubs contract, as he could have done.

North, having listened closely to the bidding, could easily tell that West held all four aces, in view of his bidding grand slam after East's 5-Clubs response to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed none whatever. And he also knew East had three of the missing kings, from his 6-Spades response to the Blackwood 5-No Trumps. West's final bid obviously showed plenty of support for his partner's clubs, probably four cards, and East's free bid of hearts, after the opponents' suit, after responding with the double with clubs, indicated that the minor suit was of at least five cards. So North was sound in reckoning the club grand slam as a sure thing.

The big point here is that North could not have made that sacrifice if South had not shown the kind of hand he held by first bidding hearts, enabling himself later to call the diamonds and thus have two chances for a fit. The grand slam for East would have produced 1500 slam bonus plus 140 for tricks plus a game worth 500 points at least, or 2,140 points. The sacrifice therefore saved North and South at least 1,000 points, plus.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ 10 9 2 ♥ A Q 9 7 3 ♦ 7 ♣ 6 5 4 2
♠ 3 ♥ K J 10 5 4 ♦ A Q 5 4 2 ♣ 8 3	N W E S	♠ A K 5 4 ♥ 6 2 ♦ 10 9 8 3 ♣ K Q 7
	♠ Q J 8 7 6 ♥ 8 ♦ K J 6 ♣ A J 10 9

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What bidding would you consider soundest on this rubber deal after South's 1-Spade?

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, William S. Barnard, who departed this life 1 year ago today, December 6, 1950.
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear Dad
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by his WIFE, all the CHILDREN and his MOTHER & FATHER.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, William S. Barnard, who departed this life 1 year ago today, December 6, 1950.
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day dear Dad
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by his WIFE, all the CHILDREN and his MOTHER & FATHER.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, William S. Barnard, who departed this life 1 year ago today, December 6, 1950.
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day dear Dad
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by his WIFE, all the CHILDREN and his MOTHER & FATHER.

B-P Women Warned Of Bomb Attack

"Not since 1812 has it been possible for an enemy to attack the United States in force. Russia now has the weapons and equipment to do so," Arthur B. Gibson told members of the Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club at the recent dinner meeting.

At the meeting it was announced that the B and P Women will sponsor Charles Coburn, noted movie actor, in Cumberland, March 3, at Fort Hill High School.

In speaking on "Civil Defense," Mr. Gibson discussed the obligation of the smaller communities toward possible stricken areas. He gave a word picture of what would have to be done after a possible atom bomb attack and said, "I think that every good American can do something toward Civil Defense. It means the ability to get up and fight after you have been hit."

He described the atom bomb attack and stated that Maryland is divided into four Civil Defense units. Funds are provided for Civil Defense work by each state instead of federal funds being used. Speaking of collecting data by the Civil Defense officers, Mr. Gibson commended the women for their cooperation. He stated that December 10 and 11 the state officers would be here to give specific training to the personnel, and after their visit the field in Civil Defense would be expanded in Cumberland. The slogan, he said is, "Civil Defense Means Survival."

Mrs. Dorothy Ringler and Miss Dorothy Koegel of the Membership committee arranged the program.

The next meeting will be the Christmas party, December 11 under the leadership of Mrs. Ellen McKenzie, Mrs. Ethel Klavuhn and assisted by Miss Irene Lapp, Miss Dorothy Manley, Miss Zana Allison of the Welfare committee. Members are to bring a gift of food, toy or donation of money for the needy.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Ex Parte in the Matter of the Petition of Vernon W. Bittinger and Orpha R. Bittinger, his wife, for the Adoption of a Minor. No. 22459 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to have the Court pass a decree declaring that Gary Wayne McClung, infant, is the adopted child of Vernon W. Bittinger and Orpha R. Bittinger, his wife, and to change the name of said child to that of Gary Wayne Bittinger.

The petition filed herein states that Alma Jean McClung gave birth to a male child, Gary Wayne McClung, on December 22, 1950, and that said child is in the custody of the Petitioners; that Alma Jean McClung has filed an answer consenting to the adoption and change of name of said child, but that Everett McClung, her husband is a non-resident, whose last known address was Charleston, West Virginia.

IT IS THEREUPON, this 14th day of November, 1951, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that your Petitioners, by causing a copy of this Order to be published in some newspaper, once in each of four successive weeks, before the 17th day of December, 1951, giving notice to the absent Defendant, Everett McClung, of the object and purpose of this suit and warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by Solicitor, on or before the 3rd day of January, 1952, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Selective Buying Results In Market Strong Spots

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Buyers were in a select shopping mood today and the stock market as a result was a jumble of strong spots and weak areas.

Potential oil earnings in the famed Williston basin of Montana-Dakota provided the most prominent buying incentive.

Northern Pacific, which has mineral rights in something like a million acres in the basin, shot up four points at 68½ and was the day's most active issue.

Montana-Dakota Utilities, which does business in the basin, was second most active up 1¼ at 25¼.

Aremada, which brought in the basin's discovery well last April, gained 1½ at 153. Shell, whose Northern Pacific No. 1 well confirmed the find a few months later, advanced 2⅛ at 67.

Bell Aircraft was up 1⅞ at 30½ after directors proposed a two for one split. Cerra De Pasco gained 1¼ at 56 after directors declared a year-end extra of $1 and a dividend of 25 cents bringing 1951 payments to $2 and 5 per cent stock dividend as against nothing last year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $97.30. The industrial component was off 40 cents, railroads held unchanged, and utilities advanced 10 cents.

Following Northern Pacific and Montana-Dakota Utilities in the list of 15 most active issues were Virginia-Carolina Chemical up 1¾ at 23½, Island Creek Coal unchanged at 37, Pan American World Airways off ¼ at 11½, and Packard Motor off ⅛ at 4½.

B-P Women Warned Of Bomb Attack

"Not since 1812 has it been possible for an enemy to attack the United States in force. Russia now has the weapons and equipment to do so," Arthur B. Gibson told members of the Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club at the recent dinner meeting.

At the meeting it was announced that the B and P Women will sponsor Charles Coburn, noted movie actor, in Cumberland, March 3, at Fort Hill High School.

In speaking on "Civil Defense," Mr. Gibson discussed the obligation of the smaller communities toward possible stricken areas. He gave a word picture of what would have to be done after a possible atom bomb attack and said, "I think that every good American can do something toward Civil Defense. It means the ability to get up and fight after you have been hit."

He described the atom bomb attack and stated that Maryland is divided into four Civil Defense units. Funds are provided for Civil Defense work by each state instead of federal funds being used. Speaking of collecting data by the Civil Defense officers, Mr. Gibson commended the women for their cooperation. He stated that December 10 and 11 the state officers would be here to give specific training to the personnel, and after their visit the field in Civil Defense would be expanded in Cumberland. The slogan, he said is, "Civil Defense Means Survival."

Mrs. Dorothy Ringler and Miss Dorothy Koegel of the Membership committee arranged the program.

The next meeting will be the Christmas party, December 11 under the leadership of Mrs. Ellen McKenzie, Mrs. Ethel Klavuhn and assisted by Miss Irene Lapp, Miss Dorothy Manley, Miss Zana Allison of the Welfare committee. Members are to bring a gift of food, toy or donation of money for the needy.

Selective Buying Results In Market Strong Spots

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Buyers were in a select shopping mood today and the stock market as a result was a jumble of strong spots and weak areas.

Potential oil earnings in the famed Williston basin of Montana-Dakota provided the most prominent buying incentive.

Northern Pacific, which has mineral rights in something like a million acres in the basin, shot up four points at 68½ and was the day's most active issue.

Montana-Dakota Utilities, which does business in the basin, was second most active up 1¼ at 25¼.

Aremada, which brought in the basin's discovery well last April, gained 1½ at 153. Shell, whose Northern Pacific No. 1 well confirmed the find a few months later, advanced 2⅛ at 67.

Bell Aircraft was up 1⅞ at 30½ after directors proposed a two for one split. Cerra De Pasco gained 1¼ at 56 after directors declared a year-end extra of $1 and a dividend of 25 cents bringing 1951 payments to $2 and 5 per cent stock dividend as against nothing last year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $97.30. The industrial component was off 40 cents, railroads held unchanged, and utilities advanced 10 cents.

Following Northern Pacific and Montana-Dakota Utilities in the list of 15 most active issues were Virginia-Carolina Chemical up 1¾ at 23½, Island Creek Coal unchanged at 37, Pan American World Airways off ¼ at 11½, and Packard Motor off ⅛ at 4½.

B-P Women Warned Of Bomb Attack

"Not since 1812 has it been possible for an enemy to attack the United States in force. Russia now has the weapons and equipment to do so," Arthur B. Gibson told members of the Cumberland Business and Professional Women's Club at the recent dinner meeting.

At the meeting it was announced that the B and P Women will sponsor Charles Coburn, noted movie actor, in Cumberland, March 3, at Fort Hill High School.

In speaking on "Civil Defense," Mr. Gibson discussed the obligation of the smaller communities toward possible stricken areas. He gave a word picture of what would have to be done after a possible atom bomb attack and said, "I think that every good American can do something toward Civil Defense. It means the ability to get up and fight after you have been hit."

He described the atom bomb attack and stated that Maryland is divided into four Civil Defense units. Funds are provided for Civil Defense work by each state instead of federal funds being used. Speaking of collecting data by the Civil Defense officers, Mr. Gibson commended the women for their cooperation. He stated that December 10 and 11 the state officers would be here to give specific training to the personnel, and after their visit the field in Civil Defense would be expanded in Cumberland. The slogan, he said is, "Civil Defense Means Survival."

Mrs. Dorothy Ringler and Miss Dorothy Koegel of the Membership committee arranged the program.

The next meeting will be the Christmas party, December 11 under the leadership of Mrs. Ellen McKenzie. Mrs. Ethel Klavuhn and assisted by Miss Irene Lapp, Miss Dorothy Manley, Miss Zana Allison of the Welfare committee. Members are to bring a gift of food, toy or donation of money for the needy.

Selective Buying Results In Market Strong Spots

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 (AP) — Buyers were in a select shopping mood today and the stock market as a result was a jumble of strong spots and weak areas.

Potential oil earnings in the famed Williston basin of Montana-Dakota provided the most prominent buying incentive.

Northern Pacific, which has mineral rights in something like a million acres in the basin, shot up four points at 68½ and was the day's most active issue.

Montana-Dakota Utilities, which does business in the basin, was second most active up 1¼ at 25¼.

Aremada, which brought in the basin's discovery well last April, gained 1½ at 153. Shell, whose Northern Pacific No. 1 well confirmed the find a few months later, advanced 2⅛ at 67.

Bell Aircraft was up 1⅞ at 30½ after directors proposed a two for one split. Cerra De Pasco gained 1¼ at 56 after directors declared a year-end extra of $1 and a dividend of 25 cents bringing 1951 payments to $2 and 5 per cent stock dividend as against nothing last year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 20 cents at $97.30. The industrial component was off 40 cents, railroads held unchanged, and utilities advanced 10 cents.

Following Northern Pacific and Montana-Dakota Utilities in the list of 15 most active issues were Virginia-Carolina Chemical up 1¾ at 23½, Island Creek Coal unchanged at 37, Pan American World Airways off ¼ at 11½, and Packard Motor off ⅛ at 4½.

Water Firm To Improve Facilities

Lonaconing Company To Meet State Order

The Lonaconing Water Company will take immediate steps to comply with improvements ordered by the Maryland State Department of Health.

But costs of the program, estimated to run up to $30,000 to meet full specifications of the state directives, will undoubtedly mean a rise in present water rates, according to John "Jack" Evans, superintendent of the firm.

Action against the water firm, which has been plagued during the summer and fall with one of the worst droughts in its history, was ordered by the State Board of Health on Monday.

Orders Are Served

Two orders were served on the firm this week.

The first order terms the water company "inefficient in its operation" and states it "is not producing a water of satisfactory sanitary worth," and that the "water is a menace to health."

"Said company is ordered to secure satisfactory operating results within 30 days," the order continues. "If not done within 30 days, the State Board of Health will order the company to appoint and pay the salary of a person who shall take charge of the operation of the water supply."

Alterations Ordered

The second notice is as follows: "The Lonaconing Water Company is to make such alterations or extensions to the system or plant or to install such new system or plant to correct improper conditions. This shall relate to adequate protection from pollution of the water sheds and impounding reservoirs of the three stream supplies as well as adequate protection from pollution of the wells. This must be done within six months from the date of this order."

Will Meet Regulations

Evans said last night that the firm will make every effort to comply with all of the regulations set forth by the Maryland State Board of Health.

He estimated that the cost of the program necessary to meet the qualifications set forth by the board will run from $20,000 to $30,000.

Cost of the program, he added, will have to be met by increases in water rates which have remained unchanged since 1895.

The firm charges a minimum of 95 cents and a maximum of $1.42 a month for unmetered water.

Evans said the firm, which spent $55,000 in 1944 to enlarge its Midland reservoir to its present 5,000,000 gallon capacity to meet such emergencies as existed this year, has been operating practically at a loss in recent times.

He said the firm will provide the area it serves with water of a quality desired by the citizens and by the state.

But one part of the state demands may be difficult to meet immediately, Evans said.

Delivery To Be Slow

He referred to a state demand that a chlorinator be placed on the line leading from the Koontz reservoir, which Evans said is used only in cases of fire or emergencies.

He said that when the firm tried to order the equipment by telephone it was informed delivery could not be promised in less than from two to five months.

Evans estimated the cost of the chlorinator and a building to house the equipment as about $3,500.

J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said the valve on the line will be closed and padlocked in case the order is not met.

Dowling announced water samples will be collected weekly from nine places in the three communities.

To Test Samples

These will be brought to Cumberland and analyzed in the Health Department's laboratory together with similar samples collected by the water firm. This is being done as a safety measure, Dowling added.

The sample points are: Lonaconing, Sinclair Service Station, Harris

ASSUMES DUTIES AS STATE POLICE CLERK—Robert L. Powers, 156 Wood Street, Frostburg, has assumed duties as clerk at the State Police Barracks at LaVale. He succeeds Robert L. Potts. The LaSalle graduate is a veteran of World War II and served in the Pacific Theater as a member of 218th Ordnance Company. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Powers and married the former Miss Mary E. McLane of Frostburg. While serving in the Army he received some experience in the operation of radios.

Jaycees Endorse Fluoridation Of Water Supply

To Submit Request To City Officials

The Junior Association of Commerce are endorsing in principle the fluoridation of Cumberland water and plan to submit a request to the Mayor and City Council to report on its possibilities here.

The motion was made last night by William Scott at a business meeting of the Jaycees at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Pamphlets on the value of the fluoride treatment of water in preventing tooth decay were distributed among members by David Kauffman.

Fluoridation of Cumberland's water supply is being urged by the Garrett and Allegany County Dental Society.

Under rules of the Maryland State Department of Health, however, the treatment cannot be adopted unless medical societies also approve the treatment.

Approval for fluoridation was voted recently by the American Medical Society.

Cumberland Water Department officials have been studying the problem of fluoridation for some time but have delayed action until additional statistics are available.

Commissioner George H. Tederick has been discussing the subject with water officials at all of the conventions he has attended.

During last night's meeting, plans were made to arrange for the Extension Committee to motor to Oakland next week and attempt to reorganize the Junior Association of Commerce chapter in that community.

The Americanism Committee also plans to get started on a project to communicate with a foreign country in an effort to promote democracy and good will. This will be accomplished by cooperation with the Jaycees International Organization.

Gary Bucy Named As "Kid Of Week"

Gary Bucy, 13 Harrison Street, has been selected "Kid Of The Week" by a committee of the Junior Association of Commerce in recognition of youth achievement in Cumberland.

Tri-Towns Cab Owner Receives $1,018 Verdict

Jury Decides Against Railroad

Hollis Lee Howe, Tri-Towns taxicab owner, yesterday won a $1,018 verdict from the Western Maryland Railway in a $2,500 suit tried in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Kenneth F. Gerard, foreman of the 11-man jury, announced the verdict after the jury had deliberated about an hour and a half.

Taxi Wrecked

The suit arose from the wrecking of a cab owned by Howe after it was struck by a Western Maryland train at the Tooseytown Crossing in Beryl, W. Va., January 10.

About 15 witnesses were heard in the day-long trial.

Among the witnesses heard was the driver of the cab, John Henry Winkler, of Westernport.

Testimony revealed that Winkler and his fares, Simon Bittinger and his daughter, Wilma, who incidentally celebrated her 14th birthday today, leaped to safety before the engine on the eastbound passnger train struck the 1948 sedan.

Engine Pushed

Winkler stated the engine pushed the cab down the tracks several hundred feet before the train came to a halt. The vehicle was demolished.

Others heard were members of the train crew, several witnesses and persons who came upon the accident shortly after it happened, as well as the Bittingers.

Post Office Expects Heavy Holiday Mailing

Season Schedule To Begin Dec. 14

Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon said yesterday Postal employes will be enjoying their last peaceful weekend before wading into the annual deluge of Christmas mail.

"In another week we'll be swamped. I only hope that the people here in town realize how much they can help us, and themselves, by mailing their Christmas cards and other gifts during the next few days.

"There's always a last-minute flood of parcel post from out-of-town. Most of it is the Christmas mail from friends and loved ones, but we've also received some large commercial shipments and more will come. When the incoming and outgoing operations overlap, a jam may result, and some things may not be delivered until after Christmas."

To underscore the importance of this situation, the postmaster noted that during the normal periods post office cancellations average 16,000 pieces of mail per day. Cancellations are now running about 19,000 per day, and at the peak of the Yuletide season they will average 95,000 per day.

Anticipating this increase, the post office goes on its holiday schedule beginning December 14. Service windows will be open from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sundays.

On Saturday December 15, the stamp windows will be open until 5 p. m.

Christmas greeting cards and packages for out-of-state delivery should be posted by December 11. Those for local delivery at least a week before Christmas Day.

Post office windows are most crowded at lunch time, so Conlon advises that packages be mailed before 10 a. m. or between 1:30 and 3:30 p. m. "The lines will be shorter then, and it's easier on the feet," he added.

Weather

Yesterday began as a cloudy, gloomy day, but the sun appeared in the afternoon to brighten the area and send the mercury up to the mid-50s. The Weather Bureau said the first five days of December have been about 12 degrees warmer on the average than is normal for Maryland. The Bureau reported they also have been a little wetter than usual. The normal temperature early in December is an average of 40 degrees. The high temperature yesterday as recorded by the weather station at Constitution Park was 56 degrees, the low was 48 which remained at this point at 8 o'clock last night. Humidity at 6 p.m. was a sticky 81 per cent. Forecasters predict cloudy and mild for today with occasional rain.

"Messiah" Presentation Set Tonight At Fort Hill

Special Buses Will Be Run

Fort Hill High School's auditorium is expected to be crowded tonight for the annual Christmas musical feature, Handel's "Messiah," which will be presented by the Cumebrland Choral Society at 8:30 o'clock.

To assist the music lovers to get to the performance, arrangements have been made for special Cumberland Transit Lines buses to run from Baltimore Street to the school tonight, according to Jack Platt, director of the society.

Buses will leave a 7:45 p.m., 8 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. from in front of the S. T. Little Jewelry store. Transportation back to Baltimore Street from in front of Fort Hill will be provided after the performance.

Four nationally-known singers will be featured soloists at tonight's presentation. They are Barbara Troxell, soprano; Lucile Cummings, contralto; Norman Myrvik, tenor, and Jack Wilcox, baritone.

Augmenting the soloists will be some 90 outstanding local vocalists. Aden Lewis, director of piano music in the county schools, will be the accompanist.

Miss Troxell, has sung as soloist with the New York City Symphony and the Philadelphia Orchestra and many other orchestras around the country.

Miss Cummings in recent months has been a guest star on NBC's Telephone Hour seven times. This season marked her New York opera debut in the leading role of Amneris in the New York City Opera Company's production of "Aida."

Although both women have sung here previously, this will mark the first Cumberland performance for both of the male soloists.

Two years before the second World War started, Myrvik toured Europe with a male quartet which was highly acclaimed. During his war service, Myrvik won a regional singing contest, later sang at General Eisenhower's homecoming in Kansas City and appeared as soloist with the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra.

Wilcox is baritone soloist at Radio City Music Hall in New York City.

GOP Candidate Poll Results Expected Soon

Winner To Enter Congress Race

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Montgomery County Republicans may know within a week the results of a party poll to choose a candidate for Congress in Maryland's Sixth District.

John R. Reeves, Secretary of State and one of the contenders, said poll takers have been assigned areas and are out sounding sentiment.

State Sen. DeWitt S. Hyde is the other possibility.

In his office here, Reeves explained he and Hyde—old chums anyway—worked it out very amicably. Elected Republican officials and precinct chairmen will simply note on a piece of paper which of the two they favor.

After the 50 to 75 informal ballots are counted, either Hyde or Reeves will enter the race.

The winner already has opposition. Senator D. Kenneth McLaughlin of Hagerstown has declared he will go after the Sixth District seat long occupied by Republican J. Glenn Beall.

Beall has removed himself from the Congressional race. He is expected to run instead for the Senate desk now held by Herbert R. O'Conor, a Democrat.

In the Western Maryland district, D. John Markey of Walkersville is another potential Republican candidate. O'Conor beat Markey by a slender margin in 1946.

Markey tied for the Senate nomination again last year and received the largest popular vote in the GOP primary. He lost the nomination to John Marshall Butler by Maryland's unit-vote system. Butler proceeded to defeat former Senator Millard E. Tydings.

Missing Hunter Finds Way Back To Camp Site

Bruce Weatherford Lost For 24 Hours

Bruce Weatherford, 24-year-old hunter from Charleston, W. Va., missing from a hunting party in Tucker County, found his way back to camp at about noon yesterday after being lost in the wilderness for 24 hours.

Weatherford, who was a member of a four-man deer hunting party on Backbone Mountain near Davis, was reported to have gone into the woods with the group about noon Tuesday.

The group was scheduled to reassemble in an hour's time. When Weatherford failed to return the other members of the party began a search.

The weather in Tucker County was rainy all day and night Tuesday, adding to the hardship of both Weatherford and the searchers. The lost hunter wandered through the woods all night in search of the cabin.

Suffers From Exposure

When he returned yesterday he was described as "all in" from exposure. Apparently Weatherford required no medical attention.

Other members of the group said Weatherford was stationed at a spot near the camp and was missing when they returned. The three men conducted a search until 10 o'clock Tuesday night when they called for assistance.

Earl Corcoran, fire chief, and several other members of the Parsons, W. Va., Volunteer Fire Company, continued the search until 7 a.m. yesterday.

Young Hunter Killed

Ronald Wayne Shaffer, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shaffer, Schellsburg, Pa. was killed when his rifle apparently discharged as he climbed over a fence near his Napier Township home.

Bedford County Coroner Vernon G. Geisel said the young hunter apparently bled to death after the rifle charge struck him in the chest. His mother found the crumpled body in a field after a search was started when he failed to return home at dark.

PSC Resumes Phone Hearing

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP) — Maryland telephone rates are high enough to provide an adequate profit for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Joseph Allen argued today.

Allen, acting as people's counsel, stated his case as the Public Service Commission resumed hearings on a company request for higher rates.

The company says it needs $2,310,000 in additional net revenue yearly. This would call for a boost of a little under 10 per cent in phone rates — or a total of $4,610,000 annually.

The company side of the case was presented to the Commission in September and October.

Allen attacked the system of determining the rate of return. He said the Chesapeake and Potomac companies serving Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Washington, D. C., bear a larger share than they should of the expenses of the nationwide Bell System, the parent company.

City Will Secure Yule Trees Today

Water Firm To Improve Facilities

Lonaconing Company To Meet State Order

The Lonaconing Water Company will take immediate steps to comply with improvements ordered by the Maryland State Department of Health.

But costs of the program, estimated to run up to $30,000 to meet full specifications of the state directives, will undoubtedly mean a rise in present water rates, according to John "Jack" Evans, superintendent of the firm.

Action against the water firm, which has been plagued during the summer and fall with one of the worst droughts in its history, was ordered by the State Board of Health on Monday.

Orders Are Served

Two orders were served on the firm this week.

The first order terms the water company "inefficient in its operation" and states it "is not producing a water of satisfactory sanitary worth," and that the "water is a menace to health."

"Said company is ordered to secure satisfactory operating results within 30 days," the order continues. "If not done within 30 days, the State Board of Health will order the company to appoint and pay the salary of a person who shall take charge of the operation of the water supply."

Alterations Ordered

The second notice is as follows: "The Lonaconing Water Company is to make such alterations or extensions to the system or plant or to install such new system or plant to correct improper conditions. This shall relate to adequate protection from pollution of the water sheds and impounding reservoirs of the three stream supplies as well as adequate protection from pollution of the wells. This must be done within six months from the date of this order."

Will Meet Regulations

Evans said last night that the firm will make every effort to comply with all of the regulations set forth by the Maryland State Board of Health.

He estimated that the cost of the program necessary to meet the qualifications set forth by the board will run from $20,000 to $30,000.

Cost of the program, he added, will have to be met by increases in water rates which have remained unchanged since 1895.

The firm charges a minimum of 95 cents and a maximum of $1.42 a month for unmetered water.

Evans said the firm, which spent $55,000 in 1944 to enlarge its Midland reservoir to its present 5,000,000 gallon capacity to meet such emergencies as existed this year, has been operating practically at a loss in recent times.

He said the firm will provide the area it serves with water of a quality desired by the citizens and by the state.

But one part of the state demands may be difficult to meet immediately, Evans said.

Delivery To Be Slow

He referred to a state demand that a chlorinator be placed on the line leading from the Koontz reservoir, which Evans said is used only in cases of fire or emergencies.

He said that when the firm tried to order the equipment by telephone it was informed delivery could not be promised in less than from two to five months.

Evans estimated the cost of the chlorinator and a building to house the equipment as about $3,500.

J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said the valve on the line will be closed and padlocked in case the order is not met.

Dowling announced water samples will be collected weekly from nine places in the three communities.

To Test Samples

These will be brought to Cumberland and analyzed in the Health Department's laboratory together with similar samples collected by the water firm. This is being done as a safety measure, Dowling added.

The sample points are: Lonaconing, Sinclair Service Station, Harris

Jaycees Endorse Fluoridation Of Water Supply

To Submit Request To City Officials

The Junior Association of Commerce are endorsing in principle the fluoridation of Cumberland water and plan to submit a request to the Mayor and City Council to report on its possibilities here.

The motion was made last night by William Scott at a business meeting of the Jaycees at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Pamphlets on the value of the fluoride treatment of water in preventing tooth decay were distributed among members by David Kauffman.

Fluoridation of Cumberland's water supply is being urged by the Garrett and Allegany County Dental Society.

Under rules of the Maryland State Department of Health, however, the treatment cannot be adopted unless medical societies also approve the treatment.

Approval for fluoridation was voted recently by the American Medical Society.

Cumberland Water Department officials have been studying the problem of fluoridation for some time but have delayed action until additional statistics are available.

Commissioner George H. Tederick has been discussing the subject with water officials at all of the conventions he has attended.

During last night's meeting, plans were made to arrange for the Extension Committee to motor to Oakland next week and attempt to reorganize the Junior Association of Commerce chapter in that community.

The Americanism Committee also plans to get started on a project to communicate with a foreign country in an effort to promote democracy and good will. This will be accomplished by cooperation with the Jaycees International Organization.

To underscore the importance of this situation, the postmaster noted that during the normal periods post office cancellations average 16,000 pieces of mail per day. Cancellations are now running about 19,000 per day, and at the peak of the Yuletide season they will average 95,000 per day.

Anticipating this increase, the post office goes on its holiday schedule beginning December 14. Service windows will be open from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sundays.

On Saturday December 15, the stamp windows will be open until 5 p. m.

Christmas greeting cards and packages for out-of-state delivery should be posted by December 11. Those for local delivery at least a week before Christmas Day.

Post office windows are most crowded at lunch time, so Conlon advises that packages be mailed before 10 a. m. or between 1:30 and 3:30 p. m. "The lines will be shorter then, and it's easier on the feet," he added.

GOP Candidate Poll Results Expected Soon

Winner To Enter Congress Race

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Montgomery County Republicans may know within a week the results of a party poll to choose a candidate for Congress in Maryland's Sixth District.

John R. Reeves, Secretary of State and one of the contenders, said poll takers have been assigned areas and are out sounding sentiment.

State Sen. DeWitt S. Hyde is the other possibility.

In his office here, Reeves explained he and Hyde—old chums anyway—worked it out very amicably. Elected Republican officials and precinct chairmen will simply note on a piece of paper which of the two they favor.

After the 50 to 75 informal ballots are counted, either Hyde or Reeves will enter the race.

The winner already has opposition. Senator D. Kenneth McLaughlin of Hagerstown has declared he will go after the Sixth District seat long occupied by Republican J. Glenn Beall.

Beall has removed himself from the Congressional race. He is expected to run instead for the Senate desk now held by Herbert R. O'Conor, a Democrat.

In the Western Maryland district, D. John Markey of Walkersville is another potential Republican candidate. O'Conor beat Markey by a slender margin in 1946.

Markey tied for the Senate nomination again last year and received the largest popular vote in the GOP primary. He lost the nomination to John Marshall Butler by Maryland's unit-vote system. Butler proceeded to defeat former Senator Millard E. Tydings.

Missing Hunter Finds Way Back To Camp Site

Bruce Weatherford Lost For 24 Hours

Bruce Weatherford, 24-year-old hunter from Charleston, W. Va., missing from a hunting party in Tucker County, found his way back to camp at about noon yesterday after being lost in the wilderness for 24 hours.

Weatherford, who was a member of a four-man deer hunting party on Backbone Mountain near Davis, was reported to have gone into the woods with the group about noon Tuesday.

The group was scheduled to reassemble in an hour's time. When Weatherford failed to return the other members of the party began a search.

The weather in Tucker County was rainy all day and night Tuesday, adding to the hardship of both Weatherford and the searchers. The lost hunter wandered through the woods all night in search of the cabin.

Suffers From Exposure

When he returned yesterday he was described as "all in" from exposure. Apparently Weatherford required no medical attention.

Other members of the group said Weatherford was stationed at a spot near the camp and was missing when they returned. The three men conducted a search until 10 o'clock Tuesday night when they called for assistance.

Earl Corcoran, fire chief, and several other members of the Parsons, W. Va., Volunteer Fire Company, continued the search until 7 a.m. yesterday.

Young Hunter Killed

Ronald Wayne Shaffer, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shaffer, Schellsburg, Pa. was killed when his rifle apparently discharged as he climbed over a fence near his Napier Township home.

Bedford County Coroner Vernon G. Geisel said the young hunter apparently bled to death after the rifle charge struck him in the chest. His mother found the crumpled body in a field after a search was started when he failed to return home at dark.

PSC Resumes Phone Hearing

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP) — Maryland telephone rates are high enough to provide an adequate profit for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Joseph Allen argued today.

Allen, acting as people's counsel, stated his case as the Public Service Commission resumed hearings on a company request for higher rates.

The company says it needs $2,310,000 in additional net revenue yearly. This would call for a boost of a little under 10 per cent in phone rates — or a total of $4,610,000 annually.

The company side of the case was presented to the Commission in September and October.

Allen attacked the system of determining the rate of return. He said the Chesapeake and Potomac companies serving Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Washington, D. C., bear a larger share than they should of the expenses of the nationwide Bell System, the parent company.

Water Firm To Improve Facilities

Lonaconing Company To Meet State Order

The Lonaconing Water Company will take immediate steps to comply with improvements ordered by the Maryland State Department of Health.

But costs of the program, estimated to run up to $30,000 to meet full specifications of the state directives, will undoubtedly mean a rise in present water rates, according to John "Jack" Evans, superintendent of the firm.

Action against the water firm, which has been plagued during the summer and fall with one of the worst droughts in its history, was ordered by the State Board of Health on Monday.

Orders Are Served

Two orders were served on the firm this week.

The first order terms the water company "inefficient in its operation" and states it "is not producing a water of satisfactory sanitary worth," and that the "water is a menace to health."

"Said company is ordered to secure satisfactory operating results within 30 days," the order continues. "If not done within 30 days, the State Board of Health will order the company to appoint and pay the salary of a person who shall take charge of the operation of the water supply."

Alterations Ordered

The second notice is as follows: "The Lonaconing Water Company is to make such alterations or extensions to the system or plant or to install such new system or plant to correct improper conditions. This shall relate to adequate protection from pollution of the water sheds and impounding reservoirs of the three stream supplies as well as adequate protection from pollution of the wells. This must be done within six months from the date of this order."

Will Meet Regulations

Evans said last night that the firm will make every effort to comply with all of the regulations set forth by the Maryland State Board of Health.

He estimated that the cost of the program necessary to meet the qualifications set forth by the board will run from $20,000 to $30,000.

Cost of the program, he added, will have to be met by increases in water rates which have remained unchanged since 1895.

The firm charges a minimum of 95 cents and a maximum of $1.42 a month for unmetered water.

Evans said the firm, which spent $55,000 in 1944 to enlarge its Midland reservoir to its present 5,000,000 gallon capacity to meet such emergencies as existed this year, has been operating practically at a loss in recent times.

He said the firm will provide the area it serves with water of a quality desired by the citizens and by the state.

But one part of the state demands may be difficult to meet immediately, Evans said.

Delivery To Be Slow

He referred to a state demand that a chlorinator be placed on the line leading from the Koontz reservoir, which Evans said is used only in cases of fire or emergencies.

He said that when the firm tried to order the equipment by telephone it was informed delivery could not be promised in less than from two to five months.

Evans estimated the cost of the chlorinator and a building to house the equipment as about $3,500.

J. B. Dowling, state sanitarian, said the valve on the line will be closed and padlocked in case the order is not met.

Dowling announced water samples will be collected weekly from nine places in the three communities.

To Test Samples

These will be brought to Cumberland and analyzed in the Health Department's laboratory together with similar samples collected by the water firm. This is being done as a safety measure, Dowling added.

The sample points are: Lonaconing, Sinclair Service Station, Harris

Jaycees Endorse Fluoridation Of Water Supply

To Submit Request To City Officials

The Junior Association of Commerce are endorsing in principle the fluoridation of Cumberland water and plan to submit a request to the Mayor and City Council to report on its possibilities here.

The motion was made last night by William Scott at a business meeting of the Jaycees at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Pamphlets on the value of the fluoride treatment of water in preventing tooth decay were distributed among members by David Kauffman.

Fluoridation of Cumberland's water supply is being urged by the Garrett and Allegany County Dental Society.

Under rules of the Maryland State Department of Health, however, the treatment cannot be adopted unless medical societies also approve the treatment.

Approval for fluoridation was voted recently by the American Medical Society.

Cumberland Water Department officials have been studying the problem of fluoridation for some time but have delayed action until additional statistics are available.

Commissioner George H. Tederick has been discussing the subject with water officials at all of the conventions he has attended.

During last night's meeting, plans were made to arrange for the Extension Committee to motor to Oakland next week and attempt to reorganize the Junior Association of Commerce chapter in that community.

The Americanism Committee also plans to get started on a project to communicate with a foreign country in an effort to promote democracy and good will. This will be accomplished by cooperation with the Jaycees International Organization.

He notified his grandmother and aunt who were in a back room and had them go out on the porch.

He then returned and aided his frightened brother in fleeing from the house. The fire department was then notified.

Tri-Towns Cab Owner Receives $1,018 Verdict

Jury Decides Against Railroad

Hollis Lee Howe, Tri-Towns taxicab owner, yesterday won a $1,018 verdict from the Western Maryland Railway in a $2,500 suit tried in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Kenneth F. Gerard, foreman of the 11-man jury, announced the verdict after the jury had deliberated about an hour and a half.

Taxi Wrecked

The suit arose from the wrecking of a cab owned by Howe after it was struck by a Western Maryland train at the Tooseytown Crossing in Beryl, W. Va., January 10.

About 15 witnesses were heard in the day-long trial.

Among the witnesses heard was the driver of the cab, John Henry Winkler, of Westernport.

Testimony revealed that Winkler and his fares, Simon Bittinger and his daughter, Wilma, who incidentally celebrated her 14th birthday today, leaped to safety before the engine on the eastbound passnger train struck the 1948 sedan.

Engine Pushed

Winkler stated the engine pushed the cab down the tracks several hundred feet before the train came to a halt. The vehicle was demolished.

The driver said he ran to the engine and the engineer said to him, "what happened." Winkler testified that he answered "my cab's in front of your engine."

Others heard were members of the train crew, several witnesses and persons who came upon the accident shortly after it happened, as well as the Bittingers.

Winkler and his fares stated they heard no whistle and added that there was no warning bell at the crossing.

The case was tried before a jury with Judge Morgan C. Harris presiding.

Representing Howe was Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., of Westernport, while Former Judge Walter C. Capper, of this city, and Rene J. Gunning, of Baltimore, were counsel for the railroad.

Post Office Expects Heavy Holiday Mailing

Season Schedule To Begin Dec. 14

Postmaster Thomas F. Conlon said yesterday Postal employes will be enjoying their last peaceful weekend before wading into the annual deluge of Christmas mail.

"In another week we'll be swamped. I only hope that the people here in town realize how much they can help us, and themselves, by mailing their Christmas cards and other gifts during the next few days.

PSC Resumes Phone Hearing

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5 (AP) — Maryland telephone rates are high enough to provide an adequate profit for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Joseph Allen argued today.

Allen, acting as people's counsel, stated his case as the Public Service Commission resumed hearings on a company request for higher rates.

The company says it needs $2,310,000 in additional net revenue yearly. This would call for a boost of a little under 10 per cent in phone rates — or a total of $4,610,000 annually.

The company side of the case was presented to the Commission in September and October.

Allen attacked the system of determining the rate of return. He said the Chesapeake and Potomac companies serving Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Washington, D. C., bear a larger share than they should of the expenses of the nationwide Bell System, the parent company.
